Area man arrested in GI slaying

A Covina man has been arrested in Tacoma, Wash., and accused of murder in the slaying of a serviceman at McChord Air Force Base.

The suspect is 19-year-old Willard Warren Taylor.

Pvt. David P. Purdie's headless body was discovered in a shallow grave Nov. 10 on the base by a hunter. The victim, of Hempstead, N.Y., had been shot once in the chest. He had been reported AWOL since Sept. 5.

The Covinan, a former Ft. Lewis, Wash., soldier, was arrainged in U.S. Federal Court Wednesday. FBI agents said they were looking for two other suspects in connection with the slaying. They said they believe Purdie was killed sometime between Sept. 4 and 30.

The victim's head was recovered, but investigators refused to comment on where it was found or reveal the motives they suspect in the killing.

Scientists say coal can meet our energy needs

PASADENA, Calif (UPI) — An efficient and economical method of extracting gasoline from the abundant supply of coal—which would satisfy total energy requirements for hundreds of years — is being studied by Caltech scientists.

Dr. George R. Gavalas is conducting the study with Dr. Frederick Shair under a $128,000 grant from the National Science Foundation and the Ford Motor Company's energy research fund.

"It is hoped that by the mid 1980s coal and nuclear energy will carry a considerable portion of the nation's energy requirements," Gavalas said.

"Coal is our largest fossil fuel resource...which would suffice for several hundred years of total energy requirements.

"If oil prices remain at their present high levels, it will be cheaper to produce fuels from coal than from petroleum," he said.

Coal can provide several fuels including methane, gasoline, boiler fuels and solid coke.

"We want to determine the temperature and other conditions that we must subject coal to in order to get the best possible product mix," Gavalas said.

Area could get light rainfall

A weak storm system that is moving down the coast from Oregon threatens a slight chance of rain tonight in the valley, according to the weatherman.

For certain, he said, skies locally will be mostly cloudy tonight and partly cloudy Friday. Mountain areas will have light showers tonight.

After Wednesday's pleasant 80 degree weather, temperatures will cool today by about 12 degrees. Temperatures Friday will be near 70 degrees.

Solons attack plan to buy more F-14s

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy's request to buy 390 F-14 supersonic fighters instead of 334 was attacked today by Sens. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., and William Proxmire, D-Wis.

In a speech prepared for delivery in the Senate, Eagleton charged that F-14 "has failed in every important respect to meet its performance specifications."

Demonstrations in Kyoto

Ford encounters first protests

KYOTO, Japan (UPI) — President Ford saw the first protest demonstrations of his trip to Japan today but, undaunted, toured this ancient former imperial capital and ate a Japanese-style dinner flanked by chalk-faced geisha girls.

Ford was in high spirits despite the demonstrations and a drizzle that sometimes forced him to take shelter under an umbrella.

A hectic two-day state visit in Tokyo lay behind. Ahead lay trips to South Korea Friday and to a summit meeting with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev in Vladivostok Saturday. But for one day Ford was a tourist in grand style with no official state responsibilities.

"What a great day to see the ancient traditions and treasures of Japan," he said.

Ford flew to Kyoto —a city of centuries-old splendors and now a hotbed of Japanese Communism —after planting a nine-foot dogwood tree in the courtyard of his Tokyo guest house and bidding farewell to Emperor Hirohito.

His visit was classified as unofficial because the staunchly anti-American governor of Kyoto, Torazo Ninagawa, refused to meet the President.

The sightseeing offered Ford's first close-up contact with the people of Japan.

Thousands lined the streets, wearing kimonos and waving flags, to welcome the first U.S. president ever to visit Japan. Their cheers stood in sharp contrast to the President's greeting in Tokyo, where 15,000 police kept him almost totally isolated from the people.

Even the bellboys at Kyoto's Miyako Hotel, where the presidential party took 375 of the total 480 rooms, grinned and applauded when Ford checked into his $500-a-day suite.

But Ford heard shouts of "fuodo kaere" (Ford go home) from groups of hecklers as he drove with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in a White House limousine to the old Imperial Palace where Hirohito was enthroned in 1928.

About 200 protesters shouted objections to Ford's visit at the palace. Another 20 staged a demonstration when he toured Ninjo Castle, once a stronghold of Japan's old militay dictators which was built in 1603 with floors that creaked at every step to warn against intruders.

A police spokesman said authorities had been warned radical students might attempt to attack Ford's hotel. Police said 35 separate rallies had been scheduled, although some were in protest of such issues as inflation rather than of Ford's visit.

No violence was reported in connection with any of the demonstrations.

Kyoto is a major center for the ultraleftist terrorist group called the Red Army, which was responsible for the 1972 Lod Airport massacre in Israel and for several airline hijackings.

More than 8,000 police and security men augmented the President's Secret Service contingent as he made his rounds of the city.

Ford interrupted his visits to Shinto shrines and Buddhist temples long enough to buy some silk fabric for his wife Betty, who remained at the White House recuperating from cancer surgery, and to telephone her as he has done each day since leaving Washington Sunday.

Before Ford left Tokyo, sources within the government of Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka said American officials had been informed the prime minister might resign next week because of accusations that he amassed a personal fortune through allegedly dubious means while in public office.

The Kyoto News Agency said Tanaka was expected to announce his decision to step down during a caucus of his Liberal Democratic party Monday. Tanaka and other Japanese government officials declined to comment on the report.

In his farewell ceremony at Tokyo, Ford brought smiles and applause from the cooks, butlers and maids who had served at his guest house by telling them in laboriously spoken Japanese: "Domo arigato gozamasu," which means "thank you very much."

Oil nations to demand 87% increase in company taxes to cut big profits

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Oil producing nations will demand an 87 per cent boost in oil taxes next month, the Saudi Arabian oil minister said in an interview published today.

"The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will agree on a significant increase in oil prices at its next meeting in Vienna on Dec. 12," Sheikh Ahmed Yamani said in an interview with the weekly magazine Quick.

"We will experience an 87 per cent increase in oil taxes," he said.

Yamani said the increase was aimed at reducing oil companies' profits.

"We Saudis don't want this increase to benefit us. We want the consumer to benefit," he said.

"The consumers will have to take care that the increase is not passed on to them."

Saudi Arabia, the largest oil exporter in the world, recently lowered the price of its oil and Yamani said, "I am astonished that this step has been misunderstood.

"What angers us," he said, "is the fact that oil concerns end up with their enormous profits and then make investments which have nothing to do with the oil industry."

Yamani said, "we have lowered the price of our oil at the tap. That was just a small step.

"It does not mean the end of our measures. If we only had the cooperation of the consumer. I believe that in the near future, we will have direct contact with consumers in various countries," he said.

Asked what form the contact would take, Yamani said, "wait and see. We Saudis have planned some measures about which I cannot speak at this time."

Yamani was asked whether oil prices would come down if a lasting settlement could be reached between Israel and her Arab neighbors.

"Not all oil countries are Arab states," he said. "How could we persuade Venenzuela or Iran to lower their prices if a Palestinian settlement is reached?"

0.9% in October

Consumer price index continuing its climb

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher prices for food, cars and housing raised the Consumer Price Index by 0.9 per cent on an adjusted basis in October, the Labor Department said today.

Consumer prices have risen 12.2 per cent over the past 12 months, three times faster than the 1970-71 inflation that lead to wage price controls.

Spendable income for workers after adjustment for inflation and higher payroll taxes continued to erode in October, the department said.

Real spendable income was down 0.3 per cent from September, despite pay raises and was down 4.9 per cent from October, 1973.

The CPI stood at 153.2 in October, meaning goods and services costing $100 in 1967 cost $153.20 last month.

The Labor Department said the October rise in the CPI was led by an increase in food prices, which traditionally decline in the month. Sharply higher prices for sugar, cereal and bakery products offset declines in meats to send the food segment of the index up 1.3 per cent.

Prices for eggs, soft drinks, convenience foods, peanut butter and other fat and oil products also increased in October, although not so rapidly as sugar and grain products.

Cars also accounted for a major portion of the increase, the department said, because of higher sticker prices for new cars and unusually high resale value of used cars.

The cost of buying a home also continued to rise last month because of interest rates in the 9 per cent range. And furnishings for new homes such as ranges, refrigerators and other appliances also went up.

The rise in interest rates for new homes accounted for 40 per cent of the increase in the services sector of the CPI.

The department said rents, utilities, costs for home improvements and repairs also increased in October.

The cost of family outings and evenings on the town also rose in October, the department said. Costs rose for getting the car repaired for the outing, with the exception of gasoline prices which declined for the third straight month.

It also cost more for illness in October than in September, the department said. Physicians and hospitals raised prices 0.7 per cent in October and 12 per cent over the past 12 months.

There were declines in only three of 25 categories in the CPI. Meats, poultry and fish were down 1.6 per cent; fresh fruits and vegetables down 0.3 per cent and gasoline, down 2.5 per cent.

The sharpest increases were for new cars, up 4.5 per cent, food away from home, up 3.3 per cent, cereals and bakery products up 2.5 per cent.

Purchasing power of the dollar declined to 0.8 per cent in October and was down 10.8 per cent from October 1973, the department said.

Charged with manslaughter

They express love, kiss, then he helps wife commit suicide

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Robert Waters told his wife of 40 years he loved her, then kissed her goodbye. Minutes later, she was dead.

Waters, a 65-year-old former high school principal, was charged with manslaughter Wednesday in the death Nov. 13 of his wife, Kathleen. He pleaded innocent and was released on bond.

Police said Waters was responsible for his wife's death because he helped her get into a running auto in the couple's Clarkston garage, then closed the door.

Waters said his wife was despondent because of failing health and wanted to commit suicide. He said he could not talk her out of it.

"In the car he asked her if she was sure this was what she wanted," Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson said.

"She said yes," Patterson said. "And then she said to kiss her goodbye and they expressed their love for one another. And then he got out of the car."

Mrs. Waters died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Waters pleaded innocent Wednesday to a charge that he "did willfully, feloniously, negligently and knowingly, but without malice or premeditation, kill and slay Kathleen Waters."

"This couple was very close," Patterson said. "But I am a servant of the law and am obliged to carry it out."

AT&T will fight breakup with all its power

NEW YORK (UPI) — AT&T will fight the government's attempt to break up the giant communications corporation with all its power, Chairman John D. deButts said Wednesday.

Competitors in communications equipment cheered the government's antitrust suit against AT&T, saying it would mean cheaper phone service.

Chief targets of the Justice Department suit are AT&T's equipment division, Western Electric, and its research arm, Bell Labs. The government asked the federal courts Wednesday to force AT&T to sell the two divisions.

"Our obligation to the public, as well as to our investors and employes, requires us to do all in our power to see that that doesn't happen," deButts said.

"The telephone network to work efficiently must be designed, built and operated as a single entity. It is for this reason ... that the Bell System is structured as it is."

If AT&T is forced to divest itself of the two divisions, de Butts said, it will mean "telephone service would deteriorate and cost much more" because internal controls would be missing and because Bell companies now buy equipment from Western Electric at prices "70 per cent less than what they have to pay outside."

If the equipment division became independent, he said, "they could raise prices, and they would."

A spokesman for Western Electric said Bell telephone affiliates are free to buy their equipment from any company of their choice. But, he said, "When they buy from us, they get the best deal."

De Butts said he was "astonished" by the antitrust suit but predicted AT&T would eventually win in a lengthy legal battle.

He added that although the company had given the Justice Department "everything they asked for" in its investigation, the company received no advance notice of the filing of the suit.

Competitors in equipment communications welcomed the antitrust action.

Jack Biddle, executive director of the Computer Industry Association, representing computer and communications industries, said AT&T's "natural monopoly" should be limited to local switching networks.

"Competition is feasible and ... in the national interest in all other areas," Biddle said.

Stockbrokers said the suit would send "shock waves" through the investment community that would lessen with time.

"It probably will have some effect on the company's stock and bond prices, and be an overhanging cloud for some time," said Larry Wachtel, analyst for Bache & Co.

"But things should return to normal because these things take years to settle, and certainly nobody thinks that AT&T securities will remain depressed for too long."

Hatfield's wife has biopsy--benign

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Antoinette Hatfield, wife of Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., underwent a biopsy for suspected breast cancer Tuesday. Hatfield's office said "the results were benign."

Coastline panel proposes tough pollution plan

Power plants, refineries and freeway limited in smog zones

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A policy proposal adopted Wednesday by the state Coastline Commission would toughen the guidelines for granting permits to build or expand power plants, oil refineries and freeways in coastal areas.

The policy was designed to cut down air pollution in areas already considered "critical"— such as the Southern California coast from San Diego to Santa Barbara and the San Francisco Bay area.

The plan, which must be adopted by the Legislature in 1976 to have the force of a law, will be used as a strict guide for granting permits within 1,000 yards of the coast.

One problem with the guidelines, however, was that if such facilities were forced out of urban areas, they might move into unspoiled coastal and inland areas.

Ira E. Laufer, who represents the regional coastline commission in Santa Barbara, said his commission favored a less stringent policy, which would not force new power plants and refineries to locate north of Los Angeles.

According to the new policy, proposals for the expansion or modernization of coastal power plants must show "a net decrease in generating emissions" in order to be approved.

New plants will not be allowed in heavy smog areas unless "there is no alternative inland or coastal location where siting would result in less environmental degradation."

In other commission business:

—Permits were turned down for a six story office building and a 311-unit condominium in Marina del Rey because they might cause traffic congestion.

—Lantern Bay, Inc. was denied a permit to build about 100 homes on 28 acres of land near Dana Point because of diminished open space along the Orange County coastline.

— Avco, Chandler-Sherman and Lantern Bay, two large landowners, were urged to meet and pool their properties for developmental and park purposes.

677-acre 'weekend retreat' sets Reagan back $527,000

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Retiring Gov. Ronald Reagan has made a half-milliondollar purchase of a 677-acre coastal mountain ranch near Santa Barbara as a weekend vacation retreat.

Clyde Walthall, press secretary for Reagan, Wednesday said the purchase "fulfills a long-time dream the governor has had. He has wanted to own a ranch-type piece of property for a long time."

Straddling the Santa Ynez Mountains, the ranch will offer Reagan and his wife, Nancy, breathtaking views of the Pacific Coast on one side and the picturesque Santa Ynez Valley on the other.

The ranch, about 25 miles northwest of Santa Barbara, includes an adobe home. Portions of the property were under contract with the county as "agricultural preserves," insuring Reagan of sizeable tax breaks.

Walthall said the governor will continue to live in his Pacific Palisades home and will use the ranch primarily for weekends and vacations.

Walthall said the price of the property "is a private matter."

Documents on file with the Santa Barbara County recorder's office show at least $527,000 was involved in the transaction.

The records indicate the property was purchased through a three-member "Ronald Reagan Trust" on Nov. 13 from Santa Ynez cattle broker G. Raymond Cornelius.

A total of $579.70 was paid in deed transfer stamps on the property, amounting to at least a $527,000 payment, the recorder's office said.

Ward proposes takeover of existing tracks for RTD

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Since the voters have refused to pay for a rail-based commuter system, the county government should use its powers to take over use of the tracks belonging to railroads, County Supervisor Baxter Ward proposed Wednesday.

Ward suggested a rail-borne commuter system could stretch through Los Angeles County and into Orange and San Diego counties as well.

He told a news conference he will ask the directors of the Southern California Rapid Transit District Dec. 3 to bring a "limited, administrative condemnation suit" against Southern Pacific railroad.

The objective would not be to expropriate the railroad, Ward said, but only to seize the right to use the railroads tracks to carry commuter trains.

The tracks go unused most of the time anyway, he said, when there are no freight trains on them.

The existing tracks must be used, he said, because of the rejection by the voters of Proposition A, the November ballot initiative that would have imposed an extra penny-dollar sales tax to finance more buses and the start of work on a rail commuter system.

Ward said the state legislative counsel had advised that the RTD had legal power to condemn the rail lines, but Ward predicted it would take "two or three years" to fight the matter through the courts and state and federal regulatory agencies.

If the RTD won the suit, and got the right to use the rail lines "it is impossible to say what the overall cost would be" to operate commuter trains on them, Ward said, noting that Amtrak pays a "steep" rent for its long distance train rights.

But it would have to be less than building its own system, he said.

He said he was talking with Orange and San Diego county supervisors about opening commuter service on Santa Fe tracks between Los Angeles and San Diego, and that Amtrak president Roger Lewis had promised to help.

Lewis announced in Washington Wednesday that he is resigning.

Ward spoke of someday being able to run commuter trains on Southern Pacific lines through the San Fernando Valley to Santa Barbara and through the San Gabriel Valley to San Bernardino and gradually expanding by laying more track.

Former Treasury chief urges guaranteed income program

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz argued Wednesday for a minimum guaranteed income in the U.S. as the equitable solution to both a sagging economy and spiraling "crazy quilt" social programs such as social security and welfare.

Shultz told area business leaders his $23 billion proposal would substitute checks to the poor and abolish many of the nation's social maintenance programs including food stamps.

"The present system is a shell game," he told the San Francisco Bay Area Council. "The income maintenance program I propose would be cheaper and the money would go to those in need and it could be better administered."

Shultz said an acceptable minimum income, such as $7,500 a year, would be established and all those who qualified would receive that amount.

He said he believed the poor who can work, will work, if jobs are available. He proposed they not be restrictively taxed on money they are able to earn. He proposed a 50 per cent tax on their income over the established minimum, noting "that's less than the poor are taxed now."

Holding up a dollar bill, he said, "this is the kind of 'stamp' we need."

Shultz, Treasury secretary under President Nixon and now an executive vice president of Bechtel Corp., said instead of battling each other over regulations, business and government must reconcile their viewpoints to achieve efficiency and equity in meeting the nation's economic needs.

But he strongly opposed the government as a "employer-of-last-resort" for the jobless, he said, because such jobs would "not be the most productive employment" for the economy.

Retired Bank of America Chairman Louis B. Lundborg told the business leaders it was in their own interest to help solve social problems because they could not function in "a society racked by civil disorder, torn apart by racial tensions, choked by its own pollution, stifled by urban decay and rendered immobile by congestion."

"You don't have to worry about approaching this from a selfish viewpoint," he said. "The rising expectations of others will leave you no choice. The doctrine of caveat emptor—let the buyer beware—is not only dead but buried. In its place his arisen the doctrine of let the seller beware."

Benjamin F. Biaggini, president of Southern Pacific Co., blasted government land use regulations and bureaucracies that "destroy our land rights, further prevent needed development (and) cost us more in economic slowdowns, inflation, unemployment, housing shortages and higher taxes."

He attacked "no-growth" land development policies and proposed a "one-stop" agency in the bay area to coordinate and use matters by consolidation

INFLATION FIGHTER?

Those motorized skates worn by model Janeen Anderson are not really an attempt to beat the price of fuel but a unique innovation going on display Friday at Long Beach at the 15th annual Custom Car, Rod and Cycle show. Skates are powered by twin 1-horsepower motors controlled separately by individual hand-held accelerators.

Crash injures two valley men

Two area men were injured Wednesday when their car collided with a pickup truck on Colima Road near the Pomona Freeway, Rowland Heights.

Bruce LaClaire, 31, of 4591 Highland Ave., Montclair, the driver, and Michael Marquez, 31, of 1256 Ross Ave., Chino were taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

LaClaire was treated and released but Marquez was admitted to the intensive care unit with extensive facial injuries. His condition is termed as serious but stable.

Both men, employed by the City of Covina, were riding in a city-owned vehicle.

They were traveling west on Colima and the car collided with the pickup which was going east and turning left onto the freeway, said highway patrolmen.

The second driver, Bill Pereira, 26, of Buena Park, escaped without injuries.

Don't pout if you're out of trout: derby due

The second of six trout derbies will be held at the Cucamonga-Guasti Regional Park from Saturday to Dec. 1 for both adults and juniors.

Prizes will be given to juniors and adults with the heaviest "catches" and the heaviest single fish.

Trout tickets are required for the competitors. These are $2 for adults and $1 for juniors under 16. Only one trout ticket may be purchased per day, with a limit of five trout per day.

Funds from the tickets will be used to purchase more trout for the fishing season.

Winners of the first trout derby, held from Nov. 2 to 10, have been announced. They are: Pauline Getty, Ontario, adult with heaviest single fish; Rod Withee, Cucamonga, adult with heaviest catch; Don Vandermyden, Ontario, and Craig Johnson, Cucamonga, tie for junior with heaviest single fish; and Steven Dickey, Chino, junior with heaviest catch.

Intruder turns into robber when surprised by teen

A burglar with an English accent, caught inside a Pomona hobby shop by a teen-age girl early today, pulled a gun and robbed the place police reported.

The incident occurred at the Androus Hobby Shop at 1080 E. Mission Blvd., where the victim, Susan Androus, 15, also lives.

The young woman told police she went into the kitchen shortly before 2 a.m. and found a man there, holding a revolver. He ordered her into the front of the building, looted the cash register and for some reason hit her on the hand with the gun. Then he fled with the cash and a 5-foot glider he picked up.

The intruder was described as Caucasian, about 30, 5 feet 8, weighing 150 pounds. He wore gold-rimmed, round glasses, an olive-drab coat, blue shirt and gray trousers. He carried a nickel-plated revolver.

Early Wednesday, two men, one gesturing as if he had a gun, robbed the Stop 'N' Go Market at 1175 E. Philadelphia St., Pomona. Employe George R. Cote, 21, Ontario, surrendered cash to the pair after being told if he did, "you won't get hurt."

The man supposedly armed was Caucasian, about 20, 5 feet 11 and weighing 170 pounds. He had black hair, a full beard and wore a brown leather packet and brown trousers.

Open house slated at rehabilitation unit

An open house will be held by the State Department of Rehabilitation in Ontario on Friday from 2 to 5 p.m. to show its new office suite at 1006 W. Fourth St.

The department assists the physically or mentally handicapped to find employment. Counselors determine through interviews and examinations if a disabled person has a reasonable chance of becoming employed. The counselor and the disabled person together determine the preparation, medical schooling, training and tools, needed for a job.

The department directly assists employers in hiring handicapped persons by consultation such as work station modification and paying on-the-job training fees.

Stolen car shows up--as fiery heap

Pomona firemen say a stolen 1951 model sedan was set on fire Wednesday night after it was left at a vacant apartment at 1274 S. Gordon St.

The car, belonging to Gary Serna, 1483 W. 11th St., Pomona was declared a total loss from the fire. Firemen said the car had been stolen from the parking lot at the Pomona library earlier in the day.

The tires from the car had been removed before it was set on fire. Firemen said the fire also damaged the carport where the car was parked.

Flare explodes in hand; man burned

A La Puente man was burned when a naval parachute flare he found in a trash can in the Covina area exploded in his hand Wednesday.

Stuart Duff, 18, 564 Balham Ave., was treated for burns on his left hand at Covina Inter-Community Hospital and released.

He told sheriff's deputies that he found the flare while emptying trash into a container on the parking lot at 5041 N. Citrus Ave., and was examining it when it exploded. Arson detail officers said that only the fuse went off and that incendiary material inside the flare had been removed by someone, apparently before the flare was tossed into the trash.

THOMAS F. NUSS

Nuss expected to don judge's robe on Jan. 1

Attorney Thomas F. Nuss, appointed Wednesday to the Pomona Municipal Court bench by Gov. Ronald Reagan, is expected to begin his duties as the court's third judge around Jan. 1.

Nuss, a member of the Pomona law firm of Moran, Nuss and Jager, was named to fill the vacancy created 10 months ago by then presiding Judge Houston A. Snidow.

Nuss, 42-year-old former mayor of San Dimas, has specialized in trial practice, both civil and criminal. He said he is looking forward to the judgeship with eagerness.

Citizen meeting called on city, school problems

A mass meeting of concerned Pomona citizens has been called for Saturday at the Palomares Community Center to discuss problems in schools, police relations and city administrative accountability.

The Pomona Valley chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Sacred Heart Church, the Christian Community Center and the Pomona Valley Education Center are sponsoring the meeting to begin at 10 a.m.

Nancy Lopez, an organizer of the meeting, requests that "all parents and concerned citizens come to hear and be heard. Our community is besieged with problems in the areas of the schools, police relations, and city administrative accountability. We must face and deal with them now."

Persons wishing additional information may call 621-2427.

Bicyclist hurt in collision with car

A young woman riding a bicycle was injured in Pomona Wednesday evening when her bike and a car collided in Towne Avenue at Ivory Lane.

Betty Lou Karns, 23, 864 Lincoln Ave., Pomona, was treated for facial and arm injuries at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and released. The driver of the car was Deborah R. Ralston, 19, 2535 Yorkshire Way, Pomona.

Police reported the bike had no lights.

2 share presidency

Pomona College seniors Michael Caggiano, and Lawrence "Doug" Johnson have been elected to serve jointly as co-president of the Associated Students of Pomona College for the 1974-75 academic year.

Caggiano of Upper Montclair, N.J., is a government major.

Johnson of Yellow Springs, Ohio, is a history major.

Nixon had back to wall with Dean's desertion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Complaining bitterly that John N. Mitchell was sole beneficiary of the Watergate cover-up, Richard M. Nixon began in the waning days of April, 1973, to map his fight against probable impeachment proceedings.

According to two previously secret White House tapes made public today in federal court, Nixon began mapping his last-ditch defense upon learning John W. Dean III had broken ranks and gone to the prosecutors.

"Don't know what the son-of-a-bitch is going to say," Nixon told John D. Ehrlichman, on April 19, 1973.

"I don't know what you do with the Dean (unintelligible). He's obviously very upset. He's just lashing out. Goddamn it, I don't know what we've been told. I just don't know, John. Frankly I'm just at a loss. That goddamn Dean."

In a second tape played today, Nixon worried that Dean also was taping their converstions.

"I just wonder if the son of a bitch had a recorder on him," Nixon told Ehrlichman and White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman on April 25, 1973. Nixon referred to a meeting in which Dean had warned him of a cancer growing on the presidency.

Later in the same tape, Ehrlichman told Nixon, "I think it's entirely conceivable that if Dean is totally out of control and that if matters are not handled adroitly that you could get a resolution of impeachment...on the ground that you committed a crime."

Ehrlichman suggested Nixon immediately listen to his tapes to determine exactly what he and Dean discussed during February and March, 1973, so the President could "analyze how big a threat there is."

"You better damn sure know what your hole card is," Ehrlichman said.

"That's right ... I agree," Nixon replied.

The tapes were played at the cover-up trial of Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell and two other former Nixon aides.

His tone pensive, Nixon said "we generally are hurting ourselves in this case. But God almighty, we weren't protecting the White House now, right?"

"That's correct," Ehrlichman replied.

"We weren't protecting that, we're protecting John Mitchell," Nixon said, almost spitting out the name of his friend, former campaign manager and attorney general.

Just five days before, Mitchell had rejected an overture from Ehrlichman —on Nixon's orders —that he take full blame for the Watergate scandal.

"In the first instance we were protecting your re-election in a sense," Ehrlichman said. "We didn't know what from."

"That's right," Nixon agreed. "Afterwards, though, this cover-up business was pure Mitchell."

In tapes played at court Wednesday, Nixon realized on Palm Sunday, 1973, that the unraveling of the cover-up periled his presidency.

"What in the name of Christ is this all about?" he asked John D. Ehrlichman in some bewilderment near midnight on April 14 last year.

But the President quickly answered his own question: "Well, what it involves, of course, we have to be fair, it involves, uh, the highest..."

"The king of the mountain," Ehrlichman suggested.

"The king of the mountain," Nixon agreed softly.

Those words were missing when Nixon, claiming to tell the full Watergate story for once and for all, released transcripts of his secret tapes last April.

But they were there for the jury to hear Wednesday at the cover-up trial of five former Nixon aides.

For John W. Dean, the fall from power and grace was swift: from White House hero to goat overnight and all due to Watergate.

From the time of the Watergate bugging in June of 1972 until it reached scandal proportions in the spring of 1973, Dean as White House counsel had been all over the case —keeping his fingers in the dike, as Richard Nixon once put it, whenever leaks started to spring.

But when Dean informed the President on April 15 last year he had started cooperating with the prosecutors, his image and status plummeted at once.

By the next day, Nixon was saying that Dean had "decided to save his ass" and would be fired.

"If he, if he, uh, he gets a cop out he's gonna, he's gonna be dead...," Nixon said in a White House tape played at the Watergate cover-up trial on Wednesday.

"You can't have him around here with the kind of stuff he's going to cop out about."

But it was H.R. Haldeman, the White House chief of staff now among the five men on trial, who took Dean's defection the hardest.

"I must admit the guy has really turned into an unbelievable disaster for us...," Haldeman said with some bitterness on April 17, while admitting Dean was "not un-American and anti-Nixon."

"He busted his ass trying to work this out, and it wore him to a frazzle, and I think it probably wore him past the point of rationality.

"I think he may now be in, in a mental state that's causing him to do things that, that ah, when he sobers up, he's going to be very disturbed about with himself."

Arafat holds secret talks in face of Israel threat

By United Press International

Arab guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat summoned his top aides today for secret talks aimed at deciding how to blunt Israel's threatened "war on terror."

Guerrilla officials in Beirut said Arafat would meet with the Palestine Liberation Organization's 13-man executive committee, but refused to say whether the talks would take place in Lebanon or Syria.

The officials said the committee might order such defensive measures as the building of air raid shelters and increased security at camps housing Palestinian refugees.

Arafat arrived in Beirut late Wednesday and met with his military staff to discuss Israel's vow to hunt down "the terrorists in all corners of this land until the last one of them is eliminated."

The Israeli government threatened this week to mobilize "manpower, materials and methods...in their entirety and without hesitation for the war on terror."

The warning followed an Arab guerrilla raid Tuesday against the Israeli town of Beit Shean. Four Israelis and three guerrillas were slain. Israel has generally launched reprisals for such guerrilla raids.

A Soviet cruiser, destroyer and submarine steamed into Syria's Mediterranean port of Latakia Wedneday for what the Damascus government said was a six-day "official friendly visit."

Israel's national radio said Wednesday Israeli troops are still on alert along the Golan Heights despite U.N. reports of decreased tension along the truce line with Syria.

The alert began Friday with a partial mobilization of troops in response to what Israel said were increased Syrian troop movements.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said Wednesday "war is possible but not inevitable" in the Middle East and U.S.-Soviet detente must extend to the region.

Speaking three days before President Ford's summit talks with Communist leader Leonid Brezhnev in the Soviet port of Vladivostok, Allon said the Arab-Israeli situation is "very bad, very difficult."

Two airmen convicted in torture slaying of 3 get death sentence

FARMINGTON, Utah (UPI) — Two young airmen convicted of the torture-murder of three persons during a record store holdup in April were sentenced to death Wednesday. Under Utah law, they have the choice of being hanged or shot by a firing squad.

The victims, all customers or store employes, were tied, forced to drink drain cleaner and then each shot in the head. Two persons survived, but one was blinded and paralyzed and the other had a ball point pen kicked into his ear.

"I ask that you discuss (with your clients) the rather unpleasant option set out in the statute," District Court Judge John F. Wahlquist told defense lawyers for Dale S. Pierre, 21, and William A. Andrews, 20, Wednesday night.

The same jury last Saturday convicted both men of murder in the robbery, torture and murder episode in an Ogden, Utah, stereo shop April 22.

Laura Sword, the mother of an 18-year-old girl killed in the attack, sobbed with relief when the death sentence was read and said she would have lost faith in the judicial system if it had been anything less.

"All could think of is that they didn't give my daughter a chance," she said. "She pleaded for her life."

Utah's last execution took place in 1960.

Wahlquist set Nov. 27 for formal imposition of sentence for the two Hill Air Force Base, Utah, enlisted men. The execution date will be set at that time.

Orren W. Walker Jr., who survived the ordeal which resulted in the death of his 20-year-old son, identified Pierre and Andrews as the robbers, and Pierre as the man who shot the five victims in the head.

Walker told the 11-man, one-woman jury he was tied hand and foot, forced to drink drain cleaner, shot in the head, and choked. He survived by playing dead. Finally, he said, Pierre felt his pulse, determined he was still alive, and kicked a plastic pen five inches into his ear.

Pierre, who comes from the Caribbean island of Trinidad, and Andrews, of Jonesboro, La., were convicted of killing Sherry Michelle Ansley, 18, Stanley O. Walker, 20, and Mrs. Byron Naisbitt, 52, during the $24,000 holdup.

Mrs. Naisbitt's 17-year-old son Courtney lived, but remains blind, paralyzed and unable to remember the night of April 22.

Walker's 20-year-old son Stanley was killed, along with 52-year-old Carol Naisbitt and 18-year-old Sherry Michelle Ansley.

The elder Walker, during two days of emotional testimony, detailed how Miss Ansley beseeched the killer to let her live before she was raped and then shot through the head.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

She's a 'bombshell'

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The "Tidal Basin Bombshell" doesn't care for her new nickname but sees nothing wrong with taking advantage of the publicity resulting from a Washington incident involving Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark.

Stripper Fanne Foxe, also known as the "Argentine firecracker," told a reporter Wednesday that the new nickname "is sort of funny, and I don't like it."

Miss Foxe, whose real name is Annabel Battistella, is appearing for two weeks at Boston's Pilgrim Theatre, a Burlesque house in the "Combat Zone," where she gets $3,000 a week.

Choice of Marines

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Marine Corps Wednesday named actor Dennis Weaver national chairman of its annual Toys for Tots program, which collects toys for underprivileged children.

All in fun

WASHINGTON (UPI) — They called him "skinflint" and "pinchpenny," but retiring Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, whose career has been devoted to holding down congressional spending, knew it was all in fun.

Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., told Gross' colleagues at the Washington Press Club farewell ceremony Wednesday that in all his years of acquaintance with Gross "I don't know that he has ever spent over 85 cents."

Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., told osed a book about Gross to be called "Nitpicking and Pennypinching in Your Spare Time for Fun and Profit."

Washington Press Club President Ronald Sarro presented Gross 30 uncirculated pennies to pinch and other gifts to honor his cost-cutting ways.

Gross, one of the most vociferous critics of wasteful spending in government, voluntarily retired this year after 25 years in Congress.

On Dartmouth staff

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retiring Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., one of Richard Nixon's long-time friends, will teach a course at Dartmouth College next spring on "what makes Congress tick."

Cotton, sworn in with Nixon as a freshman congressman in 1947, said he was asked by Dartmouth to present "a picture of the practical side of Washington."

Cotton, 74, retires at the end of his term in January after 28 years in Congress, 20 of them as senator.

Chairman of board

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Financier Bernie Cornfeld has become chairman of the board of a real estate development firm operating in Arizona and Nebraska, it was announced Wednesday.

Cornfeld built Investors Overseas Service into a multimillion-dollar conglomerate and was pushed out in a takeover by Robert Vesco, now a fugitive in Costa Rica charged by U.S. officials with making an illegal donation to former President Richard Nixon's re-election campaign.

Cornfeld was jailed for 11 months in Switzerland, but the fraud charges against him were dropped and he returned to the United States and has been living in a mansion in Beverly Hills, Calif.

Democrats adopt 7-point program to save economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democrats today adopted a seven-point economic program for consideration by the new Congress which calls for wage-price controls "as a last resort."

Although the resolution was approved unanimously, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said it did not commit any Democrat in the 94th Congress to vote for a program of controls.

"The key word is 'consider'," he said.

Mansfield ruled out action in the remaining five or six weeks of the 93rd Congress on the nation's economic situation. He said it was too late to consider many new initiatives.

The Democratic program, adopted in a closed party caucus, calls for providing public jobs for the unemployed, reviving the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to aid ailing big businesses, allocating credit to help home buyers, allocating "and, if need be" rationing gasoline and other forms of energy, curbing excess profits and the flow of capital abroad, and holding federal spending in check.

The proposal on controls calls for "a system under which, when needed as a last resort, effective controls can be imposed to encompass prices, wages, rents and profits and high interest rates."

Scali defends Israel's right to exist as a nation

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador John Scali today defended the right of Israel to exist as a sovereign nation and said Palestinian interests can be served better through negotiations than through "new resolutions or dramatic parliamentary maneuvers" in the United Nations.

Scali did not make clear in a speech to the General Assembly whether Washington favored a voice for the Palestine Liberation Organization in the Middle East peace talks at Geneva as demanded by the Soviet Union and the Arab world. But without mentioning the PLO he condemned its terrorist actions.

He also did not mention the PLO's demand for self-determination, independence and the right of 1.5 million Palestinians to return to an all-embracing Moslem-Jewish-Christian Palestine that Israel has said would mean the destruction of the Jewish state.

Southlander hero of 747 jet crash

A steward from Newport Beach, one of three Southland survivors on the jumbo jet which crashed at Nairobi, Kenya, Wednesday, was hailed a hero today.

Tom Scott was praised by the 98 passengers who survived the crash for his effort to get them off the plane safely. Fifty-nine others perished when the Lufthansa Boeing 747 burned at the airport just after takeoff.

Passengers described to reporters today how Scott helped free them from the wreckage just before the plane exploded.

Mrs. Renate Kahn of Dallas, who was traveling with her husband and daughter, said that "If it weren't for him (Scott) we'd all be dead now."

Scott was one of two crew members from the Southland. The other was Susan Mary Seaholm of Redondo Beach, a stewardess. The third Californian on the plane was Salome Zeiss of Pasadena.

Investigators ruled out sabotage in the crash, but said it might take weeks to explore all the possibilities.

Asked if sabotage could be ruled out in the disaster, Werner Utter, chief pilot of Lufthansa said: "Yes sir." Asked why he could so defintely exclude the possibility, he said: "No comment."

The giant plane with 157 persons aboard apparently lost power seconds after take-off for Johannesburg Wednesday and fell tail first from an altitude of 100 to 150 feet onto a muddy field and burst into flames. Some survivors thought the pilot was trying an emergency landing and that the tail hit a hummock.

Airline spokesmen said 98 persons managed to crawl from the wreckage and escape seconds before the fuel tanks exploded. Many suffered only scratches and bruises. Survivors praised the crew for getting them out so swiftly.

Two Americans were reported killed in the crash but another 14 survived.

A planeload of Lufthansa and West German investigators flew into Kenya today to help local authorities sift through the wreckage of the giant blue yellow and silver airliner which blew up in a muddy field at the end of the runway.

A team from Boeing, the makers of the jumbo jet, also began arriving.

The five-story tall plane hit the ground, snapping off with a great splintering crash. The plane twisted in an 180-degree arc and exploded in flames.

Pilot Christian Krack said he "was taking off normally. The plane broke up and was suddenly going down. I don't know what happened."

Reagan denies UC decline

DAVIS (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan Wednesday night denied that the University of California had been "downgraded" during the eight years of his administration.

In a question-and-answer session with about 1,200 students at the University of California campus here, Reagan was told by one questioner — apparently a professor—that UC teacher salaries had failed to keep pace with wage increases of other state employes.

The questioner also asserted that UC had been "downgraded" under the Reagan administration, but the governor disagreed.

"It is still one of the finest educational institutions in the world," Reagan replied crisply. "It has not been downgraded in the last eight years."

Reagan said the university in the last eight years "has had double the percentage increase (in financial support) that has been given to any other department of state government."

He added UC has received a 106 per cent increase in state funding during his administration while its enrollment has risen 43 per cent.

It was Reagan's second appearance at a UC campus since 1969 when there was student turmoil. The other appearance occurred last spring at the Davis campus.

The governor, who leaves office in January, was generally warmly applauded by the students Wednesday night and encountered only a few heckles and boos and some derisive laughter when he explained his opposition to legalization of marijuana.

Choice of UC president up to groups

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — Students, faculty and alumni from the University of California will have a hand in selecting the next UC president to succeed Charles J. Hitch, who will retire next June 30.

Representatives from all groups attended the first meeting of the presidential search committee Wednesday, following a regular meeting of the UC Board of Regents.

Larry Miles, chairman of the UC Student Body Presidents Council, said the students will be allowed to help determine the criteria to be used in selecting a new president, submit names of candidates and "critique the handful of finalists."

Miles, who is undergraduate student body president at UCLA, said the student participation is "a major breakthrough."

"We'll be much more a part of the process than we've ever been before," he said. He added, however, that the student body presidents are "somewhat disappointed" that the search committee does not include an ex-officio student member.

Miles, a senior political science major, said the regents will be the only ones allowed in the room when the final decision is made.

The chairman of the statewide Academic Council, Alexei A. Maradudin, representing the faculty, said all 8,000 Academic Senate members on the nine UC campuses will be asked to submit names of presidential candidates.

These names will then be screened by a 12-member committee before being passed on to the regents' search committee.

Committee clears mass transit bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An intense lobbying crusade by big-city mayors and the administration has pushed a $11.8 billion mass transit aid bill up to its last hurdle, a committee jurisdictional dispute in the House.

The House Rules Committee, which earlier balked at approving the bill because of a dispute between the House Public Works and Banking Committees, cleared the six-year measure Wednesday for House floor debate.

"I think it's time for the Rules Committee to stop taking a beating on mass transit," said Rules chairman Ray Madden, D-Ind. The Rules Committee generally decides which bills the House can consider and under what rules.

The Senate passed the bill 66-17 Tuesday, and President Ford strongly favors it, leaving only the jurisdictional dispute in the way.

"It will be a squeaker," predicted one House staff member of the eventual House vote, which could come within the next few days.

The bill would grant $7.8 billion in construction and improvement funds, to be doled out on a case-by-case basis.

But the most important section to financially starved city transit systems is a $4 billion fund which can be used at local option either for improvements or for operating subsidies.

Many cities need the operating funds to prevent fare rises or service cutbacks. This money would be distributed on a formula based on population and population density.

Construction grants would be made on an 80-20 federal matching basis, and operating grants on a 50-50 matching basis.

Amtrak chief to quit; it was a rough trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Roger Lewis, Amtrak's only president through the faltering three and a half year revival of the passenger train, will resign as soon as a successor can be found.

Lewis told the Amtrak board of directors Wednesday he would quit as president and chief executive officer, ending all contact with the day-to-day operations of the national passenger train network. He will remain a member of the board.

He cited "personal reasons" for his decision.

Caught between a White House that wanted to phase out the passenger train and a Congress that wanted vast expansion, Lewis was cast as villain to advocates of public passenger trains because of his cautious approach to expansion.

Critics said Lewis never believed the passenger train could be saved until the energy crisis caused an avalanche of new passengers. By then it was too late to order new equipment and revise operations to handle them.

Supporters, fewer in number, countered that Lewis' problems were often not of his own making and that he sometimes made "near courageous" stands to prevent both railroads and the government from downgrading his trains.

Thousands plying Brown for jobs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gov.-elect Edmund G. Brown Jr. reports he is being offered plenty of help after he takes office.

He told newsmen Tuesday there have been "literally thousands" of applications for the 1,900 state jobs he will fill when he succeeds Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"They're calling everybody — my father, the Kellys and anyone else they can think of who they believe can get to me," Brown added. The Kellys are his sister and brother-in law.

To pick from among the applicants, Brown said he was organizing a 30-member screening committee but added that he would make the final decisions himself.

Brown reported receiving excellent cooperation from Reagan and the out-going governor's assistants.

"They've all been extremely cordial and helpful," he said.

The governor-elect was in San Francisco to address the American Life Insurance Associations, telling its members that the nation's economy isn't healthy.

Brown said the "business community is going to have a voice" in his administration.

"I want your ideas and those competing with you will have a voice too," he said.

L.A. puts up funds in offshore oil fight

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The City Council put up $15,000 to finance a study aimed at combating federal government leasing of offshore drilling sites.

The allocation was unanimously approved by the council to find a National Academy of Sciences evaluation of the Department of Interior's environmental impact statement concerning oil leases off the Southern California coast.

Mayor Tom Bradley requested the appropriation last week after an ad hoc meeting with local governmental representatives to coordinate opposition to the federal government offshore drilling proposal.

The council appropriation is contingent, however, upon contributions from other local Southern California governments. Total cost of the study is estimated between $45,000 and $60,000.

The group is first seeking a postponement of the scheduled Dec. 2-3 public hearing on the environmental impact statement for the offshore drilling.

If the delay is not granted, Los Angeles City Attorney Burt Pines said, court action would be taken to win postponements on grounds that there was insufficient time to study the 1,300-page document.

Chief of county's probation dept. fired

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The county's chief probation officer, Kenneth E. Kirkpatrick, was fired Tuesday by a unanimous vote of the Board of Supervisors.

Kirkpatrick, 59, who headed the probation department, its juvenile halls and a staff of 4,200, held the $37,500-a-year post for six years. He has been in the county government for 34 years.

The vote followed a monthslong controversy over alleged mismanagement of his department and poor conditions in the juvenile halls.

Four of the five supervisors were present for Tuesday's action. However, Supervisor Ernest E. Debs, who was in Washington, said he would join in the motion to fire if Kirkpatrick refused an offer for a transfer to another post.

The former probation chief, who has 10 days to appeal, said he intends to fight the dismissal. He refused a transfer to a slightly higher-paying post.

The Board of Supervisors' three-page letter firing Kirkpatrick charged him with failing to take corrective action to prevent juveniles from becoming repeated offenders, failing to communicate with both the supervisors and police and other agencies, failing to train personnel effectively, test probationers properly for narcotics or provide adequate treatment and housing for violent, emotionally disturbed juveniles.

Kirkpatrick's attorney, John R. Shriner, said the carges are without foundation and he blamed the failings on the supervisors themselves, saying they did nothing to improve juvenile facilities.

Orr tops in exam for County COA

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — State Finance Director Verne Orr placed ahead of two other candidates Tuesday in a civil service exam for the position of county chief administrative officer.

Orr, 57, placed ahead of County Personnel Director Gordon I. Nesvig and acting Administrative Officer Harry Hufford in contention for the $49,500-a-year position.

Atmosphere in England: deep gloom

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In London, the posh nightclubs are in the midst of a boom but among the people the atmosphere is one of gloom.

The mood is the product of a balance-of-payment deficit of around $1 billion per month, of a philosophy which says better spend it today because tomorrow it may be worth nothing, of uncertainty whether the coming winter is to see a repetition of last year's heatless and darkened homes and of an official warning from Prime Minister Harold Wilson that Britain faces its greatest crisis since the end of the World War II.

Nor were spirits raised by the new budget presented on Nov. 12 by Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey, who warned it only was the beginning of "painful and disagreeable" steps contemplated by the Labor government in its efforts to restore Britain to economic health.

It tripled the tax on gasoline which led immediately to long lines of motorists at gasoline pumps reminiscent of a year ago. Its efforts to halt mounting British unemployment admittedly would contribute modestly to inflation already running at about 20 per cent.

But was not the soak-the-rich budget which generally had been expected. It granted a modest increase to pensioners but its greatest thrust was toward a boost in British exports and productivity.

It eased up on taxes against paper profits due to inflation, offered some relief from price controls and otherwise relaxed some of the burdens which had driven many British companies to the verge of bankruptcy.

It pleased no one.

The relief to industry was about half that had been asked.

A Liberal party spokesman termed it an invitation to trade unions to bid for higher wages.

Conservative party leader Edward Heath called it "disgraceful."

In the short run a great deal would depend upon Britain's unpredictable labor unions and whether they would stick to their contract with the Labor government to hold wage demands to modest limits.

It already had been broken by an unauthorized strike of some 1,800 workers in two plants of the Ford Motor Company last October. The strike, affecting more than 50,000 workers, not only violated the union's pact with the government limiting wage increases to once a year, but also its contract with the company reached only seven months earlier.

Even as Britons attempted to assess the effects of the government's new budget, another crisis loomed.

In an attempt to prevent threatened shortages in the coming winter, the government-owned National Coal board had offered coal miners a "productivity agreement" under which miners would receive a bonus of up to $29 a week for increased production up to a certain target.

A year ago British miners won increases averaging more than 27 per cent.

Militants this year are demanding another $75 weekly.

Police arrest drunk, but let his puma alone

LONDON (UPI) — John Goodman took his Butch along for company when he went for a quiet lunchtime drink recently at the Barn House pub.

Once inside the 12-month-old mountain lion went wild.

Landlady Geraldine Carraso said the puma leaped over chairs and tables, knocked ashtrays and glasses all over the bar, and scratched a customer's gloved hand.

It took Goodman 15 minutes to persuade Butch out of the pub and into his car, where it immediately began tearing out the upholstery.

Police arrived and charged Goodman with drunkenness. But rather than tangle with Butch, they towed Goodman's car to the police station with the cat locked inside.

Paint dispute leaves 2 dead

LA JOLLA (UPI) — A dispute over a house painting job Monday resulted in the deaths of the painter and the woman in whose home he was working.

Police said the painter, 62-year-old Leroy Kellogg of El Cajon, shot Mrs. Caroline Homer, 47, in the head with a pistol, and then shot himself.

Mrs. Homer's husband, Robert, then struggled with the wounded man for a second pistol the painter had, and Kellogg was shot again.

W. Virginia books controversy

He's the man in the middle

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — He has had little rest for three months. His telephones ring day and night. He has been taunted, threatened, arrested and made the victim of a mock funeral.

"I'm afraid to send my children to school," a woman caller tells him.

"You're responsible for those awful books," says another.

Through it all, Dr. Kenneth Underwood, the Indiana-born superintendent of Kanawha County's schools, has kept his cool.

"It's one of the things I've been proudest of," said School Board spokesman Mike Bell. "Dr. Underwood and everybody here has had time to talk to everyone. Nobody has been turned away.

"He spent days just talking with the antibook people."

Underwood, 46, became known weeks ago as the man in the middle of the dispute over controversial new language arts textbooks approved this year for the county's 121 schools. The books contain passages that some believe to be antiAmerican and against religion.

Underwood came here from Fargo, N. D., 2½ years ago to take the $32,000-a-year superintendent's job, saying he wanted to help "individualize" the curriculum to suit the needs of every pupil.

He believes the books are excellent and provide the county's 45,000 school children with a broad selection of materials from which to get an accurate picture of America.

In one of the few parades in support of the textbooks, Underwood marched at the head of the ranks helping carry a sign saying "Learning is a journey—not a destination."

A heckler yelled, "a journey to hell!"

At one of the numerous parades by book protesters, six men lugged a black wood coffin labeled "Underwood is Dead."

For a while during the book battle, Underwood moved his family to temporary quarters, fearing for the safety of his wife and children who were threatened by anonymous telephone callers.

"I wonder," he said then, "when people tell me to burn books whether we live in Nazi Germany."

He later brought his family back home and said, "I have faith in the Democratic process. It will work out."

Last week, while Underwood met with antibook leaders in a church, he was served with a warrant charging him with contributing to the delinquency of children by allowing them to read immoral and anti-American books.

Underwood went to court, posted $500 bond and had a hearing set for this Friday, along with the four school board members who approved the books and who also were named in warrants obtained by protesters.

"I welcome the opportunity to take this issue to court," the superintendent said. "That is where it belongs. And if I must be arrested for the first time in my life, what better place than in church?"

Six charged with smuggling heroin worth $117 million

NEW YORK (UPI) — Forty-six suspects, most of them Chinese, Wednesday were charged with smuggling $117 million worth of heroin and opium into the United States and Canada from Bankok, Singapore and Hong Kong.

Five federal grand jury indictments unsealed in two U.S district courts named 71 persons, 25 of whom were cited as unindicted coconspirators. The indictments, filed in September, remained sealed until Wednesday to allow the government time to complete extradition for some of the defendants.

The indictments allege that 300 pounds of heroin and 100 pounds of opium were smuggled into North America and distributed throughout the continent from 1970 to 1972.

Drug Enforcement Administrator John R. Bartels Jr. in Washington estimated the street value of the heroin at $117.5 million. He said the value of the opium could not be estimated because it is used in different forms.

The international smuggling operation involved New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver, as well as cities in Japan, the Philippines, Thailand and Hong Kong.

The indictments said the opium and heroin was grown in Thailand, moved to Hong Kong, and brought to the United States and Canada by Scandinavian seamen who regularly traveled the route.

An investigation begun in this country was aided by cooperation of Thailand police and the Hong Kong Royal Police, Bartels said. He said those arrested abroad were being charged with violating laws of their own countries but also may be subject to extradition to the United States for prosecution under U.S. laws.

U.S. Attorney Paul Curran said the indictments represent the initial results of a continuing major international effort to break up the heroin and opium trade from southeast Asia

DEA agents, the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police have made a coordinated series of arrests since last Tuesday night in New York, San Francisco and Vancouver, B.C., Bartels said.

State welfare rolls continue to shrink

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's welfare rolls continue to shrink despite rising unemployment and the troubled economy, according to the Department of Benefit Payments.

During the first nine months of the year—from January through September—the number of persons receiving welfare directly from the state dropped 19,091 to a total of 1.33 million persons, department figures showed Tuesday.

The seasonally adjust unemployment râte in California rose from 7.3 to 8.2 per cent during the same period.

The state's welfare caseload has been dropping, with seasonal fluctuations since march 1971 when the high point was 1.67 million recipients. Gov. Ronald Reagan began his overhaul of the welfare system shortly after that time.

The totals do not include welfare programs for the aged, blind and disabled, which currently are administered by the federal governor. County general relief programs also are not counted.

A department spokesman offered several reasons for continuing welfare declines at a time when more and more Californians are out of work.

Extensions to unemployment insurance benefits, which presently allow workers to collect for 39 weeks rather than the usual 26 weeks, have kept the rolls from growing, he said.

At the same time, the spokesman said, stricter welfare reporting requirements and greater emphasis on getting absent fathers to support their welfare children have steadily reduced the caseload.

The department has projected that the declines will taper off and "bottom out" in the coming months.

Mugged victim gets last laugh

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It won't mend Mrs. Hollis Sharpe's broken arm, but she takes comfort in imagining the expression on the face of the man who mugged her, when he reached into her shopping bag to extract his loot.

The mugger jumped from a car, grabbed her, broke her arm and fled with the plastic bag Wednesday night.

Mrs. Sharpe was walking her dog, a miniature poodle, when the thief struck.

As is her habit, she carries the bag to clean up after her dog, collecting his messes from lawns and sidewalks. "You have to think of your neighbors," she says.

That was the bag the mugger got. "I only wish there had been a little more in the bag," she lamented.

Study launched to find new site for airport

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

The search for an airport site to serve the future aviation needs of residents in San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange counties was launched Wednesday with the selection of a consulting team.

A multi-phase airport study, estimated to cost $750,000, will be done jointly by the firms of Daniel, Mann, Johnson and Mendenhall of Los Angeles; Boeing Aerosystems International, Inc., Seattle; and Douglas Aircraft Co., Long Beach.

Selections of the firms was made by the Chino Hills Airport Complex, Inc., a nonprofit group, and then "consented to" Wednesday at the Chino library by the Inter-County Airport Authority, established by the cities of Chino and Stanton as an independent agency to determine future airport needs.

The Chino Hills Airport Complex, Inc., has the responsibility both for selecting and employing the consulting firms under terms of its contract with the authority, said officials.

"The firms are expected to start their studies immediately, and we hope to have the first phase completed within 60 to 90 days," said Francis Fox, project director. "This will be an overview of how the study will be done. And this will go to the Federal Aviation Administration in conjunction with an application for a planning grant."

The Chino Hills Airport Complex, Inc., will seek a federal grant to pay two-thirds the study cost, said Fox. "For the other third, there is the possibility of state funds and also money from grants, loans and foundations."

But no city funds wil lbe involved, he stressed. Fox also reported he didn't know if any money from the Chino Hills Airport Complex, Inc., would be used.

"When completed, the study will be the most complete and comprehensive analysis of the area's aviation needs and airport sites ever undertaken," said Fox.

The consulting team will carry out a three-phase study consisting of study design, site selection and the airport master plan.

The study design phase will identify the major aviation issues, method of solving problem areas and financial requirements, he added.

The site selection phase will involve demonstrating the public need for increased convenient air carrier service and, if the need can be demonstrated, the selection of the best site for a medium hub airport to meet forecasted public demands.

A major share of the master planning effort will be an expansion in the site selection phase. Alternatives range from "do nothing" to detailed examination of all practical sites.

The total study could take from 18 months to two years, said Fox. It will include some existing studies.

The study will be limited to southern San Bernardino County, western Riverside County and all of Orange County. And both existing airports and new sites will be examined, he added.

In a report to the authority, officials noted the primary factors to be considered in site evaluations are public convenience and accessibility, existing or potential urban encroachment, environmental impacts, economic viability and airspace for maximum safety of operations.

Vital to the site selection task will be the gathering of sufficient data on all sites to make comparisons of environmental compatability, they added.

The airport master plan phase will follow approval of the site selected by the FAA and other appropriate state, regional and local subdivisions of government. It will include a detailed layout of runways, taxiways, terminal and cargo areas, access highways and all facilities necessary for a medium hub airport.

In his discussion, Fox said he believed the new airport should be more of a "medium hub" facility about the existing size of Ontario International Airport and not a "major hub" such as Los Angeles International Airport.

Board says teachers must continue campus control

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR

Mrs. Ronald Reagan participated in Pacific State Hospital's seventh annual Foster Grandparent Recognition Day Wednesday. In her fifth visit to the Pomona hospital for mentally retarded persons, the state's first lady gave certificates of recognition to participants in the foster grandparent program.

Rejects idea of hiring proctors for patrol duty

Proposals for personnel and equipment to meet campus control needs at five high schools were rejected and sent back to the individual schools by the Chaffey school board Wednesday night.

Teachers and administrators at Chaffey High School and Ontario High School have been taking supervision responsibilities this year on a temporary basis, and recommendations for more permanent campus control provisions were made to the board by each individual school.

The total cost of the combined campus supervision plans was reportedly between $36,039 and $46,855 depending on which one of three plans was accepted. No plan was accepted.

Robert G. Bonde, board member, led the discussion saying, "When I heard that Chaffey High was involved in providing involvement by teachers in day to day, out of classroom monitoring I was pleased. In my teaching experience I gained as much as the kids did from outside the classroom 1-to-1 supervisory activities.

"This report asks for more aides and proctors. I'm not happy with it."

Some board members reported on visiting the various high school campuses in the district recently. Each noted the improvement in discipline and the fact that students were, in fact, in classrooms, not in the parking lots or other off-limits areas. They felt that the teachers were doing an excellent job of supervision and that the students were responding favorably to the discipline.

Members of the administration of each school said that while the teachers were succeeding with campus control on a temporary basis, it was not advisable to continue without more supportive personnel.

It was pointed out that teachers work a six-period day, teaching five periods and using the sixth period for preparation, counseling with students and meeting with those students involved in individual studies programs. These activities are sacrificed when teachers spend the sixth period in supervision, it was noted.

Further, administrators of the schools pointed out that there are a number of reasons why full-time proctors are recommended: much of the supervision problem is caused by strangers on campus and proctors, out on campus all day, every day, recognize students and strangers on sight; teachers by inclination and training are geared to the educational role more than the disciplinary role; and some teachers are temperamentally unfitted for the proctor role.

G.A. Chalfant, president of the board, pointed out that even if the board agreed to the plan for additional proctors and aides, the program would immediately be cut out as an economy move if the March tax override fails.

He requested that the administrators draw up an alternate set of plans, taking into account the possibility of economy moves in the spring.

It was generally agreed that a modified plan, that would be acceptable to the board, would involve some teacher supervision, perhaps on a rotating plan, with some additional supportive supervisory personnel added to the district.

Herb Ellenburg, director of Baldy View Regional Occupational Program, reported to the board and showed the board a brief film on the program's activities. He pointed out that in this third year of the program there are 1,925 students enrolled in 44 programs. The program is a five district decentralized effort to help students develop entry level skills through on the job training.

'Life is what you make it,' rabbi tells PTA audience

Rabbi Moshe Maggal advised approximately 150 persons at the annual Pomona Council PTA inspirational breakfast Wednesday that "life is what you make it — acres of hell or acres of happiness."

Rabbi Maggal, the guest speaker at the annual affair at Buffums Palomares Room, discussed ingredients essential to finding "Acres of Happiness," the title of a book he authored.

"The more happiness you give away, the more you receive in return," he commented. He asked that each individual search within himself in order to find the genuine depth of happiness.

Rabbi Maggal who is a native of Hungary and founder and president of the National Jewish Information Service filled his speech with parables and fables to illustrate various points. He applauded the free enterprise system in America, saying security is not a hand-out, but an earned product.

"When the oyster needs food, it opens up and food rushes in. When God made the eagle, He said the blue sky is the limit, go and build your nest on the mountain top. The eagle, not the oyster, is the emblem of America . . . Don't be afraid of anything. Nothing will hurt you," he said.

Oftentimes, a sick conscience prevents happiness, he continued. "When you talk about health and think healthy, you will be healthy. If you think and talk sick, you will be sick," he noted.

"We are sure that the 20th Century will solve all our problems. It has given us the greatest inventions in science and technology. But in the words of Albert Schweitzer, science by itself is blind, only if it is connected to the religion of the heart can we reach the mountain top.

"We must be both educated and civilized. And we must have morals and ethics in order to be civilized. Teach the children the joys of religion, how to be patriots. Without the love of their country, they will burn down the universities and the streets. Eventually they will burn down their kindergartens because they know how to use a match.

"Give them a stable home life. We have the finest homes in the world, but nobody is home. A woman once said 'I was born in a hospital, educated in college, lived in sororities, married in the church . . . my husband is at the golf course. Why do I need a home? All I need is a garage.' "

Drama students from Pomona High School, directed by student Bob Weiss, performed special excerpts from their upcoming production of "Godspell," the religious rock musical.

Committee chosen to plan for Yule parade on Dec. 7

A 13-member committee to plan and conduct the 22nd annual Pomona Christmas parade was named today by Ross Kolodge, parade chairman.

Those on the committee are Anne Shannon, who is in charge of the pre-parade reception and the post-parade party; Mike Haas, publicity; John Barsodi, formation; Pat MacDonald, dispersal; Don King, bands; Tom Wagner, floats; Dick Woody, special units.

Jim McJoynt, equestrian units; Jim Walker, cars and communications; Larry Gravette, show business celebrities; Don Darlington, political celebrities; Sam Russo, adviser; and Don Pitts, director.

The parade, set for Dec. 7 at 6 p.m. on Holt Avenue, is financed each year by the City of Pomona and coordinated by Pomona Jaycees. This year the city's subsidy is $3,000.

Kolodge said the parade will form at Huntington Boulevard and proceed east along Holt Avenue to Palomores Street.

This year's theme will be "Christmas Fantasy." Individuals and groups interested in participating are asked to contact the Jaycees office at 623-3016, or write Kolodge at P.O. Box 285, Pomona 91767.

Those planning on entertaining floats are asked to select ideas which reflect the theme.

Valley company enlarges plant

ITT Pomona Electronics has completed a 9,000 square-foot expansion wing at its plant at 1500 E. Ninth St. in Pomona.

The addition will be used as executive offices, conference room, drafting room, library and additional warehouse space, said Carl W. Musarra, general manager.

The Pomona facility now totals 34,000 square feet of manufacturing, assembly, office, stockroom and shipping space.

Founded in 1951, by Joseph J. and Carl Musarra, Pomona Electronics produces more than 300 products in the electronic test accessories field.

The firm maintains a nationwide network of dealer-representatives to serve industrial and government clients. The firm is represented in Europe by ITT Cannon Europe, a division of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp.

McVittie trying to set up 2 offices in area for public

Bill McVittie hopes to have two district offices to serve valley residents when he takes office Dec. 2 as assemblyman for the new 65th District.

Normally, each assemblyman is allowed only one district office. But McVittie, a Chino attorney, has asked for special permission to have offices in both Ontario and Pomona since his district includes sections of San Bernardino and Los Angeles counties.

He has rented office space in a new professional building at Sixth Street and Mountain Avenue in Ontario, across from the San Bernardino County complex.

"And we have talked to Mayor Ray Lepire to see if there is a possibility of renting office space in the Pomona City Hall," he added.

Both offices, he noted, would be near bus routes and close to city and county government facilities.

McVittie announced that Maurice Ayala, who served as his campaign coordinator, would continue as his administrative assistant and give direct assistance to residents within the district. "He has a great ability in dealing with people and their problems. Also, he has been a lifelong resident of the valley and knows many of the people in local and county governments," McVittie said.

As his executive secretary, McVittie will retain Jean Murillo who had served as secretary in his law office. She has a degree from Cal State Fullerton and is also bilingual, he added.

McVittie reported he is closing out his personal cases within his law firm and plans to turn over its operation to his two partners.

"I will not be able to practice on a sustained basis since I plan to be a full-time legislator," he added. "But I do plan to keep a financial interest in the firm so I will have something to return to."

Nonvoters will get last chance to stay on list

Residents who failed to vote in the Nov. 5 general elections will soon receive postal card notices that their voter registrations are being canceled.

Those whose addresses have not changed since the last time they voted may renew their registrations by signing the postcards and returning them to their registrars of voters.

Voters whose addresses have changed must reregister if they want to cast ballots again.

Leonard Pannish, registrar of voters in Los Angeles County, said his cards will be mailed out Dec. 15. William Clinton, San Bernardino County registrar, said his notices will go out a few days earlier.

'Friendship' with CHP cost woman $225.75

After paying a $225 repair bill to get her car's emission control device back in condition a San Gabriel woman has decided she can't afford a long term friendship with the California Highway Patrol.

When waved into a vehicle inspection lane recently on Towne Avenue in Pomona, officers cited her sedan for excessive emissions.

And when the motorist failed to have the car's engine repaired within the 14-day period, she mailed a letter of apology to the Claremont office blaming the delay on "something akin to the national debt."

"Enclosed is your violation notice together with a certificate of compliance so that you may be assured that my hydrocarbons are now in excellent shape. They should be — the little devils set me back $225.75, including my $5 coupon for a valve job.

"I did not intentionally exceed your compliance period, my checkbook did. It was really a pleasure meeting you fellows out there on Towne Avenue. However, I really can't afford any long term friendships with you people."

In a return letter, Capt. W. C. Jones, area commander, informed the motorist that her violation had been processed and invited her to stop at the office for her windshield sticker.

"I think you will agree that anyone who spends $225.75 to harness hydrocarbon devils is entitled to something free," he wrote.

In closing, Jones added: "Perhaps your letter wasn't intended as such but it was, in fact, a ray of sunshine. Thank you."

Making violence less attractive

Judge James Piatt's call Friday for the community to become involved in the fight against violent persons who seem to be moving increasingly against innocent persons these days should be heard by all.

Piatt, a long-time Pomona Valley resident, is deeply concerned with the effects of violent acts on the lives of residents. Obviously, he intends that his court should be a place where victims can be heard and protected.

While statistics on major crimes continue to climb here and elsewhere, perhaps the most disturbing incidents are those in which innocent citizens are intimidated, beaten and then threatened if they seek prosecution. Such victims, who have never had to face such violent behavior before, sometimes are reluctant to cooperate in the prosecution of the hoodlums. Witnesses also fear reprisal. Threatening telephone calls can be unnerving and sometimes victims decide to simply forget it.

By his statement, Judge Piatt seems to say that he understand this situation and intends to do his best to see that in Pomona Municipal Court, victims are encouraged to testify and will be protected.

With the sympathetic help of police and prompt and certain prosecution by the district attorney's office, perhaps more citizens will be encouraged to make such violent behavior less attractive to those who seem to enjoy it.

Extra benefits won't cure sick economy

The automobile industry is not in a recession, said a United Auto Workers official the other day. "It's in a depression."

The remark came on the heels of the layoff of 22,525 Chrysler employes and before the announcement by General Motors that it was closing three small car assembly plants. The industry-wide total of temporarily or permanently idled workers has passed 70,000 and continues to climb.

If the ripple effects of slashed automobile production have not yet developed into a tide sweeping through the economy—one of every seven jobs is connected with the fortunes of the auto industry in some way—and if panic has not set in among the unemployed workers and the communities dependent upon the auto companies' payrolls, the major reason is a system of company-paid supplemental unemployment benefits (SUB) won by the UAW back in the 1950s.

Combined with state unemployment compensation, SUB can give an experienced worker up to 95 per cent of his normal after-tax income for up to a year. For workers laid off since automobile sales began nosediving last winter, this has meant — so far — the difference between difficult times and real trouble, and for the country—so far—the difference between a recession and a full-scale depression.

What is becoming cause for concern, however, is the fact that nearly half the currently unemployed in the auto industry have already been off the job for some time, some were laid off as long ago as last January. These workers are nearing the end of their special layoff benefits, as well as state unemployment compensation.

As UAW vice president Irving Bluestone points out, "SUB was intended to meet the normal ups and down of the industry, not with a disaster."

He notes that the drain on the SUB fund at General Motors has reduced it from $245 million in October, 1973, to $102 million at the end of this October. Under the contract between the company and the union, as the money in the fund goes down, the duration of the benefits to the eligible employes is reduced.

President Ford has proposed three months of extra unemployment benefits for all workers whose eligibility run out, not just those in the auto industry, as well as a program of new public works jobs for the long-term unemployed.

But these are only palliatives for a sickness that lies at the very heart of a deeply distressed economy itself.

Food plan

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's challenge to the World Food Conference in Rome was received, as surely had been anticipated, with something less than high enthusiasm. More precisely, eliminate that "high".

Kissinger proposed a sort of global food bank to fight hunger, one to which all member nations would contribute. He promised U.S. leadership, but urged the nations represented to "confront the challenge, not each other."

The Secretary had not been off the podium an hour before speakers for these nations began confronting us, and other industrial nations as carrying the main, if not sole responsibility for providing food to the hungry of the world. They generally followed the lead of UN secretary-general Kurt Waldheim in his address opening the session.

The United States surely must do its share in helping the world's underfed. But as has been previously suggested, it should control the distribution of the contributions it makes. So should all nations who provide tangible help. Getting them to agree, however, will be one of the diplomatic tasks of the century.

Golden goose about plucked out

The Democrats have won a lot of votes and an economic mess that appears to be getting messier. The voters have won a gloomy future.

Presumably, we will opt for free spending and continuing inflation rather than tight money. Where will it end?

Italy and England, ahead of us in the game, are about out of scratch. France some years back, went through the wringer and knocked 3 zeroes off their currency. This would make a $300.00 a month pension just 30 cents. That golden goose, private enterprise, is about plucked out. England is again trying nationalization of business, unsuccessful as it has been. India, dependent on fertilizer for their food, has been able to get their fertilizer plants only to about 40 per cent of capacity.

The answer? Less government. When a greedy government takes all the profit from our greedy corporations, investors lose their enthusiasm. The oil producing countries with lots of ready cash are too adept at confiscation to have the tables turned by picking up the rare bargains offered by our stock market. Also, unfortunately, we are getting the government we pay for, badly gumming the wheels of progress. Paper, in quintuplet, gets costlier by the day.

We have a world of horrible examples, if we want to know which way to turn. — Ray Swanson, Pomona.

Quality education

On Nov. 12, Mrs. C. I. wrote a letter to the Progress-Bulletin trying to explain her "no" vote on Proposition QQ. In her letter she said, "give us quality education first, then ask us for money." Obviously she does not realize what it takes to get "quality education."

I am a student at Ganesha High School, and I have seen the results of six consecutive years of unpassed school proposals. The school grounds cannot be kept up because there is no money to pay the salaries of gardeners and janitors. There are never enough books to go around, and most of the books that are used are in extremely poor condition. The teachers and administrators are so wrapped up trying to stretch every dollar, they sometimes do not have time for the students.

Quality education means new and plentiful books. It means more than one teacher to teach a class of 40 students. It also means band uniforms, adequate science equipment, interesting elective courses, and all of the other things that make the students WANT to go to school.

Quality education is something Pomona does not have. This is not the fault of the people who work in the school system. All of the blame can be placed on the shoulders of the voters. By voting no, the voters have proved that either they are too blind to see what is happening in the schools, or they do not care. They have said that they do care, so I hope that when another school tax issue is on the ballot, the voters will open their eyes and vote yes. — Nancy Rader, Pomona.

Let's suspend judgment on Pres. Ford

WASHINGTON — For Gerald Ford, the honeymoon is over.

The first 100 days are the most receptive and sympathetic period any President gets. At the close of this brief time of grace, he should be at the pinnacle of national esteem. He should have established a public confidence that will sustain him through the long and rocky passage that lies ahead.

But to most Americans, Gerald Ford today still remains a question mark. He has not exhibited the capacity to take charge; nor the clarity to lay down a consistent policy line; nor the force of personality that puts his stamp upon the presidency; nor the vision to raise a banner around which a confused nation can rally.

Rather than any individual failure or success, it is this void that distinguishes the Ford presidency thus far. It must be taken, therefore, as a harbinger of failure. If he is to avoid a debacle, he will have to earn back slowly and painfully against a miasma of doubt and skepticism, what the nation was anxious to bestow upon him freely some 100 days ago.

Yet something about the man — decently, kindness, openness, unpretentiousness — and something about the circumstances that have bedeviled his debut, impell us not to write him off but to suspend our verdict while searching the debris for explanations.

He was brought on stage, almost involuntarily, by political tragedy, and he immediately inherited economic disaster. Yet he denied the boons that tragedy and disaster often confer on new leaders.

The calamities that brought Harry Truman and Lyndon Johnson to the presidency raised them up as guardians of an exalted legacy. Gerald Ford received, instead of a legacy, an albatross which Solomon himself wouldn't have known how to get from around his neck.

The rush of events the past two years has made him an anachronism. He is an Eisenhower back among us, the sort of Ike everyone likes, beaming benevolently upon the political scene. He speaks the same old words, practices the same old politics, make the same old compromises.

But the people have been plunged suddenly into the 1970s. The news shocks of the past two years have given them a new maturity, a new sophistication, a new soberness. The old blarney no longer impresses them; they are on a different wave length.

Still, a benign Gerald Ford goes on grasping hands, slapping backs, kissing babies; he simply has gone out of style.

He is, nevertheless, a man of great decency and strong loyalties. His closest advisers urged him to clean out the Nixon cabinet, to start his Administration with a clean slate. But this violated Ford's sense of fairness. He insisted on judging each Nixon holdover by his performance, not by his past association.

The new President's advisers also warned him against pardoning Richard Nixon. This violated Ford's feelings of compassion. By extending mercy and solicitude to Nixon, Ford associated his Administration with Watergate, violated most Americans' sense of equal justice, frustrated our hopes of getting the whole truth and diluted the object lesson to future presidents that many had hoped would be the lasting legacy of the impeachment ordeal.

And so at one stroke, he took the bloom off his month-old presidency and grimed it with some of the tarnish of the past. Yet had Ford waited only a bit and had Nixon been arrested, arraigned and then had succumbed to his illness, then the dogs of recrimination and irreconcilability would have been let loose in this country.

Whatever he did, or did not do, probably would have ended in a mess. He was in a no-win situation.

Franklin Roosevelt and Abraham Lincoln inherited disaster, too. But along with disaster, they received the inestimable advantage of taking over a situation that had already hit rock bottom, with an identifiable enemy and no choice but to issue a heroic call for national mobilization.

Gerald Ford found himself faced, not with an unmistakable foe, but with a dilemma that might be inflation, or depression, or a fiendish combination of both, for which there is no known government remedy.

Only a reckless gambler or a true visionary could have sounded forth the certain trumpet, and Ford is neither. And so he stalled for time, shifted from one foot to the other and offered half-measures that fully satisfied no one.

Unsatisfying, yes. But to have grandly mounted his horse and led his army galloping off in the wrong direction, against the wrong enemy, would have been fatal.

Canada cuts back on outsiders

Canada is looking after Canada. Canada, to feed Canadians, is reducing exports of beef. Canada, to make certain Canada has enough fresh water, is keeping what it has.

Canada, to curtail unemployment and city crowding, is now cutting back on the number of outsiders who will be allowed in. Canada is looking after Canada. And why not?

Canada has clamped down drastically on immigration. It did not take a national referendum nor an act of Parliament. Canada's immigration minister, Robert Andras, under existing legislation issued the new regulations.

From now on any outsiders wanting into Canada will first have to have a job, and it will have to be a job which no native Canadian wants to fill.

Andras said, "Immigrants have been applying and arriving at a time when employment levels are unstable, when housing is scarce and expensive, when many social services are strained."

The strain is especially apparent in Canada's big-three cities. So he decided to hold back the tide of outsiders until the supply-demand ratio of the existing population is in better balance.

And what immigrants Canada does allow in will be selected according to their qualifications and capabilities. Qualifications to be considered include education, skills, knowledge of English and French.

Historically, wide-open spaces have attracted society's dropouts, many of whom sooner than later abandon the hard life of the wilderness for the handouts available in the cities.

Canada appears determined to sidestep this overburden. Contrast Canada's instinct for self-preservation with the continuing haphazard immigration, legal and otherwise, into the United States.

Between 1960 and 1970 16 per cent of the population growth in the United States was immigrants. In 1971, it accounted for 18 per cent; in 1972, 23 per cent!

Today, one in four persons added each year to our nation's population is from another nation. Legally. There is no agency of government which can provide even a responsible guesstimate of the numbers of aliens entering the United States illegally. Probably more than 4 million illegal aliens are presently living in the United States.

There are now more registered Filipino doctors in the United States than there are black doctors, while in the Philippines there is a desperate shortage of physicians.

Leonard Chapman Jr. of our Immigration and Naturalization Service says that, as our nation's supply of space and resources and jobs becomes more scarce, our open door may have to be closed. But in the United States it would take an act of the White House or Congress—and what politician dares turn his back on what has become a decisive number of "foreign votes"?

J. K. (DOC) PEIRSOL

Just in jest

With the election over, I'll give you two to one odds that in less than three months we will once again be wallowing in a government of stop-gap checks and deficit balances. At which time many a disillusioned voter will be shouting:

"Whatever became of the Great American Dream our new political leaders so glibly insisted they could make a reality? Where is the freedom from work, freedom from responsibility and the perpetual prosperity they promised us? What the heck, we voted for the dirty So and Sos didn't we? So they owe us something don't they? And by gosh, they'd better produce or else!"

And once again government of the people, by the people and for the people will be back to normal and running true to form in the same old never ending circles.

Spiro rebounds from adversity

CROFTON, Md. — (NEA) — When Spiro Agnew opened the door to the Pigeon House Inn here the other afternoon, he was smiling. He chatted lightly with an employe, waved to somebody in the back, then sat down at a table. "How are you today, sir?" the waiter asked. "Fine," Agnew replied, "it's a nice day, isn't it?"

It was indeed a nice day for Spiro Agnew, not only climatically but in other ways as well. One year after resigning in disgrace as the Vice President of the United States, the man who would have been president seems to have over come the difficulties of transition. Not so for his former chief, of course; but while Richard Nixon lies seriously ill, described by observers as a broken man, Agnew is apparently in good health and fair spirits. Even his financial picture, it's said, is improving.

Friends of Agnew, in fact, are "amazed" at his rebound. A long-time Baltimore confidant who lunched and visited with Agnew recently, says: "He's not depressed, he's not cranky. I'm amazed. Ted is sort of an egotist and I would have thought the resignation would floor him for a long time. I think he may be still somewhat bitter because he doesn't think he deserves what happened, but other than that the son of a gun is in good shape — and getting better."

Others who have seen the former official, both privately and from a distance, agree he is holding up nicely. He is trim, kept that way by frequent tennis matches at a private but not expensive club; he dresses well, still in the custom suits and shirts that he favored while residing in higher places; and while he is no longer socially outgoing, preferring instead to spend much of his time at his $150,000 Maryland home, he is no hermit.

Some who know Agnew well believe his public side is one of more bravado than is comfortable. "I think he hurts a lot but won't give the critics the satisfaction of showing it," said one. And to be sure he does have continuing problems which, occasionally, break through his thin skin.

He was so incensed last summer at a World Book Encyclopedia description of his resignation that he wrote an angry letter to the publisher cancelling his order. In a more recent note to a Washington newspaper, Agnew complained of reports he'd been treated leniently ("That is to laugh"). And in England last month he told a reporter: "I can describe what it means to be left alone."

Yet all things considered and compared to Richard Nixon, Agnew seems to be beginning anew rather than ending as old. Says the Baltimore friend: "Remember when he used to rail against the nation's 'nattering nabobs of negativism,' or whatever he called them, well he believed in that. Now he's doing what he believes, going optimistic. He's rolling up his sleeves, in other words. You have to give him credit, it's tough to start all over in life."

In truth, Agnew is not exactly starting all over. Friends have contributed to his debt dilemma (he incurred $200,000 in legal expenses and is reportedly being asked by the government to pay at least $50,000 more in back taxes), and his worldwide contacts have helped him begin a promising new business.

That business, operated out of a $500-a-month (but small) office here, is described as a "consulting enterprise". One known Agnew client is an Indiana land developer who says he pays $100,000 a year for the ex-Veep's services.

Despite the help, though, credit is due Spiro Agnew. The man, a felon who cannot vote during three years of probation, has conducted himself well in his first year of dishonor. He has neither given up, nor retreated behind a defense of recriminations. Instead, as friends say, he has worked on the future rather than over the past.

Cheers. One can't be proud of him in the traditional sense, but it is not difficult for a fair man to wish him and his spirit well.

Heartline

800-543-2393

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions—fast. It costs you nothing. Call Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. or write Heartline, 8514 North Main St., Dayton, Ohio, 45415. Remember, Heartline pays for all calls on its toll-free number . . . 800-543-2393.

HEARTLINE: Why did you take your address out of the paper?—T.T.

Answer: Heartline is staffed with operators. We can do a much better job of servicing you if you call. We did not have the personnel to answer the thousands of letters we were receiving.

HEARTLINE: I've heard from several sources that as of Jan. 1, 1975, railroad annuitants will not be able to receive separate railroad retirement and Social Security benefits on the basis of railroad and nonrailroad work because future railroad retirement annuities will be based, in part, on combined railroad retirement and Social Security credits. Is this true?—S.F.

Answer: Yes, but railroad employees who retired before Jan. 1, 1975, will still continue to receive at least the same amounts of railroad retirement and Social Security benefits they were receiving before 1975. Also, career railroad employees retiring after 1974 who were fully vested for both railroad retirement and Social Security benefits in 1974 will not lose rights to benefits already earned as of December 31, 1974.

HEARTLINE: Who should I contact about food stamps for my father, who is 87 years old?—W.C.

Answer: In most areas across America, they are administered by the County Welfare office.

HEARTLINE: My husband passed away and I received $10,000 from his life insurance. I am 68 years old. Will I have to pay income tax on the $10,000?—W.H.

Answer: No, there would be no income tax if you received it in a lump sum payment.

We would like to inform our readers that Heartline will be closed all day Thursday, Nov. 28, and Friday, Nov. 29.

Toothbrush for dogs not really new idea

Note that a German-born dentist named Dr. Ursula Diet-rich has invented a toothbrush for dogs called Doggy-Dent. The announcement preceded mild laughter here and there. Too bad. The citizenry ought not to be so skeptical. Remember, George Washington ordered his help to brush the teeth of his six white horses every morning. And it's widely known that monkeys not only brush their own teeth, but become expert with toothpicks.

DO AS ROMANS

Q. "Who first said 'When in Rome, do as the Romans do'?"

A. History records Saint Ambrose uttered such to Saint Augustine. Roman citizens fasted on Saturday. Milan citizens feasted on Saturday. To eat or not to eat, that was the query Saint Augustine put to Saint Ambrose who then delivered his most famous one-liner.

ANN LANDERS

Sudden widow has words of advice for one who is 'still in harness'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have an answer to the woman who complained about never getting any time off. Her retired husband does anything he pleases (or nothing at all) and she is still "In the Harness." Her final line really got to me. It was, "Will I EVER enjoy the luxury of leisure time?"

Tell her, "Yes. And it may be sooner than you think. Your time off will come when your husband dies." I know, because it happened to me.

My wonderful man dropped dead of a heart attack three weeks after he retired. His golf clubs and fishing gear are stacked neatly in the back closet. I will dispose of them soon. I can't bear to have them around.

I stand by the stove and eat. Sitting alone at the table is more than I can bear. My housework, laundry and cooking take no time at all. It's amazing that the difference between one and two can seem like fifty. I've got plenty of leisure time now but believe me, I hate it. I'd give anything to be "too busy" again.

So, think, women, before you complain.—I know

Dear Friend: I'm sure your letter will hit mighty close to home for many of my readers. Thank you for writing it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have the answer for all the decent, single fellows out there who are tired of meeting barracudas. I'm 27, considered intelligent, and am fairly attractive. What's more I'd like very much to meet a fine man, but I am not about to go "looking" for him.

Ann Landers is right when she says, "What you pick up in a bar is there to be picked up." So—where can you find me? I'm in the park watching my children. On weekends I'm at the zoo, or at the circus, or hiking, or in the bleachers, yelling my head off with my kids. On Sunday morning, I'm in church. At night, I'm at home. So, please don't look for me in the bars because I won't be there. —Cris From Conn.

Dear Cris: I was especially pleased to receive your letter because I've been thoroughly lambasted by dozens of women who wrote to say they go to bars but NOT to be picked up; they go because they are lonesome. I'm not sitting in judgment of these women. What I'm trying to tell them is this: Men who frequent bars know this. "Pickup" isn't a very attractive name, but it's the best one I can think of for a dame who frequents saloons in the hope that some strange man will notice her and get friendly.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 16-year-old high school junior who has been dating for two years. I am a mature person and feel more like a woman than a child. The problem is my parents. I know they mean well, but there's this one thing they do that drives me out of my gourd.

I guess you might say we are a family of kissers—from my grandparents on down. I don't mind, except when I leave the house with a date. Both Mom and Dad insist on kissing me goodbye. Last night Ted and I were leaving and Mom was upstairs. Dad shouted, "Mother, come down and kiss Margaret goodbye." You would have thought I was joining the Foreign Legion. Ted looked embarrassed. I felt like a fool.

I'd appreciate it if you'd print my letter and your opinion so they will see it.

Tell them—I'm A Big Girl Now

Dear Girl: Accept the fact that your parents are kissers and make no apologies for them. They sound like affectionate folks, and you should be glad of it. I hear from plenty of teen-agers who would love to trade places with you.

Drugs? How much is too much? Is pot O.K.? Is LSD too much? If you're on dope or considering it, get Ann Lander's new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Laughter not always laughing matter

By ERMA BOMBECK

The mail reveals that there are many women on the domestic scene who would like to write a humor column. The foremost problem confronting most of them is they have not laughed in ten years.

If there is one key word to writing humor, it is perspective. Something may not seem funny at the time it happens. However, given a few years it takes on a whole new dimension.

One of the foremost examples that comes to my mind is my son's bedroom. Who would have thought this could be a topic for humor?

When I visited his room in 1969, my son was six years old. I looked at the troll doll with the blind cord looped around its neck, tripped over a cereal bowl half-filled with leather pudding, rousted the dog who was sleeping under a dish towel out of the top bunk, and went into shock when I discovered a coonskin hat made out of the tails on the only furpiece I was to ever own.

I didn't laugh that year. In fact, when my husband found me I was in a fetal position in the linen closet rocking gently back and forth singing Faith of Our Fathers to a coonskin.

In 1972, I again returned to his room as there were complaints from the family that the room smelled like a tire factory.

Things had changed. The room had deteriorated to the point where I couldn't tell where the clutter left off and the decomposition began. One thing was certain. There was nothing in that room that would ever face extinction. Never before nor since have I seen living organisms being produced at such an astronomical rate. Bacteria was multiplying and dividing before my eyes. The goldfish were at Population 2000, the gerbils were living in Orgyville under the bed, and two tennis shoes were reproducing in the corner.

I tried smiling, but I wasn't ready to laugh yet, especially when a mechanical monster chased me all over the room and held me at bay until his batteries burnt out.

I almost laughed in 1973, the year the underwear which was draped over the desk lamp caught fire, (but luckily) there was a bucket of old hub caps from the dump that were soaking by the bed and the fire was extinguished) but my husband slapped me across the face, postponing my hysteria.

Just to show you how time has a way of putting things in perspective, I went into his room yesterday. The stereo made my eyes lock, there were two years of TV Guides under his pillow, the only thing on a hanger was a canteen, his water bed smelled like a condemned gym and thanks to his open windows, we have been air-conditioning the state in the summer and heating it in the winter.

I laughed . . . . all the way to my encounter group.

THE DOCTOR COMMENTS

Artery accumulations are reversible

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — You mentioned in your column that fatty accumulations in the arteries are reversible. Could you please tell me how this is possible?

DEAR READER — The fatty particles in the bloodstream with cholesterol literally move through the artery wall. They stick in the wall and cause the deposits. Part or all of the deposits will be removed, in many cases, if the amount of fatty particles and cholesterol in the bloodstream is sufficiently low.

To lower the fatty-cholesterol particles in the blood you need to be on a diet that does not contain excess calories and either prevents or eliminates obesity. The diet should be low in fat, low in saturated fat, and low in cholesterol.

The reversibility of fatty deposits in the arteries has been demonstrated in animals under strict experimental control. The monkey was used for one of the best experiments because he is more like the human. The monkeys developed fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries when they were on a rich diet, and the fatty deposits were not present after monkeys were put back on a less rich monkey diet.

The same thing has been demonstrated in people. The problems associated with fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries, specifically heart disease, decreased or almost disappeared from European populations of World War II. There are innumerable studies showing this relationship.

For more information about cholesterol, triglycerides, and blood fats as related to artery and heart disease, write to me at P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019 and ask for the booklet on cholesterol. Send 50 cents to cover costs.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've had this problem for a while, so I'm telling you about it.

Since school started in 1973 I've been chewing more than a pack of gum a day and each time I chew a piece I'm lucky if it lasts more than 10 minutes.

My problem is I have this habit of swallowing my gum, sometimes bit by bit and sometimes the whole piece at once. It isn't accidental — it's just a habit.

Some of my friends told me it takes seven years to digest. My mom thinks it might be an unhealthy thing to do, and now it's got me worried. Any advice or help would be much appreciated.

DEAR READER—If swallowing gum is the worst thing you ever swallow, you will be lucky indeed.

No, it will not take seven years to digest. It will not harm you — even though I must admit that I don't really think it is a good idea.

All undigested material passes through the digestive system and is usually eliminated in 48 hours.

I'm more concerned about the effects of constant gum chewing on your teeth. You might ask your dentist what he thinks about it.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Buck-passing shows some progress

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A good argument can be made that the most dynamic force in the American socio-economic system today is buck-passing.

For reasons too ridiculous to repeat here, passing the buck has acquired rather a bad name. It frequently is equated with bottlenecks, red tape and other bureaucratic hindrances.

In actuality, however, buckpassing has produced almost as much progress as tax loopholes.

The best way to appreciate how buck-passers contribute to the onward and upward march of civilization is to imagine what life would be like without them.

If there were no buck-passers, every single problem that arises in our republic would remain on the desk of someone totally unfit to cope with it.

This is not to say that bucking the problem along to another desk brings forth a solution. But often all this lateral movement results in some sort of advancement.

A classic example of progress through buck-passing is the problem of accidental fires caused by dropping cigarettes on upholstered furniture.

When that problem came before the Consumer Produce Safety Commission, it was passed along to the furniture industry.

The thinking was that the furniture industry should develop fabrics that were more fire-resistant.

But the furniture makers promptly bucked it along to the tobacco industry. They contended the best way to prevent fires would be for the tobacco industry to develop self-extinguishing cigarettes.

Already, as you can see, great progress has been made.

Work on fire-resistant fabrics has been going on for years. The prospect of anything revolutionary emerging for that type of project is pretty slim.

But self-extinguishing cigarettes! —ah, there we have an entirely new concept. The type of thing that almost invariably leads to a sensational breakthrough.

The fact that the National Safety Council has refused to support that approach to fire prevention is no reason to throw cold water on it. Not as long as the buck-passing system is in operation.

The next move obviously is to buck it on to the Public Health Service. Think what a boon self-extinguishing cigarettes would be to the PHM's anti-smoking campaign.

If a cigarette went out every time you put it down in an ashtray or on the arm of an overstuffed sofa, smokers soon would become so exasperated they would quit.

Either that or they would run out of matches.

And so, thanks to buckpassing, reduced lung cancer rates are now in sight.

"That's what I call good blocking!"

Astrographs

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Friday, Nov. 22

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're apt to miscalculate today and take things for granted that you shouldn't. Don't let your optimism block out common sense.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you're lending anything to a friend, clearly establish that you expect to be paid back or your loan will be treated as a gift.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be as realistic as you can about your goals the next few days. If they are not well-defined you'll miss your mark by a mile.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take a hard look at any bills presented to you by persons you've hired. A statement may contain a big oversight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be very careful with whom you do business today. If the price you're given seems high, you'd be wise to shop around before buying.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll place yourself in a position today where you'll feel a little white lie will escape attention. Unfortunately, it will be obvious.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you'll be much better off in the long run if you don't attempt to do too many things at once. Settle on doing less, but do that well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be careful your generosity isn't taken advantage of by one who uses flattery to gain her ends. She's used this trick on you before.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're apt to get things for the home the next few days because you think they're a good buy. It's unlikely you'll ever use or need them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're going to tell someone who comes to you for advice what you think she'd like to hear, rather than the truth.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're very wasteful today with your resources, as well as those of others you're involved with. Try to be more prudent.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your imagination will play tricks on you if you're not careful. Analyze your motives. Delete all self-deluding thoughts.

Your Brithday Nov. 22

Many good things will come to you this year without expending too much effort on your own behalf. Being too complacent will cause loss of some fine opportunities.

What people say

"The nation now faces deteriorating water supply problems on an increasing scale. Federal minimum standards with state enforcement are needed as provided in the legislation to protect against disease which does not recognize state boundaries."

DR. KURTIS NAYLOR

Housing unit to hear plan for elderly

Dr. Kurtis Naylor, director of planned giving at La Verne College, will speak at the annual dinner meeting of the Greater Pomona Housing Development Corp. Nov. 26 in Pomona.

He will discuss a housing development for senior citizens his corporation hopes to sponsor.

The meeting will be held at 6:30 p.m. at Trinity United Methodist Church. Cost is $3.50 per person.

Reservations must be in by Friday and may be made by calling 622-1144.

21 seniors at L.V. College in Who's Who

Twenty-one senior students at La Verne College have been named to membership in "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" for 1974-75.

The students, elected by faculty members and students from among the senior class were chosen on the basis of their contributions to La Verne College. Areas considered included scholarship, student body leadership, music, drama, athletics and leadership in campus clubs as well as general campus citizenship.

Students elected are Natachia Adams, Glen Martin and Michael Root, all of Pomona; Sherri Aurich, Irene Briones, Beth Burdine, Nancy Doman, Phil Franklin, Christina Gonzales, Helen Hiepert, John Hood, Sharon Kaser, Paul Larson, Kathy Randolph, Cyndie Ranoos, Scott Rushing, John Ung, Mike Watanabe and Bob Wenbourne, all of La Verne; Dianne Smith of Covina, and Clara Craft of Claremont.

VALLEY BRIEFS

Preregistration at Azusa Pacific

More than 900 students are expected to preregister for the spring semester at Azusa Pacific College Friday. Spring classes begin Jan. 14.

New undergraduate students will register Jan. 13 and 14.

Students preregistering for the spring term must have reservation cards and clearance from their faculty adviser. They must register for Christian service assignments which are required of students who wish to graduate.

Government to have auction in Barstow

An auction sale of Defense Supply Agency surplus property will be held Friday at the Marine Corps Supply Center, Barstow.

Registration for the cash-and-carry sale will begin at 8 a.m. with the sale starting at 9 a.m.

Among 200 items offered will be hardware, pumps, conveyors, clothing, bunk beds, household furniture and fuel dispensing units.

Personal checks will not be accepted.

Further information on the auction may be obtained by phoning 577-6340.

3 reappointed to Montclair action unit

Larry Abler, Roberta McGehee and John Randall have been reappointed to new two-year terms on the City of Montclair's community action committee.

Abler will continue as chairman of the study group for the City Council and Mrs. McGehee will remain vice chairwoman.

The council has also reappointed councilman Tom McClure as the city's representative for El Barrio Park. The park serves the barrio area located on Mills Avenue, north of the railroad tracks, and involves the cities of Montclair, Claremont and Upland.

Nursing students plan Bike, Hike-a-Thon

The Chaffey College Student Nurse Association will co-sponsor a March of Dimes Bike or Hike-A-Thon Dec. 14.

Directed by Sylvia Pompura, the students will provide professional health services for participants, checkpoints, registration volunteers and will assist with recruitment of riders and hikers.

Those wishing to participate in the event may do so by obtaining sponsors for a minimum of 10 cents and up for each mile completed. Sponsor and registration forms are available at area police departments.

Temple Avenue to be resurfaced

The Los Angeles County Road Department will resurface nearly a mile of pavement on the north side of Temple Avenue east of Grand Avenue in the Walnut area next week, Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum announced today.

Heart group has Yule card deadline

Assistant to Scripps College chief named

Robin Trozpek has been named assistant to Scripps College President Mark H. Curtis effective immediately.

Mrs. Trozpek replaces Janice Banno, recently named director of constituency and foundation relations at Scripps.

In her new position, Mrs. Trozpek's principal responsibility will be administrative assistant to the president. She will also coordinate research into college operations and act as technical staff assistant to a number of college committees.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Weeks of Fullerton, Mrs. Trozpek received her B.A. in international relations from Scripps in 1971. Currently she is working on her M.A. in political science at Cal State Fullerton.

Mrs. Trozpek was administrative intern in the office of budget and research of the Anaheim city manager from September 1971 to 1972. She began working at Scripps in 1973 doing volunteer and other assignments on a part-time basis. In December 1973, she became research assistant for Curtis on a part-time basis.

Police Woman featured in TV section

NBC's new series, "Police Woman," seen Fridays at 10 p.m., is the cover story of Sunday's TV Week in the Progress-Bulletin.

Angie Dickinson stars as Suzanne "Pepper" Anderson, a police sergeant on an undercover team in criminal conspiracy investigations.

Three specials for the Thanksgiving week are highlighted in the inside color page.

"Annie and the Hoods," a comedy-musical on ABC Wednesday at 10 p.m., stars Anne Bancroft with guests Alan Alda, Jack Benny, Mel Brooks, Tony Curtis, Robert Merrill, David Merrick, Carl Reiner and Gene Wilder.

Patricia Neal and Ed Flanders star in a GE Theater presentation, "Things in Their Season," on CBS Wednesday at 9:30 p.m.

The 90-minute drama deals with rural Wisconsin family and its confrontation with the impending death of the mother.

Stanley Baker stars in the title role of "Robinson Crusoe," a two-hour adaptation of Daniel Defoe's classic on NBC Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Soviet artist mistakenly shot to death

MOSCOW (UPI) — A bank guard shot artist Viktor Popkov to death recently thinking he was a thief, friends of Popkov's family said.

Popkov, 42, was a member of the official Soviet Artists Union but Soviet abstract painters looked on him as one of their best friends inside the establishment body.

The friends called the shooting "a tragic accident."

They said Popkov left a building on Gorky Street, Moscow's main highway, at 9 p.m. and opened the door of a waiting auto, apparently thinking it was a taxi.

In fact, the car was transporting money from a bank and a guard inside the car, thinking a robbery was being launched, opened fire with a handgun and killed Popkov on the spot, the friends said.

Adult basketball league set

Rowland Unified School District's recreation department will offer an adult basketball league starting the week of Jan. 6.

Regulation high school rules will be used. No high school students will be permitted to play.

The league will be held at Nogales High School on Monday nights. It will be an open league, with no restrictions on height or ability.

An organizational meeting for team managers will be held Nov. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the Nogales gym.

Team fees will be $105 and are payable at the organizational meeting. Additional information may be obtained by calling the recreation office at 965-2541, Ext. 284.

Recipients of skill awards were Bill Milliken, Bryan Wulf, Paul Stewart, Mark Bangle, Allen Thompson, Fred Rugg, Mark Borock, Doug Lenz, Jim Sheffield, Scott and Bryan Snyder, Ed Arnitz, Ed Huber, Jim Lloyd, Todd Miller, Paul Sinclair, Curt Owen, John Huber and Don Sheffield.

Oscar winner

The film "In the Heat of the Night" won the Oscar for the best motion picture of 1966.

DANIEL BARRERAS, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jose Barreras, 523 W. Fourth St., San Dimas, has been awarded a $200 scholarship from the Sociedad Progresista Mexicana Inc. Barreras is now attending Mt. San Antonio College where he is majoring in chemistry. He plans to continue his education at Cal Poly.

Math profs and computer group to hold Science Day

The mathematics department of Claremont Men's College and the Arrowhead Chapter of the Association of Computing Machinery are sponsoring a Computer Science Day Saturday at 9 a.m. at the Claremont campus.

Dr. John Ferling, professor of mathematics who is coordinating the event, said that the program is planned for an audience ranging from high school and college students and faculty, with little or no background in computing or computer science, to professionals and students with a strong math background.

David Farber, professor at UC Irvine, will discuss "Computer Networks—A Wave of the Future." His talk will outline the evolution and future prospects of computer intercommunication via networks.

An irreverant look at conventional computer architecture will be given by Bob Creech, manager of architecture at Burroughs Corp. His talk is entitled "Up the Organization of Computers."

"The Functions of a Compiler" will be discussed by John Couch, software development engineer with Hewlett Packard, followed by a panel discussion on "The Education of a Computer Scientist."

Moderator will be Ed Keith of Citrus College. Others on the panel include Walter Brainerd, Burroughs Corp. Fred Carlsen, USC; and Jerry Wagner, Cal Poly.

All sessions are open to the public.

City to have tennis for young, adults

The La Verne Parks and Recreation Department will conduct tennis lessons for children and adults from Saturday through Dec. 28.

Children's beginning classes will be offered on Saturdays, from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m., and adult classes will be held on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

The fees for these classes are: adults $8 and children, $6. Participants must furnish their own racquets.

Registration is now being accepted at the La Verne Recreation Office, 2039 Third St. All fees must be paid at the time of registration. For further information persons may call 593-4571 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Valley police captain to attend FBI school

Upland Police Capt. Coy D. Estes has been invited to attend the 100th session of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's National Academy in Quantico, Va., it was announced by Clarence M. Kelley, director of the FBI.

Estes was chosen to attend the academy because of his dedication, competence, and professionalism with the Upland Police Department, according to a FBI spokesman.

At the Academy, Estes will study police management, behavioral science, law, education, communication arts, forensic science and law enforcement arts. The 12-week course will emphasize leadership development.

Estes is the second West End law enforcement officer to be selected this year to attend the FBI Academy on a cost free basis. Capt. Edward Noon, commander of the West End substation, recently returned from the 99th session of the academy.

SPORTY FIVE-SPEED TOYOTA — A fuel-saving five-speed overdrive manual transmission and integral [illegible] fender flares are standard equipment on the 1975 Toyota Corolla SR-5. It is the only new Corolla equipped with a standard five-speed transmission.

L.V. College opens China info center

La Verne College has opened a field office of the National Committee on United States-China Relations, Inc., John Jang, chairman of the social sciences division, has announced.

Resource materials available to area high schools, colleges and service groups through the field office include films, written materials and speakers, all students of modern-day China, Jang said.

Recent experiments in diplomacy have raised new hopes for improved relations between the United States and China, the professor explained. "Our hope," he added, "is to nurture this new relationship and open China to American missionaries, technicians and businessmen, as was the situation for more than 200 years."

Persons or groups interested in obtaining materials or speakers should contact Jack Meek at 593-3511 on Tuesdays and Thursdays between 2 and 4 p.m.

Corolla redesigned

More 5-speeds in Toyota lineup

Toyota has introduced its 1975-model line featuring a completely redesigned Corolla series, a sporty half-ton pickup truck and a new 2.2 liter four-cylinder engine.

Toyota is putting its five-speed manual transmission with gas-saving overdrive on 10 of its 1975 models as standard or optional equipment. Last year the five-speed was available on only four models.

The lineup for 1975 is composed of six Corolla models, two Celicas, five Coronas, three Mark IIs, three Land Cruisers and three pickup trucks.

The Corolla line includes a four-door wagon with optional woodgrain siding, deluxe two-door and four-door sedans, a sporty SR-5 hardtop, a deluxe two-door hardtop and a standard two-door sedan which replaces last year's Corolla 1200 as Toyota's price leader.

With a sticker price of $2,-711, the new standard sedan is the lowest-priced 1975 car sold in the United States.

The Corollas have more head room and leg room than the 1974 models and feature such standard equipment as transistorized ignition, reclining front bucket seats and improved power front disc brakes. A larger fuel tank helps extend the cars' cruising range.

The most completely equipped 1975 Toyota is the top-of-the-line Mark II. No factory options are available on the three Mark II models — a four-door sedan, two-door hardtop and four-door wagon. Included in the sticker price will be such standard features as air conditioning, automatic transmission, power steeering, power brakes, "controlled cycle" windshield wipers, AM-FM stereo radio, E&P brake warning system, aluminum bumpers, and 2.6 liter overhead-cam six-cylinder engine. The hardtop and sedan have luxurious new interior fabrics and standard radial tires.

The four-wheel-drive Land Cruisers come in three models — vinyl-top, hardtop and wagon — have larger tires and a 4.2 liter six-cylinder engine. The hardtop features newly designed vertical swing-out rear doors.

All 1975 Toyota passenger cars are equipped with lockable fuel tank caps.

FTC probing steel firms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission is investigating the major steel companies to determine if industry pricing practices violate antitrust laws.

FTC Chairman Lewis A. Engman disclosed the investigation Monday after Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., charged the agency wasted too much of its time on minor cases.

Proxmire said big steel firms have made pricing noncompetitive and that steel prices have risen 45 per cent in a year while industry costs have increased only 21 per cent.

Parents & Teachers

"A Holiday Happening" will be the theme of tonight's meeting of the MONTVUE SCHOOL PTA in Pomona at 7:30.

The meeting will be held in the school cafetorium. An array of holiday crafts will be displayed and visitors may participate in several craft workshops. A representative from Craft Cottage in Claremont will be present to help visitors with holiday ideas.

Holiday decorations and gifts, made and donated by Montvue parents, will be sold at the boutique table. Baked goods and holiday recipes will also be available.

Mrs. Santa Claus will be on hand to accept letters from the boys and girls.

★ ★ ★

St. Monica's Guild and the Booster Club of DAMIEN HIGH SCHOOL in La Verne will cosponsor a holiday dinner-dance on Dec. 7 in the school gymnasium.

The evening will begin with cocktails at 7 and dinner will be served at 8, followed by dancing from 9 on.

The dinner will include beef, ham, an assortment of salads and breads, and homemade fruitcake.

Persons wishing reservations and ticket information should call Marlene Burke (213) 963-2974 or Jean Rebitz (714) 985-7796.

City budget allots $58 for smut mags

ROTTERDAM, Holland (UPI) — The city budget for 1975 includes $58 for the purchase of sex magazines.

The money is allocated to "the fight against pornography."

"Our officers should be able to see what they are supposed to fight," a city spokesman said.

Five move up rank in Troop 407

Pete Oliver, Stephen Brooks and Douglas Colenbrander were advanced in rank to Second Class scouts at a recent court of honor conducted by Boy Scout Troop 407 at St. Ambrose Episcopal Church in Claremont.

Following opening ceremonies conducted by Pete Oliver, Terry Brier and Robbie Applebee were advanced to Tenderfoot scouts.

Merit badges were presented to Jim Cassidy, Terry Brier, Charles Kurtz, Mike Jack, Steve Ducey, Douglas Colenbrander, John Campbell, Wesley, Steven and Dale Brooks, Pat Jack and Kevin Irging.

A new adult committee was named. Mrs. C. F. Myers is chairman. Rusty Shannon and Drew Colenbrander are secretary-Newsletter. Bob Foresman is treasurer. Al Colenbrander is in charge of advancement. John Ilsley is instructional representative. Frank Busch is in charge of camping.

Mrs. Charles Verill is in charge of Christmas greens and Robert Kurtz is handling publicity. Cliff Brier will continue as scoutmaster, assisted by Ed Perkins and Stan Brooks.

Soviet missiles go to Syria

LONDON (UPI) — Western defense sources said today the Soviet Union's latest shipments of advanced weapons to Syria have included about 150 medium-range ground-to-ground missiles capable of hitting Israel's major cities.

The experts estimated that further shipments now under way could boost the Damascus government's total missile strength to 200 of these rockets.

The missiles were said to be both the Frog, with an approximately 40-mile range, and the Scud, a heavier warhead capable of hitting Tel Aviv from Syrian territory.

Egypt was said to have a small stock of these weapons but fewer than Syria.

Shipments were expected to bring fresh supplies if the Cairo summit in mid-January between President Anwar Sadat and Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev results in a that it has the assistance of a

The experts said latest developments prove without doubt that a new arms race of sizeable proportions is in progress in the Middle East that is likely to raise the level of the respective Arab and Israeli armories to unprecedented heights.

Defense experts hold that the advent of ground-to-ground missiles in the Middle East on a large scale could add new dimensions to future hosilities because of the threat they pose to civilian populations and their morale in any new war.

The Syrians fired a few missiles in the October war, but they apparently caused no major damage.

Israel, too, is stocking ground-to-ground missiles which defense experts said might deter Syria or Egypt because their own heavily populated capitals are in rocket range.

Why the Russians are now shipping these weapons to the Middle East is not clear, unless they figure on the possibility of all-out war with no holds barred, the experts said. In the past, they resisted Arab demands for ground-to-ground rockets.

The same applies to their advanced jets, the MIG23, or MIG25, as it is sometimes labeled in the West. Defense experts said there is no doubt that Russia did supply about two squadrons of these planes to the Syrians recently, but that they may be under the direct control of Soviet pilots.

The sources said Syria would now seem sufficiently equipped to fight a war and that it has the assistance of a sizeable number of Soviet experts, believed to amount to between 2,000 and 3,500. Latest supplies were estimated to also have boosted the tank force to a total of between 1,600 and 2,000 vehicles.

Bridge

No fool like an old fool

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Remember the visitor to New York who, when a native offered to sell him the Brooklyn bridge, remarked, "You must take me for an idiot. The real owner has already contacted me."

You can still find him in almost any bridge game.

East won the club lead with his king and tried to cash the ace. South ruffed; entered dummy with the king of trumps; led the jack of clubs and carefully discarded his eight of hearts after East played low.

West was in with the queen and couldn't wait to plank down his seven of hearts. South took his ace; cashed the ace of trumps; overtook his queen of hearts with dummy's king and got rid of his two diamonds on the jack of hearts and 10 of clubs.

Why was West trying to buy the Brooklyn Bridge?

It was all a matter of looking at that jack of hearts in dummy. Give South the ace of diamonds and small hearts. South would surely have planned to play West for the heart queen rather than try that club play. Hence West should have realized that East held the diamond ace and that South was trying a swindle.

Father and son

Walter and John Huston were the first father and son team to receive "Oscars" — Academy Awards — in the same year, 1946, and for the same film. The elder Huston won the best supporting actor award for his role in "The Treasure of Sierra Madre", and his son won for directing the motion picture.

Compromise most likely in FTC's plan to ban TV prize offerings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The way industry sees it, children have almost a God-given right to be tempted with toys, games and other prizes as part of television commercials selling them everything from cereals to shoes.

The old box top give-aways are educational, it argues, and sometimes even help promote better nutrition.

Such are some of the comments the Federal Trade Commission has been hearing on its proposal to ban premium offers on TV commercials aimed at children. The proposal is still perhaps a month and a half away from emerging in its final form, and FTC Chairman Lewis A. Engman says it is possible a compromise will be worked out short of an outright ban on prize offering.

But the subject is obviously a sore spot with the advertisers and broadcasters.

"A ban on the advertising of premiums would certainly result in the reduction or elimination of education-type premiums," General Mills told the FTC. "Premiums as they relate to children provide entertainment and play value which are important characteristics in the development of any child."

Adds Nabisco:

"Premiums are safe, wholesome, of interest to the child and in many cases have educational value . . . Nabisco's advertising for the premiums is honest and always secondary in exposure and emphasis to the advertisment for the carrying product."

Broadcasters, already stung by the government ban on cigarette advertising, believe premium advertisers would do as they did in the tobacco ban, simply switch to other forms of advertising.

"The ultimate irony," CBS said, "is that other media which have not adopted the same special standards for advertising copy as the TV industry will be unaffected by the FTC's guide and will, under the current proposal, be the eager beneficiaries of advertising revenue pulled out of television."

The National Association of Broadcasters said such a ban "can only undermine and weaken the self-regulatory machinery which has dealt successfully and competently with the matter."

One of the most severe attacks on the idea came from a West Hartford, Conn., group calling itself "Families Against Censored Television." It attacked the "self appointed consumer activists" behind the proposal.

"We have witnessed their temper tantrums in every department of government. Their persecution of commercial broadcasters and business has been a sustained effort to enslave both to their ever increasing demands," they wrote.

"Their effort now extends itself into the privacy of our homes and the most personal of relationships —that between parents and child. They attempt to bludgeon our private values and incarcerate us in the ghetto of their irrational whims. They are cannibals of freedom."

The comment files are bulging with those and other similar comments, with a notable lack of response from in-the-street consumers. One who did reply, however, was Mrs. Sharon Y. Nickols, a graduate assistant at the University of Missouri in Columbia who enclosed a research paper on the subject. She added this personal note:

"As a consumer I am aware that I pay the bill for having my children exposed to commercials which emphasize their selfishness, instead of their cooperativeness, their desire for things instead of for happy experiences and relationships, and which undermine my efforts to teach them about good nutrition and health. I do not want to continue to pay that bill."

Liberal Congress

Big tax loopholes may be closed

Editor's Note: Following is the third in a series of daily dispatches this week examining major legislative issues awaiting action next year, and how the new 94th Congress is likely to deal with them.

By DON PHILLIPS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A more liberal Congress, national unrest over the economy and Rep. Wilbur Mills' political problems back in Arkansas might be the catalysts next year for closing some big loopholes in U.S. tax law.

Although real tax reform probably will remain as illusive as ever in the new Congress, a number of once-sacrosanct tax "advantages" are likely to be sacrificed to an unhappy electorate. Also, the wealthy could find themselves paying more taxes, and the poor less.

Some reformers' goals which escaped the 93rd Congress seem more easily attainable in the 94th convening in January. These include a true minimum tax on the wealthy, ending many tax shelters, halting abuses of gift and estate taxes, and an equitable tax system for business.

And if oil companies escape a tax crackdown in the closing days of this Congress, they might as well say goodby to the oil depletion allowance and other tax advantages in the next one.

Liberals seeking to gain strength on the traditionally conservative House Ways and Means Committee, which originates all tax legislation, got a boost in the November elections. Because of retirements and defeats, four conservative Republicans and two liberal Democrats on the 25-member committee probably will be replaced by four liberal Democrats and two conservative Republicans.

Reformers already have forced creation of at least four Ways and Means subcommittees next year, which could weaken Chairman Mills' firm influence over committee decision-making. Much of Mills' power in the past has stemmed from his use of the full committee without delegating any authority to subcommittees.

In past years, Mills could have kept the situation under control and molded the committee to his liking. But his personal power has been undercut by his abortive presidential bid in 1972, allegations of questionable campaign contributions, an eight-month absence last year because of an ailing back and, finally, the celebrated Tidal Basin incident in October.

Although he easily won reelection Nov. 5, Mills was opposed by the first serious challenger of his 36-year career. Political observers believe that if Mills wants to return to Congress from Arkansas in 1976, he must be able to take a tax reform bill home with him.

Pushing Mills from behind will be the House Democratic membership, which ordered him to allow strengthening amendments to the bill tightening oil industry taxes. Mills outmaneuvered the Democratic caucus by including the oil tax proposals in a separate tax revision bill, but next year's caucus will be more liberal and more determined.

"You're liable to see the liberalization of Wilbur Mills next year," said one Ways and Means liberal.

Leland B. Newcomer

Insights on campus today

The other day the doorway of my office was filled with a 6'5", red-headed, pony-tailed student with a rather obvious arrogant and challenging appearance. He held up our College catalog and said, "Newcomer, is this an authentic description of La Verne College and its programs and services or is it just a bunch of hogwash like most other catalogs . . . just a lot of sales propaganda?"

A bit uncomfortable and certainly on the defensive, I stuttered a little in my response, but finally managed to get out a not-too-convincing affirmation of the authenticity of our catalog.

His response was, "Okay, that's all I wanted to know. I just wanted to hear it from the top man, because if you mean what you say in here, I am going to do La Verne College in two years and graduate cum laude." (For the nonacademicicians, cum laude means with high academic distinction.)

"Also, President Newcomer, I want you to know I am going to be quoting you when I have any confrontation with the faculty. Some of them have already questioned my right to challenge their courses and my demand that they spell out clearly what the criteria is to get 'honors' in their courses."

Before I go any further, I must inform you that although this young man is a bit brash, he is a very bright boy. ..He is fully capable of handling almost any intellectual task he sets out to accomplish.

La Verne College offers a wide variety of options as to how students may go about their learning, and, if a student has the ingenuity, it is perfectly possible for a young man like this to achieve his objective, for he may challenge required courses by taking CLEP tests (College Level Examination Program) and receive credit toward graduation if his score is in the upper ranges of an average of students at other colleges of high academic reputation.

Also, students may challenge a course by studying on their own and taking a faculty prepared examination, or they may design their own independent study contract with a professor. Thus, bright, ingenious students with many options can obtain a degree in much less time, with high standards of academic excellence.

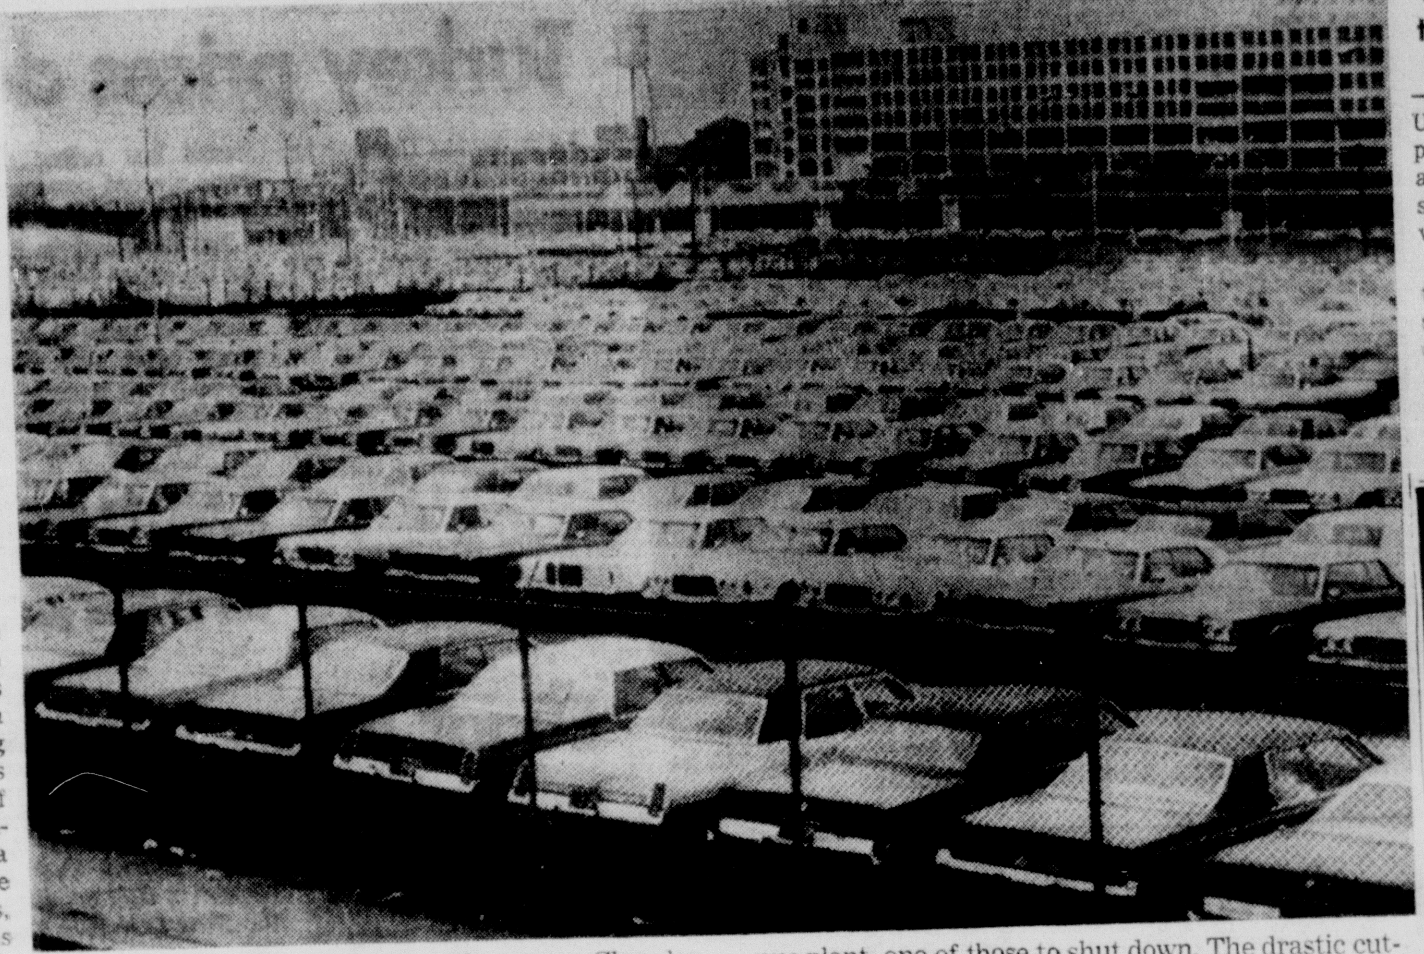
The young man who is the subject of this piece plans to graduate this June. He has vowed to achieve honors in all his courses. An interesting sidelight to his case concerns the fact that one area of learning we require for graduation is participation in a specified number of life-time sports such as golf, tennis, badminton, handball, etc. It's part of our approach to graduating well-rounded young men and women.

Our young man chose badminton and, being consistent with his vow to receive honors in all courses, he strode up to his young instructor on his first day in class and requested information as to how he could get honors in this class.

Our young professor responded, "You've got to be kidding. You don't get honors in these PE classes. They're just to develop skills so you can enjoy them for the rest of your life."

Not knowing the persistence of our young hero, the instructor was unprepared for his response. "This is called a course even though it is only a quarter course. I intend to get honors in every course. You're the doctor. Tell me the criteria necessary for me to get honors. You have to specify what it takes—it says so right herein the catalog."

In a semi-state of shock, the first response of the young professor was to ask the student if he'd ever played badminton. When the student replied that he had not, the instructor said, "Okay, you can get honors if, by the end of the semester, you can beat me in a game of badminton."



PLENTY OF CHRYSLERS — The reason Chrysler is closing five of its six auto assembly plants and idling another 43,900 workers is vividly illustrated in this picture of the company's new car storage lot in Detroit. In the background is the Jefferson Avenue plant, one of those to shut down. The drastic cutback to trim 50,000 cars from production schedules was necessary because of a record 120-day supply of unsold cars, enough to last for four months at the current slow pace of new-car sales.

Vets plan project to persuade Ford

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A group of veterans on the University of California campus has organized a "Blood and Guts" campaign to persuade President Ford not to veto a veterans benefit bill.

The veterans said Tuesday they would have at least 50 supporters to donate blood to a local blood bank as a demonstration of their need for increased educational benefits contained in the bill threatened by a presidential veto.

Turkey prices down; fixings' are up

Prices for the Thanksgiving dinner turkey are down substantially this year but higher costs for the the rest of the fixings absorb most of the savings.

Consumers can thank over production of turkeys for the lower overall cost of Thanksgiving dinner. But prices are up on everything from sweet potatoes to cranberry sauce.

According to a 14-city survey by UPI, the price of turkey is down more than 20 per cent from last year. The average price of a 10-pound unbasted hen turkey was 63 cents a pound compared with 73 cents a pound last year.

But supermarkets throughout the nation began advertising even cheaper prices for hens— 51 cents a pound in many cases —as the final shopping weekend before Thanksgiving approaches.

Larger tom turkeys are substantially less than smaller hens, being advertised in specials as low as 45 cents a pound.

But the other items on the table reflect the general increase in grocery prices in the past year.

The UPI survey compared prices of the same eight items priced a year ago. In each instance, cheaper store brands were used. Average prices of the 14 geographically representative cities are quoted.

The overall cost of the eight item dinner—enough to feed a family of four—this year is $8.76 against $9.44 cents last year. But the survey does not include beverages and such items as sugar, which has risen in price more than 300 per cent since last Thanksgiving.

The biggest savings is on a 10-pound turkey, the average survey price being $6.31, a dollar less than last year and even cheaper on advertised specials.

The biggest hike in price is on margarine, selling for 58 cents a pound this year compared to 40 cents this Thanksgiving.

Fresh sweet potatoes are up from 20 cents a pound to 24 cents. A 16-ounce can of peas costs 32 cents compared with 27 cents. Cranberry sauce is up from 26 cents to 34 cents for a 16-ounce can, although a supermarket in Boston was selling it as low as 9 cents on a special.

A package of 12 brown and serve rolls is selling for 10 cents more than last year.

Even the pumpkin pie will cost more. A 16-ounce of pumpkin costs 27 cents this year compared with 22 cents last year, and frozen pie shells cost about a penny more apiece.

Sugar prices triple within year

NEW YORK (UPI) — The retail price of sugar has tripled since last Thanksgiving, adding still more to the cost of traditional cranberry sauce, candied sweet potatoes and pumpkin and mince pies.

All four can be made with caloric or noncaloric substitutes.

Corn syrup is good with cranberries. It makes a less watery mixture than sugar because it does not draw out the juices from fruit and berries.

Corn syrup, honey, molasses or a noncaloric sweetener can be substituted in sweet potatoes or pies. But remember that noncaloric substitutes will not make a thick sauce for potatoes. Nor will they add as much bulk as sugar does to pie fillings, and some leave a bitter aftertaste in hot foods.

If you use natural sweeteners, allow in general 1 cup of corn syrup for each cup of sugar, but less honey or molasses.

Finch to have first patient in 15 years

EL DORADO SPRINGS, Mo. (UPI) — With patients already calling for appointments, Dr. R. Bernard Finch today began filling out the mound of papers needed to resume his medical practice, which was interrupted 15 years ago by a murder conviction.

The state Board of Registration of Healing Arts has complied with a state supreme court edict and formally certified the 56-year-old Finch as a physician in Missouri.

Finch, convicted for the 1959 murder of his wife in California, waged a three-year legal battle with the board for a medical license after he was paroled as a model inmate in California.

Although Finch is now able to practice, he said he will not see his first patient in 15 years until Monday. He has been working as an X-ray technician at Ceder County Memorial Hospital, where his office will be.

"I'm moving a lot of things into the office," Finch said, "and I'm filling out all kinds of paperwork — staff applications, narcotics registration, malpractice insurance and that sort of thing."

Finch said he expects to get his share of business as one of four doctors in the small southwest Missouri town that adopted him during his fight for a license.

"People have been making appointments for a couple of days," he said. "There have been a lot of people who wanted to be the first treated by me now that I have the license. I consider it the highest compliment possible."

Last week, the Supreme Court refused to take jurisdiction over a lower court order for the board to give Finch his license.

The board had vigorously fought the issuance of a license to Finch because of his 12 years spent in a California prison for the murder.

Although Finch can practice immediately, the formal license won't be issued until the board's regular meeting in February.

Mod twist: $4 divorce for those not married

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — They call it a "$4 divorce" and no doubt there are some advantages, as long as you're not married.

The partners split the fee. There is no alimony and no one stands to lose more than $500.

But then it's not actually a divorce because the two persons parting ways were never married —only living together.

And the settlement involves only property rights.

St. Paul municipal judges say the new social phenomenon of young people living together is finding its way into the courts.

For the star-crossed lover who wants out with what he thinks is his or her property, the only recourse is the conciliation court —sometimes known as small claims court.

"There is no other legal forum for these people," said Judge Joseph Summers, who coined the term "$4 divorce."

"A few years ago this was unheard of, but now we get two or three cases a week," another judge said.

Summers said: "We have had several couples in here fighting over who gets the waterbed."

The pattern is common. Two young lovers decide to live together. They rent an apartment, buy furniture together and have other financial dealings.

"In this type of relationship, property rights are created.," Summers said, "and if the lovers quarrel there often is a problem over dividing the property."

Take the young man who moved out of his girl friend's apartment in a huff. He returned later to claim his queen-size bed.

The girl refused to give up the bed and presented him with a bill for money she had loaned him for car payments, rent and spending money.

The matter wound up in conciliation court, where each had to pay $2 to have a judge hear the case.

Controversies involving more than $500 must be taken to municipal or district court. But in most cases the one-time lovers waive any amount over $500 to have the matter heard in conciliation court, often at a night session.

The problem for the judges is no easy one but it usually boils down to deciding whether the property in question was a gift or a loan.

"What was a gift when it was given often turns into a loan after a couple breaks up," said Judge Roland Faricy.

As Summers views it, "when there is affection between two people and money changes hands, I have to assume it was a gift unless there was a definite agreement beforehand or if there is a record of the transaction."

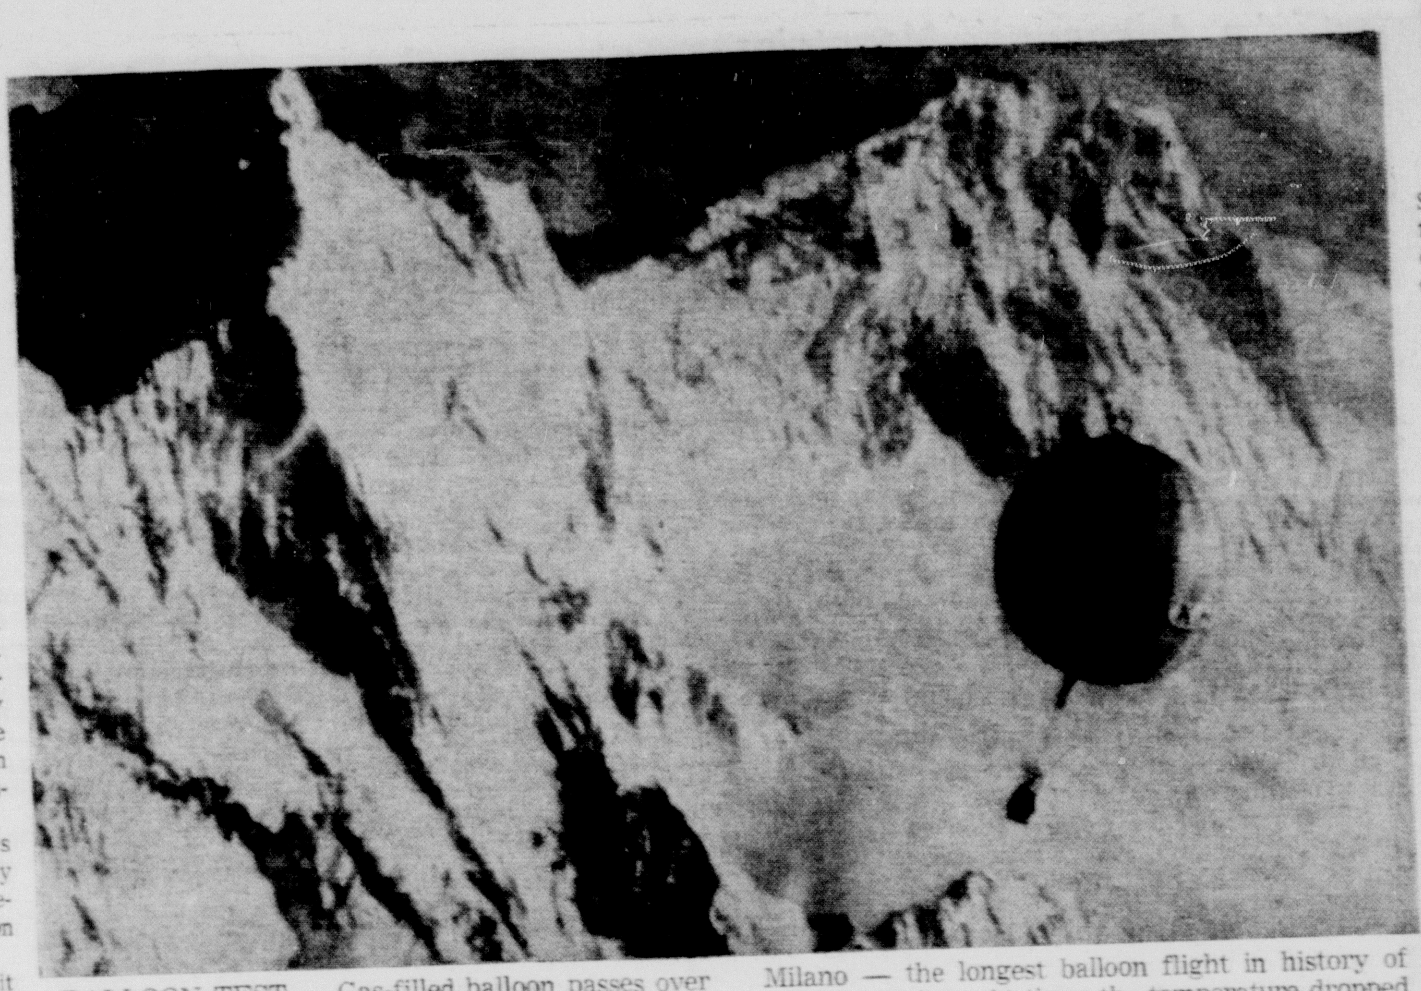
He said canceled checks can be used as proof the money was given or loaned.

Faricy said he usually tries to see whether one person was being used.

"Sometimes the man goes off and says, 'keep everything,' then changes his mind later," he said. "I usually find against him."

There are no lawyers and each partner must present his or her own case.

But, Summers said, "Occasionally there is an irate mother tapping her foot in the background."



BALLOON TEST — Gas-filled balloon passes over snow-covered Austrian mountains on way to landing at Milano, Italy, recently. Electronics firm pleads guilty to violating law

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Santa Monica, Calif., electronics firm accused by a federal grand jury of illegally exporting a radar device to Pakistan pleaded guilty Tuesday to two counts of violating federal munitions laws.

Varadyne Industries, Inc., entered the plea before U.S. District Court Judge A. Andrew Hauk. Sentencing was scheduled for Dec. 9.

The Oct. 30 indictment alleged that the firm exported a radar device in May 1971 without State Department approval.

The device enables an airplane pilot to detect radar systems on the ground before his plane is detected.

Varadyne was also charged with illegally sending the Pakistani Air Force unclassified technical data connected with the device.

The firm faces a maximum fine of $35,000.

Videotherapy: new tool for counseling

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — People who go to mental health specialist David J. Henson at Warsaw, Ind., often end up talking to themselves.

That's how he wants it. He also helps them see themselves from the outside.

Henson's specialty is videotherapy, including the use of television's instant replay and special effects capabilities to treat and counsel people.

A former priest, now married, Henson entered the priesthood at St. Meinrad Theological Seminary, St. Meinrad, and later studied mental therapy in university courses and at a mental health center in Peoria, Ill., where he also learned videotherapy.

Now he's on the staff of the five county mental health clinic in Warsaw.

"You have to know more about the therapy than the video. The video is just another tool," Henson emphazsied in an interview.

It's a versatile tool, indeed, as he explained it.

"It works very well with groups, and especially in marriage counseling," he said. He explained that married couples are able to view a conversation and see their own suppressed feelings; groups and the individuals in them can see their interaction, and it helps the therapist to judge his own and the patient's progress if earlier and later tapes are compared.

"A person can say something to his spouse" —her televised image —"that he couldn't say while the person's there. He can take the spouse's role, too," Henson said.

He said adding a special effects generator lets the therapist "split" a person into two or three images, for example conversing with his left and right profile separately via split screen television.

"You become a little group all by yourself," he said.

Movie stars generally know, and other people can come to realize, that they like one profile better than the other, Henson said. He said there's a theory that one side reflects a person's private self, the other his public self.

He said privacy of the clients is protected. They are never taped without their knowledge and consent. The tapes, except for training tapes, are kept only a short time, and access is limited to the therapist and his advisers, he said.

Henson said videotherapy is not always the preferred technique. He said he never uses it with paranoid patients, for example, because it might only heighten the patient's already deep distrust and suspiciousness.

Videotherapy is not new, nor always called that. Dr. Eugene Levitt, a psychiatrist at the Indiana University Medical Center, said it's a technique any professional therapist would jump at the chance to use, but it's really just another method of providing feedback to a patient.

He pointed out, however, "the fact that you provide feedback to someone does not guarantee the effectiveness of the feedback."

Not everybody is receptive, or willing to change, he said.

County acts to halt aid to aliens

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Department of Social Services was instructed Tuesday to compare welfare applications to federal immigration records to prevent illegal aliens from receiving welfare.

The county board of supervisors ordered the action which is expected to save nearly $1 million a year in welfare payments.

Social Services employes will be stationed at the Immigration and Naturalization Service office to help separate aliens who are eligible for welfare from those who are in the United States illegally.

A spokesman said the county workers will have lists of aliens on welfare and compare names with INS records to determine whether the person is here illegally.

Minister will put warmth in baptism

BASON, England (UPI) — The Rev. Gordon Blacktop says that at christenings, "nothing is more frightening for a baby than to be taken from the warm arms of a godmother, and then splashed with freezing water."

So he has the answer: warm baptismal water that he keeps in a thermos.

PRINCESS ATTENDS BALLET — Princess Christina of Sweden looks over spectators upon her arrival at City Center, New York, Tuesday for the New York debut of the Royal Swedish Ballet. The New York opening climaxes a six-week American tour that took the Stockholm-based company to cities from coast to coast. The princess was accompanied here by her husband, Tord Magnuson, whom she married last June.

Claim Adirondack Mountains

Mohawk Indians preparing for a long and cold winter

By MICHAEL R. FRANCO

BIG MOOSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Mohawk Indians, who are claiming the Adirondack mountains as their own under a 1794 treaty, hope to return to the old ways, to hunt and fish and live off the land in New York and Vermont.

They are preparing for a long winter while armed sentries guard the mountainside they hold.

"The Ganienkeh Indian Nation" holds only a 612-acre former girls camp that a band of 50 Mohawks occupied last May. But the Indians think in bigger terms. They claim the nine million acres of the entire Adirondacks of northern New York State and part of Vermont under a 1794 treaty.

I tried to visit the camp near picturesque Moss Lake. A young Mohawk sentry, armed with bow and arrow, his hair in long braids and rope headband, barred the way on the icecrusted road up the scrub oak slope.

A bespectacled Indian spokesman came from a split log hut to tell at length of the move "to return to the old ways, to hunt and fish and live off the land in a non-monied society."

He spoke with sarcasm of how "your nation has oppressed peoples all over the world just as we have been oppressed.

"But the oppressed are getting back their land from your nation. They did in the Philippines," said the Mohawk in warm boots, winter coat and mittens. "We're asking that the federal government recognize our legal right to the land."

The Indian occupation attracted relatively little attention through the summer. State and local authorities tried to negotiate the return of the land. The Mohawks opened their camp to all Indians. Some came from Canada. One Sioux joined them from the Southwest.

Then on Oct. 28, a nine-year-old girl and a 22-year-old man were shot as they passed the camp in cars. More than 30 state police surrounded the area. The Indians refused to let them in and said they would talk only with the President of the United States or his representative.

Speaking from his own reservation, Onondaga chief Oren Lyons lent his support.

"The treaty signed in 1794 between the big six nation confederacy and the United States establishes a procedure to settle injuries. This is the procedure that must be followed," he said.

Edward Cabell, a federal mediator, entered the talks with the Indians and investigators were allowed into the camp. The tension eased. Only a few state policemen keep watch on the camp. The Indians say they prefer to settle it in court but still insist President Ford should intervene.

While a truce prevails, the Indians are preparing for a long stay.

Faced with an Adirondack winter in which temperatures get to 30 below and snowfalls tally as much as 200 inches, they are attempting to insulate many of the 25 small, summer lakeside cabins they occupy.

They have raised supplies and money from supporters and the reservations from which they come —the St. Regis straddling the Canadian border on the St. Lawrence, the Caughnawaga near Montreal, one in Ontario and the Alleghany in western New York.

They even garnered $6,000 in supplies from the Federal ecoomomic opportunity office at Watertown, N.Y.

But there is fear among many white residents.

"There's only one road out of here and that's by those Indians," said Doug Bennett of Big Moose. "We could be virtually isolated if real trouble ever broke out."

A housewife said the school bus for Big Moose passes the Indian camp daily.

"Would you want maniacs like them living so close to you and shooting innocent people?" said a shopkeeper in Eagle Bay.

Art Hall, who lives up Big Moose road a short distance from the Indians, spoke from behind the bar of his tavern in Eagle Bay.

"We can live with the Indians as long as they don't bother the snowmobilers going near their land," he said.

Hall's wife, Noreen, added, "I'd rather see Indians around here than some of the hippies we have."

Inroads with lasers

Physicists in search for limitless energy

DALLAS (UPI) — Physicists at the University of Texas at Dallas are testing the world's first nitrogen-ion laser which they hope will turn out to be the "match" that ends the energy shortage forever.

Dr. Carl B. Collins Jr., 34, who heads the team, said their laser also is the world's most efficient visible laser.

"That augurs well for making it the most wonderful," Collins said. "But the question is, is it going to get better or worse when we make it bigger?"

Collins' team and other scientists throughout the world are looking for a laser system that will ignite hydrogen in controlled fusion and provide a power source like the sun on a small scale.

To succeed, they must produce a laser that will provide for a billionth of a second, a temperature that approximates the 100 million degrees of the sun.

The 20-foot electrobeam gun of he system has a peak power of 100 billion watts, or 100,000 amperes at one million volts, over 10 billionths of a second.

At the instant of discharge, this is 10 per cent of the U.S. instantaneous power usage. It sounds as if it would make lights blink over several states, but it doesn't. Electrical line power is taken out very slowly and accumulated in the electrobeam gun before the charge is unleashed into the laser.

The unique principle of the laser being tested by Collins, Dr. Austin Cunningham and Dr. Steve Curry, is the "pumping" mechanism. When scientists talk about "pumping" in relation to lasers, what they mean is transferring an electrical charge from one gas to another.

The laser now being tested is a second generation model. When it is raises to top efficiency, the team will build a bigger, third generation model.

That process will continue until they can determine whether they have something that will do the job or whether they are on the wrong track.

Scientists worldwide are working on two controlled fusion approaches. The one the Dallas physicists are involved in was publicly described by Dr. Edward Teller, so-called father of the hydrogen bomb, for the first time two years ago at the international quantum electronics conference in Montreal.

In that process, a dozen lasers of the power and wavelength Collins and his group hope eventually to build will fire simultaneously at a frozen pellet of heavy hydrogen. The heat would evaporate the surface atoms and compress the remainder at least a thousandfold, heating it to explosive temperatures. The same reaction must be repeated again and again to keep the fusion going.

Scientists believe the lasers will cause fusion of the hydrogen leaving harmless helium as a result, and creating tremendously high temperatures.

The hot gases could be used to heat water in a boiler to steam or converted directly to electricity.

When that day comes, the search for practically limitless energy will be over because a barrel of seawater contains heavy hydrogen which is the equivalent of 30 barrels of gasoline in energy.

Ship owners fined $20,000 for oil spill

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI) — The West German freighter Westfalia has been fined $20,000 for an oil spill last year in Vancouver Harbor.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Transport said the fine was the highest ever levied for an oil spill on the West Coast.

Lawyers for Hapag-Lloyd A.G. of Hamburg, which owns the ship, pleaded guilty to two charges of causing oil to be spilled into the water and failure to seal stoppers in the ship's tanks.

The company had already paid $55,000 for five days of cleanup operations.

The spill occurred Oct. 24, 1973, as oil was being transferred from one tank to another while the ship was moored at Vancouver's Centennial Dock.

Valves were left open and thousands of gallons spilled into the harbor.

The MOT spokesman said the spill was so widespread it had threatened to inundate Stanley Park, famous for its zoo and wildfowl.

"There were four inches of oil in places," he said.

Hit man's revelation

All the crime not before the camera

By DICK KLEINER

LOS ANGELES (NEA) A Mafia hit man—with 43 murders that he admits to—says that the mob controls better than 50 per cent of the top entertainers today.

Call him Joey. That's the name he uses on his autobiography. It's a name that suits him. He looks like he should be called Joey and that's the best description I can give you. He has a natural distaste for having his description noised about.

I talked to Joey for an hour, mostly about the mob and show business. He came in carrying a big bottle of grapefruit juice and drank it while we talked. He's a cheerful man, given to making little jokes.

He says he has no remorse about the men he's killed.

"Remorse? No way."

I asked him if he'd ever had to kill anyone he knew personally, any friends.

"I killed eight people I knew," he said. "But I drew the line at an old friend, Joey Gallo. We used to bust heads together."

He said that his 43 hits have all been contracts and that he does no jobs for individuals or for personal spite.

"Each one of those hits," he says, "was a military operation. If I'm gonna blow somebody away, I research it. I can't afford to take stupid chances."

He says that what helps make his job as a mob enforcer easier is movies and TV. "TV shows about the mob," he says, "do 95 per cent of the mob's work for them. You go to see a guy to collect money, he's been conditioned to be terrified. He comes across quick."

He considers "The Godfather" one of the funniest movies he's ever seen. "That was a joke," he says. "That was a comedy. You mean to tell me a guy who'd kill 50 people ain't gonna sell dope? I find that very amusing." Joey is very knowledgeable about the entertainment world. He says he has to be because a lot of mob money is going into moves, TV and show business in general these days.

"The big people in the business owe us," he says. "They gamble with us, they buy cocaine from us. We got to know about their business."

He says the mob owns many of the top money-making entertainers today and he names their names. He says the mob gets half of their take, which is considerable. "We own them and we put them in our own clubs," he says. "We make money both ways."

As for movies, mob money is now responsible for many independent films. Joey says the day of muscling into a business is over because it no longer is needed. Now the mob sits back and waits for people to come to them.

"We're into shows, movies, records, TV," Joey says. "Any independent producer who needs money comes to us and we're in business together. We're not saints, we're hard-headed businessmen."

He says there are quite a few TV shows currently on the air that are mob-financed. And a great many movies. "You'd be amazed," he says, with a wink, "at some of the people who've come to us for money."

But they turn many propositions down, Joey says the mob is very careful about where they will invest and that is particularly true in show business.

"With movies," he says, "we go into things we know the public wants—sex, crime, spy stuff. Remember that it was Joe Adonis who pioneered those Italian spaghetti-Westerns."

There is the possibility that his own book, "Killer," may become a movie. He says it has been bought but the company that bought it hasn't done anything with it yet. It could be a winner because it has plenty of action and violence—and it's all true.

Some further quotes from Joey about his business: "There's still plenty of call for my services. There's always somebody wanting to settle a score, somebody getting too big or too old.

"It was $5,000 a hit when I started. Now it's $20,000 and sometimes I ask more. And there's an unwritten law that the person who hires me, if I get nailed, has to support my family while I'm away.

"I'm not afraid of dying. We live. We die. That's the way the game goes. Look, I'm going to die sometime. What's the difference if I die peacefully or violently? You're just as dead.

"I won't deal with people out of the business. I don't trust them. I meet a lot of so-called honest citizens—four or or five a week—who want to blow somebody away. They only spell trouble.

"I can knock off 30 hoods a day, no problem with the law. Cops don't give a damn if a hood is knocked off. But let one honest soul get hurt, we got trouble. That'swhy the mob don't put out contracts on civilians."

Sugar and spice

Of the 722 juvenile delinquent centers last year, only 388 held females, with 86 facilities catering to them exclusively.

Our Christmas Club is 11% merrier.

Here's a warm thought for next year's holiday season:

Wells Fargo pays a full 5% interest on Christmas Club accounts, while California's other four largest banks are still paying 4½%.

The difference between 4½% and 5%, over the one-year period of a Christmas Club maturity, is 11%.

Why settle for less, when the same amount of money over the same period of time can earn 11% more?

COMPLETING THE LINK — Westar II, the second half of America's first domestic communications satellite system launched in April, above, now relays telegram and mailgram messages, conversations, data, graphics and television broadcasts to any point in the continental United States via stations located in New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Dallas and Los Angeles—an 8,000-mile terrestrial microwave system. Launched last month, Westar II can transmit messages at the rate of eight million words per second. The first mailgrams relayed through space via the completed Westar system are examined by William Dunlap, assistant Postmaster General, left, and Earl E. Hilburn, president of Western Union. The new system is jointly operated by Western Union and the U.S. Postal Service.

New controversy

Santa termed slick huckster

CHICAGO (UPI) — Santa Claus, the kindly old dispenser of Christmas cheer, is really a slick huckster who has taught greed, not love, to millions of children, it was charged today.

"Let's leave Santa at the North Pole!" writes Catholic layman John Mahoney in the December issue of U.S. Catholic.

"How often do you see a Santa who is not serving as an outright huckster?" Mahoney asked in the Sounding Board section of the Claretian Fathers monthly magazine.

"Whereas the true lesson of Christmas is a message of divine mercy and sacrifice, Santa is the front man for greedy corporations and the tutor in greed for millions of American children. He is the saint of Gimme ...

"A couple of generations back Santa was a relatively innocent impostor, but today he has become a total sellout to materialism and greed. He is in the pay of the big toy manufacturers and department stores."

Mahoney said he was once shattered when told there was no Santa Claus and vowed his children would not have to suffer such a blow. Later he said, he found better reason "for puncturing this overinflated figure."

"Young children, whose uncommitted motto in life is 'what's in it for me?', can scarcely overlook that, according to the information they have received, it is the Jolly Old Elf rather than the Babe who delivers the tangible goods."

Mahoney maintains the "Santa myth" means cheating children.

"A greedy child is never appeased. A spoiled child appreciates nothing. An overindulged child is convinced that the main figure of Christmas is not Christ, but himself."

He noted that a quarter century ago a movement to "put Christ back in Christmas" failed because "we failed to take Santa Claus out of Christmas."

The magazine said a prepublication survey showed 57 per cent of readers checked disagreed with Mahoney that Santa teaches children to be greedy.

A total of 66 per cent felt Santa should be retained as a myth and 80 per cent said they did not believe they had suffered any harm from believing in Santa Claus.

Commented Mrs. Donald Wenger, a reader from Birmingham, Mich., "Let's not blame children's greed on a lovely, mythical old man who labors year round to make others happy. The average adult is the 'saint of Gimme' and our children are astute learners."

The Bureau of the Census says nearly 10 per cent of Americans are 65 years old or older.

Eagles Auxiliary sets bazaar and luncheon

The Ladies Auxiliary, Fraternal Order of Eagles, has scheduled its annual bazaar and luncheon Friday at the Eagles Hall, 594 W. Mission Blvd.

Mrs. Dusty Rhodes and Mrs. Juanita Burmeister are chairmen of the benefit party which begins at 10 a.m. and will continue all day.

Mrs. Ophelia Williams is chairwoman for the "Yum Yum" booth featuring pies, cakes, candies and breads.

The handcraft booth will be supervised by Mrs. Gertrude Leonard and Mrs. Isabelle Patton. Hand painted and embroidered dish towels and pillow cases will be featured. Ceramics and other items will also be offered.

Mrs. Emma Wilson will be proprietor of the "Green Thumb" booth. A variety of plants in all sizes will be offered.

Eagles auxiliaries are widely recognized for charitable programs in their communities and the nation. The annual bazaar is one of the major projects which will help in efforts to aid City of Hope, Cancer Fund and Heart Fund.

Luncheon will be served all day. Featured will be salads, slaw and sandwiches.

Persons wishing to contribute to the bazaar may call Mrs. Rhodes or Mrs. Barry Williamson.

Bethel 301 farewell night slated

Bethel 301, International Order of Job's Daughters, has scheduled a farewell meeting at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Claremont Masonic Lodge. Initiation will also be conducted.

Refreshments will be served after the meeting by the line officers and their mothers. Line officers are Wildi Taylor, Kathy Greene, Janet Forbes, Debbie Smith and Roberta Tracey. A slumber party at the home of the honored queen, Susie Wray, will follow the meeting.

Club plans celebration

The Claremont Senior Citizens have planned a Thanksgiving dinner Monday noon at Denault's, 1700 W. Holt Ave. Mrs. Bettye Smith, mayor of Claremont, will be the speaker.

The group's business meeting is slated Dec. 6 at 11 a.m. at Taylor Hall in Claremont. Each Friday during December, Claremont Senior Citizens will play cards from 1 to 3:30 p.m. in Taylor Hall. The group will celebrate Christmas on Dec. 18 with a party and potluck dinner.

Trips planned for December include a visit to the South Coast Plaza on Dec. 4; traveling to Lake Arrowhead on Dec. 16; and seeing the Christmas lights in Balboa on Dec. 22.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Teasing won't help

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

Dear Dr. Brothers: My husband ridicules me in public because of my fear of flying. He is really angry because I can't bring myself to take a vacation with him if it involves going by plane. He seems to think I enjoy my fear and that if he makes enough fun of me I'll give up and get over it. All it does is embarrass me.

I have nightmares that he insists I must fly and that I end up failing him, or flying and crashing. I feel I must overcome my fear but I don't know how to begin. — B.T.

Dear B.T.: You are not alone in your fear. The fear of planes and of flying is a very common modern phobia. Like other phobias, it should not be considered lightly. Your husband's attitude will not help and he should be made to understand that your anxieties are real.

Perhaps the worst thing a parent or a spouse can do to a person suffering from fear is to try to kid them out of it or to tease and make fun of the person. To get rid of the anxieties the individual usually needs to feel that there is someone who understands and will give him support.

There has been some success working with groups to help overcome their fear of flying. Individuals in the groups must be supportive and help each other.

A fear of flying, like all phobias, is learned. To help a person conquer his fear, he must be desensitized and the experience then becomes unlearned, and the fear is gone. In these therapy groups, patients talk about their fears. It has been found that people who are afraid to fly have other phobias as well, and often when a person learns to cope with one fear, he can also conquer other fears.

Some individuals have found that hypnosis helps to control their fear of flying; others have found that they need the help of a psychiatrist or of group therapy.

Frequently, a fear of flying is realted to a general fear of losing control. People who fear planes and flying usually lead very well ordered, highly controlled lives and often are successful individuals. In short, they are in control of themselves. When they are in a plane, they must put themselves totally in the hands of another. Some psychiatrists feel that this fear of being out of control often affects other areas of an individual's life. A person may also have a fear of losing control sexually and may therefore be unable to achieve complete release of sexual satisfaction.

You will probably need some form of professional help if you wish to completely overcome your fear of flying. You should feel no shame or sense of embarrassment about seeking this help. You may find that you're able to gain a great deal of insight into yourself and your marriage after a relatively short period of treatment. This may be beneficial to you in many ways that might seem to be totally unrelated to your phobia about flying.

I think a professional might also wish to see your husband who may need help in order to better understand your problem. If he wishes to have any understanding of people in business, as well as in his marriage and his social life, he should have some concept of, and sympathy for, the fears and anxieties of others.

Baseball league plans sale

A rummage and variety sale is planned Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 24 by the Claremont Pony-Colt baseball league.

To be staged at the Youth Activity Center, Indian Hill Boulevard and Scripps College, Claremont, the sale will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

In addition to used items and assorted gifts for Christmas, the event will include an opportunity to taste-test tamales before placing orders for them.

Longer life

Hand-washing wash-and-wear fabrics may be tedious but it will help them look new and fresh longer.

Kari Hetland is wed in Chino ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Albiol are making their home at the Haifa Arabian Ranch, Santa Ynez, where the groom is employed as manager and trainer.

The couple was wed in an afternoon ceremony read by the Rev. Robert Bushnell, pastor of the Brethren in Christ Church in Chino, at the home of the bride.

The bride is the former Kari Agnes Hetland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guttorm Hetland of Chino. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Albiol of Chino.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown with an A-line organza skirt and cape sleeves. She wore a floral headpiece and carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

Miss Lisa Hetland was maid of honor for her sister.

The groom chose his brother, Robert Albiol, as best man.

A reception at the Hetland home honored the newlyweds after the rites.

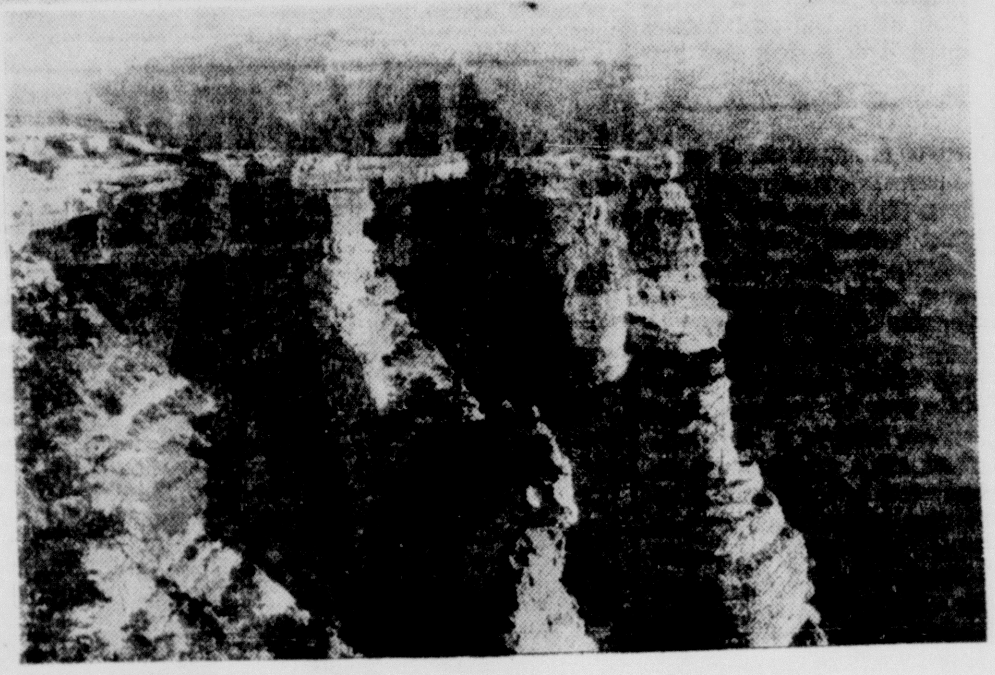
RESOURCES—Not all of America's natural resources can be converted into energy or industrial products. Some of them need only be there in order to reap their benefits. California's giant Sequoias, below, humble man by their sheer presence, a presence predating the birth of Christ. A favorite for turn-of-the-century honeymooners was New York's Niagara Falls, top right, an awesome spectacle that still sends shivers up one's spine as thousands of gallons of rushing water tumble over the cliffs. The natural majesty of the Grand Canyon, second down from right, is still capable of causing a knot in most peoples' throats where shifting shadows, stark shapes and brilliant colors amaze all who see it. The "granddaddy" of Yellowstone National Park's 200 geysers is Old Faithful, bottom right, which still draws thousands of tourists annually. It erupts every 65 minutes to thrill onlookers as it spews 12,000 gallons of steamed water into the air.



$10 billion or more

FTC official says rigged bids costing taxpayers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Price-fixers overcharge consumers by a conservative estimate of $10 billion a year, and perhaps twice or three times that much, Federal Trade Commissioner Mayo J. Thompson contends.

He says rigged bidding in sales to local, state and federal agencies is so commonplace as to be "almost universal."

Thompson makes his charges in an eight-page memo he distributed among his four fellow commissioners last June. It drew no action, so he made it public at a hearing of Congress' Joint Economic Committee recently.

He argued for greater use of computers to examine tens of thousands of invoices for "suspicious looking pricing patterns" which would suggest companies had conspired to divide a market among themselves and to charge artificially high prices.

"If one assumes that price fixing is going on in 10 per cent of the U.S. economy —and it is hard to escape the feeling that this would be a quite conservative estimate in the matter — this would mean that a minimum of $100 billion worth of goods or services are sold in the country each year at prices set by collusion rather than competition," he wrote.

Americans are overcharged $10 billion if the average conspiracy raises prices artificially by 10 per cent, Thompson said.

Gen. Omar Bradley recovering at home

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Omar Bradley, 80, the nation's only living five-star general, was hospitalized for eight days because of a bout with trachial bronchitis, an Army aide said today.

Bradley was discharged from the UCLA Medical Center Wednesday and is further recovering at his Beverly Hills home, the spokesman said.

Bradley spent two weeks in the hospital in August, 1973, for blood clots on his lungs and underwent emergency surgery then when anticoagulants failed to break up the clots

Jupiter is the culprit

Catastrophe lurks in the heavens

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS — (NEA) — In a world of uncertainty, at least one thing is perfectly clear, to at least some people: Jupiter will be responsible for much trouble in the air.

A congress of astrologers meeting here has unanimously forecast that horoscopes were going to be as bad as bad can be by the end of the 20th century.

They — all 150 of them from all over the world — did, however, reassure that this did not necessarily mean a third world war.

There are other pointers. By 1984, Jupiter, the symbol of prosperity, will diametrically oppose the other heavenly bodies grouped around the sun. And the sun will then be in the house of Capricorn, which rules economic and political life.

The 1974 astrologers' congress met to discuss not only the future of the world but of their profession. Also they hoped to establish in the mind of the public the fact that they bear no relationship whatsoever to the multitude of soothsayers, crystal ball gazers, palm readers and other diviners.

They believe, on the contrary, that theirs is a definite science based on the study of astronomy, mathematics and the figuring of probabilities.

Like all involved in science, they do not pretend to be infallible forecasters of the future. They look upon themselves as meteorologues of history or "historical meteorologists."

Discussing the prediction concerning Jupiter, one of the experts explained: "In simple terms, this could mean that capitalism as it is known today could come to an end."

The well-known 44-year-old Belgian astrologer Gustave Lambert Brahy, who has specialized in financial predictions and is often consulted by the great and mighty of this world, says: "This conjunction of the planets means a grave crisis, that's for sure. What form will it take? I cannot tell. We can determine critical periods, but cannot fill in the details. We are not prophets. Anyhow, according to the position of the planets, I believe this might mean a civilization crisis, the end of capitalism, for example. I can also see wars and revolutions in Asia and South America. Certain signs might also mean a world cataclysm, like the disappearance of part of a continent."

In the course of their meetings, the astrologers pointed to a very strong indicator that surely went unnoticed by the average man. During the last two decades of this century the planets will draw together in precisely the same configuration as existed at the time of the first and second world wars. This does not necessarily mean that the rest of us should start thinking in terms of atom-bomb shelters.

The great French specialist of world predictions, 84-year-old Andre Barbault, looks at the cycle of planets as the "respiratory system of time," which sounds somewhat obscure to the layman. But to quote him: "The universe achieves equilibrium when the planets are harmoniously grouped around the sun and the earth. Unfortunately, we are on the threshold of an exceptional configuration and from 1982 on we shall live the most critical years of this century. It would mean an intense crisis and perhaps the opening of a new society."

As to the president of the association, 58-year-old Pierre Colombier, he confirmed that he, too, believed in an unavoidable crisis generated by widespread impoverishment affecting, in particular, the younger generations and the Asian people. All the same, he added this comforting though somewhat enigmatical note: "I am an innate optimist."

1890 time capsule recalls 'perfect day'

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (UPI) — It was a perfect day "observed in a fitting manner," noted the secretary of the New Bedford YMCA on Oct. 6, 1890.

The comments from Charles S. Kelley were contained in a time capsule placed in the cornerstone of a new YMCA building dedicated on that date and found during the recent demolition of the building.

The square copper box about the size of an automobile battery was opened in the office of Mayor John Markey. There was no message for future generations, just the comment from Kelley that "fair skies and cool breezes made it a perfect day that was observed in a fitting manner."

However, the box contained a number of documents and mementoes, including a picture of the White House autographed by President Benjamin Harrison.

It also contained a number of newspapers, including the New York Times, the Boston Herald, and the Morning Mercury and Evening Standard papers in New Bedford, according to Joseph Finnerty, administrative assistant to Markey.

"There was an account from Capt. Gilbert B. Borden at the Point Barrow House of Refuge in Alaska, giving what was described as 'an interesting account of the habits of the Esquimaux, and additional facts concerning life in the icy north.'

"A number of New Bedford whaling ships went off on two and three-year voyages to the Arctic," said Finnerty.

Finnerty said the capsule also contained a note from Gov. John Q. A. Brackett, an 1890 silver dollar, a program for the cornerstone laying of the day, a number of annual reports of YMCA's of Massachusetts and Rhode Island and an item about the city of New Bedford, and what was taking place on that date.

The contents have been given to directors of the YMCA, and will be placed on display in recently constructed facilities.

4 held in theft of 300 watches

SANTA CLARA (UPI) — Santa Clara County sheriff's deputies have arrested four persons on charges that they stole $75,000 worth of electronic watches from Microma Division of Intel Corp.

Detectives said the arrests resulted from a two-month investigation into the theft of 300 watches.

TALENTED BEAUTY—Denny Roberts, Miss Louisiana in last year's Miss America beauty contest and a national finalist in the Metropolitan Opera auditions, will sing in the Ambassador Auditorium, Pasadena, Dec. 7 and 8. The pops concert will be a benefit for the International Students Scholarship Fund.

Beauty queen to perform

Singing star Denny Robert will make her West Coast debut in a pops concert at the Ambassador Auditorium, Pasadena, Dec. 7 and 8. Also on the program is the New Orleans recording group, the Ronnie Kole Trio and the Pacific Pops Orchestra, directed by James Christensen.

Miss Robert is a singer, pianist, actress and dancer. A debutant in her home town, Baton Rouge, La., she sang with the symphony orchestra there. Crowned Miss Louisiana in 1973, she finished as one of the top 10 in the national Miss America pageant and received the No. 1 national talent award.

She made her European singing debut at the Silver Rose Ball in Vienna, and recently sang before President and Mrs. Ford and other dignitaries in Washington. She was a national finalist and scholarship winner in the 1973 Metropolitan Opera auditions, and this year won the Southern region San Francisco Opera auditions.

GAMBOLING ON THE GREEN — Members of Koroyar, Los Angeles-based ethnic music and dance troupe, perform the Cherwoma, a women's dance from western Bulgaria. The 25-member company, directed by Richard Unciano, will present a program in the university theater at Cal Poly at 8 p.m. Saturday. On the schedule are Armenian songs, Greek war dances, Turkish dances and diaphonic singing from western Bulgaria. Marc Bailey will play the dulcimer, Kalimba African finger-harp and guitar.

L. A. 4

Jazz and classics quartet to give concert at Mt. San Antonio College Science Center

The L. A. 4 will present a concert of jazz and classics in the Social Science Center at Mt. San Antonio College at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Four of America's top jazz instrumentalists, guitarist Laurindo Almeida, bassist Ray Brown, alto sax and flutist Bud Shank and drummer Shelly Manne, have joined to form the four. The results have been compared by jazz historian Leonard Feather to the exploits of the Modern Jazz Quartet.

The LA 4's particular flavor derives from Almeida's versatility. Though he's a classic guitarist steeped in Bach and Villa-Lobos, Almeida's jazz connections date from his association with Stan Kenton in 1947, include a tour with the MJQ, and have paid off in several Grammy Awards. In performance, Almeida amply illustrates the jazz-classic connection.

Shank is as a jazz stylist, but knows Asian music well. He has recorded with sitarist Ravi Shankar and Japanese kotoist Kimio Eto.

Brown, for 13 consecutive years the top bassist in both Down Beat and Playboy jazz polls, is a craftsman whose duets (with Almeida) and solos regularly highlight L.A. 4 concerts.

Manne, one of the most influential jazz drummers, is a constantly evolving performer. Of a pair of recent, sold-out L.A. 4 concerts, Feather said, "His fingers-on-cymbal solo, the grace and smoothness of his beat on the Brazilian songs, were surpassed only by his uninhibited swinging on the calypso encore, 'St. Thomas.'"

General admission ($4) and student ($2) tickets are available at the MSAC Community Services Office, through Friday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., or by mail, 1100 N. Grand Ave., Walnut, 91789. Tickets are also available at all Wallich's Music City stores and all Liberty agencies.

'How the Other Half Loves'

La Verne College to do Alan Ayckbourn comedy

The Theater Arts Department of La Verne College will present "How the Other Half Loves" in the Dailey Theater at 8 p.m. Saturday and Dec. 1, 6 and 14.

The Alan Ayckbourn farce follows a five-weekend run of Ibsen's "Ghosts."

John Woodruff, drama director, has introduced a festive party atmosphere this year with coffee, candies and gallery showings for the entertainment of the audience prior to performances.

Ayckbourn's farce puts the living quarters for two separate married couples during two separate days on the stage simultaneously, a situation that makes it possible for the audience to observe a third couple visiting as guests of both pairs. Members of the audience will join all three couples for diner on two separate occasions.

Further information can be obtained at the La Verne College Campus Center, 593-7247.

VCT play contest closes Dec. 1

The deadline for Valley Community Theater's one-act playwriting contest is Dec. 1. Each winner will receive $100.

New Voices Showcase, a program supported by the National Endowment for the Arts, will present the winning plays in April.

Playwrights should send four copies of their plays to Wilbur Case, chairman of the selection committee, at 2275 Seventh St., La Verne 91750.

The manuscripts will receive a critique by VCT. Members of the selection committee are Cathrine Firman, Beverly Gassner, Milton Sawitz and Marian Holmes.

Submissions to the contest so far have ranged from Children's plays to theater of the absurd. The contest is open to all forms and styles of dramatic composition.

Further information can be obtained from Case at 593-1218.

'Hot 1 Baltimore' will be TV series

Norman (All in the Family) Lear will produce the award winning New York play, "Hot 1 Baltimore," as a series for ABC-TV in January.

The play, written by Lanford Wilson, is about a group of seedy people cast adrift in a crumbling Baltimore hotel during its last days. The letter "e" in "hotel" has been dropped to emphasize the decay of the once great hotel whose inhabitants include prostitutes, a spiritualist and a host of miscreants.

Certainly, if you look at Lear's track record on television, and the way he and his writers perceive contemporary life, this situation comedy should fare well for ABC. And although the New York drama critics fell all over themselves writing hosannas about the play, it can be improved, but only by skillful writing, which has been the trademark of Lear productions.

Azusa Pacific to present Menotti opera

Azusa Pacific College will present "Amahl and the Night Visitors" in the Turner Campus Center at 7 and 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Admission is $1.

The opera by Gian-Carlo Menotti, the first written especially for television, will be directed by Earle Anderson. The work had its premiere on the NBC Television Opera Theater Dec. 24, 1951.

Folk group to perform in Claremont

Jasna Planina Folk Ensemble will present an international dance party at Friends meeting hall, 727 W. Harrison Ave., Claremont, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. Tickets are 75 cents.

The evening will include instruction in Balkan dances and songs, two short performances by the ensemble and general folk dancing. Refreshments will be available.

Members of the Claremont-based ensemble are working to finish new Croatian costumes and waiting for special dancing boots to arrive from England for a suite of Croatian songs and dances they plan to debut on Saturday. This suite was just choreographed for the group by Nena Sokcic, who was for many years a singer and dancer with Lado, the national folk ensemble of Croatia, and is now a performer and consultant with Aman Folk Ensemble of Los Angeles.

Nancy Lee Ruyter, instructor of dance at UC Riverside, is director of Jasna Planina. The members this year are Daniel Cole, Sarah Cole, Nicky Gonzalez, Susan Quinlan, Carol Jane Robinson, Lauren Young, Alison Russell, Bertha Makow, Jim Maynard, Steve Bochkor, Richard Duree, Lisa Geller, Barbara Vilas, Carol Bassinger, Ruth Augustine and Milo Somers.

Proceeds from the dance party will go into a costume fund. Further information can be obtained at 621-1582.

Churchgoers beat robber to death

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UPI) — Worshipers at a Seventh Day Adventist Church beat to death a 29-year old man attempting an armed robbery of the congregation during a prayer service.

Police said that one of the churchgoers was wounded when the bandit's gun went off after he was attacked by the congregation. A second holdup man, armed with a knife, fled.

Sun opens playoffs

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — The up-down fortunes of the Southern California Sun will be definitely on the down side tonight as the WFL playoffs begin.

The Sun (13-7) takes on the Hawaii Hawaiians (9-11) with kickoff scheduled at Anaheim Stadium at 7 p.m.

If the injury list is accurate, the Sun defense is hurting and the offense all but crippled.

Fullback James McAlister is definitely out. Quarterback Tony Adams has a bruised shoulder and, as of Tuesday, was "not throwing too much with authority" according to coach Tom Fears. Wide receiver Dave Williams reinjured his ankle in practice Monday and was hobbling. Tight end Dave Parks has a sore back and running back Kermit Johnson is still bothered by a pinched nerve in his neck.

The Sun has been a passing team. As Fears has remarked before, "it wasn't planned that way, but that's the way it turned out."

Now the heart of the attack, quarterback, and all three top receivers are hurting.

As if this isn't enough, defensive tackle Dave Roller, possibly the best defensive lineman in the league, has a bruised hip.

Everybody but McAlister is expected to play. But how well they perform is a moot question.

Adams wound up as the WFL's top passer. The 6-1, 190-pound Utah State graduate completed the regular season with 276 completions in 510 attempts for 3,905 yards and 23 touchdowns.

McAlister, who had to wait until he got into pro ball to discover he could catch the ball, finished as the third leading receiver in the league. James had 65 receptions for 772 yards and four touchdowns.

Williams ranked seventh with 59 catches for 979 yards and 11 TDs. He and Adams are a dangerous long bomb or touchdown threat anytime the Sun crosses the midfield stripe.

Johnson, the club's top rusher, wound up as the sixth best in the league. The former UCLA star gained 1,008 yards in 249 carries and scored six touchdowns.

The Hawaiians, after a slow start, have come fast the second half of the season. After a 2-8 start, the club did an about face and finished with a 7-3 spurt the last half of the campaign.

Leading the way have been NFL veteran Randy Johnson at quarterback, a mid season acquisition, and wide receiver Tim Delaney.

Delaney, from Chino, is the WFL's top receiver. The 5-11, 185-pounder, who played at MSAC and San Deigo State, caught 89 passes for 1,232 yards and eight touchdowns.

Johnson has completed 62 percent of his passes since joining the WFL.

Another local player on the Hawaiians is former USC tackle Mike McGirr of Walnut who played for Rowland High.

Players' efforts backfire

ANAHEIM An effort by players of the Southern California Sun to make some positive news backfired Wednesday.

The players called a press conference to counteract some of the negative publicity the WFL has been getting which they feared was keeping ticket sales to tonight's playoff game down. They only wanted to voice support of the league and their club.

It was not a big story.

However, some members of the media apparently thought the players were going to announce that they were pulling out of tonight's game.

It was an erroneous assumption.

Wide receiver Dave Williams acted as spokesman at the press conference. Williams read a prepared statement pledging the players' cooperation in working with management and other teams to help make the WFL "a complete and total success."

A question and answer period followed during which Williams was asked about the players' willingness to play tonight after all the negative publicity last weekend.

Williams replied that the players had voted unanimously to play.

His answer was mean't to be a gesture of support. He did not mention the vote until asked about how the players felt. It certainly was NOT the reason the press conference was called.

Yet both wire services released stories to the effect that it was and several radio and television stations carried stories that Sun players had called a press conference to announce that they WOULD play tonight's game.

The whole thing was made to sound as though the players had considered pulling out of the game right up to the day before it was played. This was not the case.

Poly poloists reach one goal

Cal Poly is celebrating its third California Collegiate Athletic Association championship in the six years it has been a member of the conference but there is disappointment in Broncoville.

Poly just missed being invited to this weekend's NCAA national water polo tournament this weekend at Belmont Plaza in Long Beach.

So coach Stan Jackson still has one of his two goals to reach. The first was a CCAA championship which Poly won in easy fashion last weekend at the conference finals.

The water polo crown is only the university's third title. The first two were in cross country and track under Ron Allice's coaching.

Jackson has quite a record despite never playing the sport or knowing much about it when he accepted the job. His teams have enjoyed six consecutive winning seasons.

A former star quarterback at Poly and a member of the school's football staff, Jackson decided to try something new.

"Originally, water polo was just an off-season sport for swimmers," Jackson. "Now it's something different. A lot of football coaches end up in aquatics. Once you learn how to organize it you really enjoy it. It's like playing football in the water. It gets quite nasty under there."

There's no question how rugged of a sport water polo is.

'Best conditioned'

"The best conditioned athletes in the world play water polo," the Poly coach explained. "We work out five hours a day during the season from 7 to 8:30 a.m. and from 2:30 to 5 p.m."

A big reason for Poly's improvement is a year-around conditioning program plus Jackson's recruiting.

"I look for the great athletes and get them to play our sport," he said. "If I could, I would take the Miami Dolphins."

Jackson has seen a change in the game in his six years.

"Coaches used to stress conservative play but now the idea is defense and running," he said. "You try to get the ball down as quick as possible."

Water polo is basically a California sport because of our climate and year-around programs.

Seven of the eight teams at Long Beach are from California with only the Air Force Academy being from out-of-state. Defending champion California is the favorite against the likes of UC Irvine, UC Santa Barbara, UC Davis, Cal State Fullerton, UCLA and Stanford.

With its first CCAA crown behind it, Poly shouldn't be far away from a berth in the NCAA championships.

★ ★ ★

Nuts to Little League.

The idea of banning foreign teams from the "World" Series mainly because of Taiwan's domination is foreign to American sportsmanship. What would have been the reaction if the shoe was on the other foot if the U.S. was barred because of winning somthing too much.

Now the Little League should go one more step and halt post-season national and regional play.

It is stupid to end a summer league early in July just so a handful of All-Stars can participate in post-season play.

A better idea would be to extend the local seasons until August so more players can participate and narrow any post-season action to the Southern California area.

★ ★ ★

Some people at Poly aren't overjoyed about the 5-3-2 final footbal record since new coach Andy Vinci promised bigger and better things when he took the job.

But miracles don't happen overnight and the record is Poly's best since 1962.

"We are now just a step away from being outstanding," Vinci said.

But Vinci realizes he needs to spend less time and effort this off-season on raising money and more on recruiting and coaching.

That's where Poly's administration can help.

SAL's decision angers Norvell

Garry Norvell, the football coach at Ganesha High School, was upset about the manner in which the San Antonio League principals determined which two of the four teams which tied for second place in the final standings would enter the CIF 3-A playoffs.

Claremont and Upland were picked to represent the league along with champion Pomona by a draw of names from a hat.

Norvell wrote a letter to the SAL principals which is reproduced below:

"During the course of the 1974 San Antonio League season, four football teams ended with identical 4-3 records, all tied for second place in the league.

"The teams were Claremont, Damien, Ganesha and Upland. To resolve this conflict so that two teams could represent our league, the principals or their representatives met at Garey High on Monday, Nov. 18, at 9 a.m.

"Each of the four principals whose schools were tied presented their case as to why their team should be chosen. It should have been quite logical because both Ganesha and Upland had two wins apiece over the other teams' single win.

"Ganesha beat Claremont and Damien, Upland had wins over Ganesha and Damien, Claremont had only beaten Upland and Damien had only beaten Claremont.

"The Garey High principal made an appeal that careful consideration be taken to evaluate and send the strongest teams.

"At this time it was proposed that each principal submit two names of the teams he felt deserved to play based on record, merit or potential.

"The Montclair principal came out strong for a proposal that the two teams be drawn from a hat, lottery style. And so the two proposals were to be voted on: 1. Each principal evaluate and vote for the two teams, or 2. Pick the teams lottery style.

"Ganesha, Garey and Pomona voted for the evaluative method. Montclair and Upland voted for the lottery as did Damien after it realized pre-league games would not be considered. Claremont's activities director representing the principal had to vote for the lottery after he found out his team had lost two of the three games under consideration.

"The Chino principal simply refused to vote, apparently not having the courage of conviction to express himself. With this, the vote went 4-3 in favor of the lottery.

"The one Claremont vote was slightly tainted because the representative had no apparent instructions from his principal.

"The lottery picked Upland, which deserved to be chosen. The next selection was Claremont which has no business in the playoffs at all due to their record in the league and performance against the teams involved in the tie.

"The inequality was that Ganesha had beaten Claremont, 22-12. The point is that a monumental hoax has been perpetrated upon the students of Ganesha High School by a decided lack of ability of five principals to make an evaluative decision.

"Principals are supposed to be trained to evaluate each situation and promote the decision making process of education by example, rather than to sink to the depths of a lottery to get them off the hook.

"A hat drawing tries to transcend all educational theory as far as relieving them of their educational responsibility to the students.

"In short, principals are made and paid to make decisions on facts.

"For those of you who are concerned about this type of inequality, please realize the difficulty involved in explaining to 46 deserving football players that the opportunity they earned can not be realized because five principals were not capable or interested in making a decision on merit or facts.

"Fortunately, the Ganesha High football team has the unbounded resilience so common in adolescence today. However, situations like this promote the so-called generation scepticism that permeates our educational system and creates our credibility gap.

ROGIE BLOCKS SHOT

Kings' goalie Rogie Vachon blocks shot taken by Montreal's Peter Mahovlich (20) after he takes a pass from Guy LaPointe. Canadiens and Kings played to a 3-3 tie Wednesday night at the Forum.

Kings waste their chance to gain ground

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

INGLEWOOD — The Los Angeles Kings held on to their first place position in the National Hockey League's Division III but they are angry about wasting an opportunity to gain ground.

The Montreal Canadiens rallied from a 3-1 deficit to score two goals in the third period to earn a 3-3 tie before 13,284 fans at the Forum Wednesday night.

As a result, the Kings still enjoy a two-point margin over Montreal in the standings.

"We had the momentum and we lost it," was the words of Kings' coach Bob Pulford after the game.

"I don't think we folded," he continued. "We just stopped forechecking in the third period. You can't let Montreal get started. We could have won the game. I don't think Montreal has that many better skaters than we have."

Guy LaFleur, who accounted for all three Candien goals, assisted on Bob Gainey's goal at the 4:19 mark and then hit the tying goal on a five-footer with 10:36 remaining on a power play situation when Terry Harper was in the penalty box.

Mike Murphy picked up two of the Kings' goals while Bob Murdoch contributed the third as he fired 11 shots on goal, one short of the Kings' club record.

Fighting broke out with 4:53 left in the second period with three players on both teams sent to the penalty box.

The Kings, 10-2-6 for the season, open a two-game road trip in Pittsburgh Saturday night. They visit Detroit Sunday and return to the Forum next Wednesday to host the New York Islanders.

KING SHOTS — L.A. has scored first in 16 of their 19 games . . . Murphy has four goals and six points in last five games . . . Murdoch has three goals and nine points in last eight games.

Citrus is seeking crown outright

Citrus College has a co-championship in the Mission Conference in the bag whether it beats Grossmont or not Saturday night, but the Owls would like to win the title outright and remain unbeaten for the regular season.

So, it's big game night again at Citrus Stadium, where the Owls pulled out a 29-28 victory over Saddleback last weekend.

Grossmont, 5-0-2 in the standings, 7-0-2 overall, compared to Citrus' 7-0, 8-0-1, can only win if it is to gain a piece of the crown. That decision was made by league officials who determine the conference champion based on a point system — awarding two points for each conference victory and one point for each tie.

Going into the contest, Citrus has 14 points based on this system, while Grossmont has 12. A victory for Grossmont, would give it 14 points also, a tie for the title and probably a berth in division two of the state playoffs.

Coach John Strycula would just as soon give up the playoff berth whether his Owls win or lose. The Mission champion is scheduled to visit Camino Norte champion Santa Rosa, Friday, Nov. 29.

Strycula is on record as disapproving of the playoffs in general. "We just don't have the manpower to play a 13-game schedule," he says.

But, the veteran Citrus coach hasn't had any problems with a lack of manpower this season.

Strycula got 162 yards and a touchdown out of freshman running back Herbie Holmes in the win over Saddleback.

Holmes has been in and out of the lineup all season due to injuries. He's spelled tailback Roy Prather when he's been healthy. Prather, who needs only eight yards to reach 1,000 for the season, gained an additional 65 yards on 14 carries.

"When he's healthy," says Strycula of Holmes," he may be the best back in the conference."

If that's true, the Owls may have the best three in the conference, taking Prather and fullback Ed White into account. White, an All-Mission selection last year, has 780 yards and five TDs this season.

In other Mission Conference games Saturday, Chaffey completes the season by hosting Saddelback, Palomar visits Riverside and Southwestern hosts San Bernardino.

Panther coach Willie Richardson expects to have quarterback Mario Caridi in the lineup. He was shaken up in last week's 14-9 loss to San Diego City.

Chaffey will be looking for its second win of the season.

Sharman to try lineup switch

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Los Angeles Laker Coach Bill Sharman, attempting to shake up his struggling team, announced that Elmore Smith and Stan Love will be in the starting lineup against the Houston Rockets here Friday.

Stock cars ready for Ontario

Stock cars with some of America's foremost drivers at the wheel invade Ontario Motor Speedway this weekend for the first running of the Grand National 500.

The final race in the 1974 Winston Cup series is scheduled for 11 a.m. Sunday. The Permatex 200 for late model sportsman cars will go Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

There's also an all-star music festival Saturday night in the Ontario infield and a gala pre-race show Sunday morning.

Among the favorites for the Times 500 are Richard Petty, David Pearson, Cale Yarborough, A. J. Foyt and Bobby Allison.

Petty, the five-time Grand National champion has won 10 races this season. Pearson has been the winner in 25 of his last 45 races. Yarborough has matched Petty in 1974 wins with 10, Foyt has won the only two Grand National races ever held at Ontario and Allison is one of the all-time kingpins in stock car racing.

Strong challenges are expected from five-time Grand National West champion Ray Elder; former Can-Am champ George Follmer; two-time U.S. Auto Club stock champion Roger McCluskey and other top circuit regulars such as Benny Parsons, Buddy Baker, Dave Marcis, James Hylton and David Sisco.

Rookie of the Year honors are still up in the air between Canadian Earl Ross and 20-year-old Richie Panch, both who are entered in the 500.

Ivan Baldwin of Highland was the leading qualifier for the Permatex race followed by Bill Osborne of Pomona and Ron Esau of San Diego. The 50-car field will race 90 laps around Ontario's flat 1½-mile oval.

The All-Star Music Festival Saturday night features Batdorf & Rodney, Canned Heat, Chi Coltrane and Johnny Nash. Hosted by KHJ's disc jockeys the show also includes Cornbred, Sharon Leighton, de Blanc, Fresh Start and the Love, Peace and Happiness Band.

Fans with tickets to Sunday's race may enter the infield and park overnight for $10 per vehicle. Those campers can see the music festival, beginning at 7 p.m., at no charge.

Sunday's pre-race pageantry has a parade and special demonstrations in high-speed bicycling, mini-car racing and gliding plus the 10-ton Boss Truck taking one lap around the oval in an attempt to set a record. The activities will be hosted by Jay Lawrence of KLAC and Bruce Wayne of KFI.

Reserved seats for Sunday's action are $25, $18, $10 and $8. General admission tickets are $6. Tickets may be purchased at the Speedway on race day.

Drake, Malicki top All-H.L. team

Bonita quarterback Harold Drake and Royal Oak linebacker Frank Malicki led the list of All-Hacienda League players selected by league coaches this week.

Drake was chosen the league's most valuable offensive player and Malicki the most valuable defensive player.

League champion Bonita and runnerup Royal Oak each had nine men selected for first and second team honors.

Drake was selected as a quarterback and as a kicker on first team offense.

Drake, a 6-1, 175-pound senior, gained 810 yards total offense with nine touchdowns, passing for 358 yards and two TDs and running for 452 yards and seven TDs.

Malicki, a 6-1, 195-pound senior, led the team in tackles with 130, blocked a punt and intercepted two passes, returning one 50 yards for a touchdown.

Giants' boss admits club may leave

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI — Horace Stoneham has his financial house all straightened out, so much so that he and his Giants can live in San Francisco at least a couple of more years on their own and there will be no need for fellow National League owners to pass the hat around.

While the NL insists it will never give up its territorial rights in the Bay Area to the American League even if it has to subsidize the Giants, Stoneham a proud man who would never accept charity insists he will vacate for greener pastures if he can't make it on his own.

"I'm going to give it one more year and then I'll have to start considering a move," Stoneham said Wednesday on a hurried visit home from Arizona. "I've had four offers from eastern cities to move and some of the minority stockholders in the club have indicated they'd go along with a move if that's what I want.

"Moving the Giants is not in my plans. I'm confident we'll get over this rough spot and be around San Francisco for many, many years. Still, when you have received the kind of support we did in 1974 you have to start thinking of alternatives."

The Giants fell out of the running in the NL West by early June this past season and wound up with a total attendance of barely over 500,000. It was the lowest in the majors during a year in which baseball enjoyed a banner season.

With a reduced player payroll and one of the better radio-tv contracts in the majors, Stoneham didn't take much of a red ink bath in 1974 but it was a losing year all the way around, nevertheless.

Most of the money from the early San Francisco glory years of the 1960s is gone but Stoneham picked up around $5 million recently from a land development venture at Casa Grande, Ariz. That's expected to keep the club afloat in San Francisco for at least two years.

"During that time we expect to improve on the field and have a pennant winner," Stoneham said. "There is nothing like a winner to bring out the fans. This is my goal and one I will do everything humanly possible to achieve. I firmly believe winning and attendance go hand in hand, especially in an area such as San Francisco where people have so many things to pick from."

If things don't turn out the way Stoneham has envisioned, then he will consider some of the offers he has been getting lately. The only thing that really bothers him about giving up in San Francisco is leaving the area to Charlie Finley and his Oakland A's.

Stoneham said flatly he can't see how two teams can live in the area and make money. One or the other is bound to suffer financially. Since Stoneham and the Giants were here first, he feels Finley should move.

"Right now our concern is with the Giants," Stoneham said. "I think if we give the fans a good team to watch they will support us. As for Charlie and his club, what can I say. I'm not interested in moving but he sounds as if he wants to leave. If that's his desire, I say good luck. I think I can outwait him if it comes to that."

Finley and the A's have 13 years left on a 20-year lease with the Oakland Coliseum while Stoneham and the Giants have 22 years left on their original 35-year contract with the City of San Francisco.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Bob Risch of La Puente is the new leader in the PGA qualifying school tourney at Canyon Country Club's North Course.

After six rounds at Silverado Country Club in Napa and here, Risch has a 428 total and a one-stroke lead on British star Peter Oosterhuis of London with Bobby Watkins brother of touring pro Lanny Wadkins, another stroke back.

The low 18 scorers and ties after Friday's final round will join the PGA tour.

Last game just a memory

Zorn still confident

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

Jim Zorn is hoping the pro football scouts didn't watch his final game at Cal State Hayward last week. And if they did, he hopes they discount it.

Zorn, the lefthanded quarterback from Cerritos College, set all kinds of records during his two seasons at Poly but he was disgusted with his finale.

Hayward upset the Broncos, 21-7, last week thanks mainly to seven interceptions, five against Zorn.

"It was all my fault," Zorn admitted. "That's all I can say. I was just throwing the balls up in the air and they caught them. I was totally embarassed."

Zorn led the nation as a junior in total offense with 3,000 yards, an average of 272.7 yards per game. Because of that and the idea to promote interest under new coach Andy Vinci, he was promoted before the season as an All-American candidate.

He still enjoyed a big season and ranked among the nation's NCAA Division II leaders with 236.4 yards per game.

"Overall, my performance this season was very inconsistent," Zorn said. "I had my good games and my bad games."

His high moment was when he set a California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) record when he accounted for 505 total yards in the season's second game against Southern Utah.

Obviously, the low moment came last week. But he was also unhappy when his total yards totaled only 104 against Cal State Northridge the previous week in a wind funnel.

"Sure, it was windy but I can't use that as an excuse," Zorn explained. "A quarterback must adjust to any adverse weather conditions."

But even though it all ended on a down note, Zorn is confident he can get the job done if a pro team gives him a chance. He just wishes he had more experience.

"My capabilities are a lot better than I showed my last two games," he said. "Pro ball is my goal and I believe I can play at that level. I'll be glad to even change positions and play anywhere if that will help."

Zorn admits a big problem for him is the lack of experience plus the disadvantage of ever playing a lot for the same coach or system.

"I really have only been a quarterback for three seasons under three different coaches," he said.

As a junior, Zorn accounted for 2,367 yards but completed only 138 of 337 passes, a weak 40.9 percentage. This year, his yardage was down (1,522) but his percentage was higher (48.1) with 128 completions in 261 attempts.

"We had more of a balanced attack this season as our running game was much stronger so I didn't need to pass as much," Zorn said. "I also have a stronger corps of receivers this season so there weren't as many dropped passes."

Zorn's strong point is his ability to run on sprint-out patterns. That's one reason why he set a Poly school record with 11 touchdowns this season.

"I have always gained a lot of yardage the first few weeks until the defenses cut off the sprint-outs," he explained.

Zorn rushed for 539 yards this year.

His final official statistics total for his two years at Poly show 266 completions in 598 attempts for 4,189 yards and 22 touchdowns. Zorn also rushed for 1,175 yards and 18 TDs for a grand total of 5,364 yards.

Zorn also cut his season interception total to 18 from 20 but the final game certainly added to the total.

As a co-captain, Zorn was also disappointed in Poly's final 5-3-2 record.

"It was disappointing because we had the potential to do better," he said.

What about the future?

"I'm still thinking about what went wrong in the last game," he said. "I guess I will take a couple of weeks rest and just relax. I may play baseball or throw the javelin again."

He feels Poly should continue to improve.

"The only way Poly is going is to improve," he said. "I just wish I had another year. Once you learn the offense, it is much easier."

Fighters wind up drills

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Featherweight titleholder Ruben Olivares and challenger Alexis Arguello of Nicaragua wind up their workouts today for their Saturday afternoon World Boxing Association title bout.

Olivares, 76-4-1 with 69 knockouts, said he has sparred a total of 114 rounds for the Arguello fight. Olivares said he has not sparred so much since a 1970 title bout.

Arguello did not spar Wednesday and was expected to have a light workout today. The challenger has a record of 38-3 with 36 ko's.

Arguello and Olivares meet at the forum in Inglewood, Calif., at 3 p.m. PST Saturday. Promoters were expecting a crowd of 14,000 and a gate of $180,000.

ONE OF NINE — MSAC:s Mando Herrera kicks one of his nine field goals in an early season game for the Mounties. He's the brother of UCLA and Dallas Cowboy kicker, Efren.

Field goal specialist

Herrera seeking Mountie record

By MIKE RAWLINON
P-B Staff Writer

Mando Herrera could become the most prolific field goal kicker ever at Mt. San Antonio College Saturday afternoon when the Mounties complete the season at Mesa College in San Diego.

Herrera has nine for the season which equals the record established by Tom MacKenzie in 1972 and 1973.

Like MacKenzie, Herrera is a soccer-style kicker. Unlike MacKenzie, who developed his style on the playgrounds of West Covina, Herrera grew up with the kicking style in his native Guadalajara, Mex., where he was a soccer player.

His brother Effren made a name for himself at UCLA a few years ago and recently with the Dallas Cowboys. Both prepped at La Puente High.

"Effren helped me learn to kick a football," Mando explained. "When I came here from Mexico, I was 15 and had only played soccer. I had to learn how to kick a football."

Effren, 23, came to this country before his younger brother and was already at UCLA when Mando, 19, decided to move north to live with his sister in La Puente.

Having mastered the art of kicking the football, Mando has progressed to the point of handling all the kicking at MSAC.

"I work more on punting than anything else, he said. But I don't have a preference to one form of kicking over the other."

He leads the team in scoring with 35 points with nine field goals and eight extra points and has averaged 37.2 yards per punt.

Mando is following closely in brother Effren's footsteps. He was recruited by UCLA and would have played there this season except for scoring low on an English placement test.

A couple of weeks ago both had big games for their respective teams.

Mando booted a 19-yard field goal with 28 seconds left to play as MSAC beat Cerritos, 17-16, on a Saturday night. On Sunday, Effren, kicked a 20-yard field goal for Dallas with three seconds left to upset the St. Louis Cardinals.

Mando has been accurate from as far out as the 46 for the Mounties this year. He kicked a 49-yarder at La Puente last season.

Mando has to feel like he's a real part of the team. When everything was going wrong for the Mounties in last week's 59-0 loss to Fullerton, things went bad for him personally. He was ejected from the game by officials over an altercation with a Fullerton player, who remained in the game, even though it appeared he had thrown the first blow.

Both he and the team hope to make amends for that showing Saturday at Mesa. A victory would give MSAC its best won-loss record, 3-2, in South Coast Conference play.

A victory, in fact would leave the Mounties with the possibility of tying for the conference championship, depending on the outcome of Fullerton (3-1) at Santa Ana (0-4) and Orange Coast (3-1) at Cerritos (2-2).

Top hitting pitchers

The top two hitting pitchers in the National League are Pirates—and both are southpaw hurlers. Ken Brett, who bats left, hit .310 (27-for-87) with two homers and 15 RBIs. He has nine lifetime homers. Jim Rooker, a righthanded batter, hit .305 (29-for-95) with no homers and eight RBIs.

Stags' Mennis is quite an orator

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

Offensive tackle Bob Mennis doesn't expect to make any halftime speeches this Saturday when Claremont-Mudd hosts La Verne in the final football game of the season for each.

After a lacklustre first half last week which saw the Stags trail Occidental 6-0 at halftime, Mennis, gave what C-M coach John Zinda termed, "the best halftime talk I think I ever heard.

"He (Mennis) is an emotional athlete who was tired of playing on a losing team," explained Zinda, "and he was ready to take on everyone one by one."

Mennis himself shrugged off any challenge he may have issued.

"I was kind of upset about the first half," he admitted. "We seemed to have the same problems that have been bothering us all year . . . no overall breakdown, but different individuals missing blocks and breaks just going against us.

"I knew we were playing a team we could beat," Mennis said. "They had the biggest offensive line we faced all season; but they were inexperienced. I was handling my man and I could see the other guys generally were doing the same. The trouble was one guy would break down one time and somebody else another."

Whatever Mennis said, his teammates believed him. The Stags held Oxy scoreless in the second half and scored twice themselves to win, 14-6.

He obviously is well qualified to back up any challenges. A 6-2, 215-pounder for football, Mennis also is a champion wrestler for the Stags.

Mennis was league and district champion in the 190-pound division last year and set a school record with 15 straight pins. At Burlingame High, Mennis was an all-league defensive end at 6-2 and 195 pounds and wrestled at 165 pounds.

He had 24 pins in a row before losing his last two matches in the CIF tournament. "I didn't think anybody could beat me," he explained. "I lost to the guy who went on to win the tournament and I really didn't care much in the consolation match and I blew it."

The big tackle believes the Stags football team has finally jelled. "We're young," he said. "I think all year we're been a team of winners, but we just hadn't put it together. Oxy has always been tough for us and we got up for them. So I think we'll get up for La Verne, another team that has been hard for us."

The Stags haven't defeated the Leopards since 1970 and have won only three times in the last 13 years.

"La Verne's strength is in its defensive line," Mennis observed. "Our strength is in our running. It ought to be a good matchup."

The big tackle's major is Political Science. When he talked with the writer, he had been up for over 24 hours because he had to complete a mid-term paper on Middle East politics.

After talking with the writer, he was going to practice, a good example of the dedication to small college football.

"I wanted a small school," he said. "I had considered San Francisco State and the military academies. But I had a friend in the Naval Academy and he wasn't too high on it. Also I wanted a place where I could play football and wrestle four years."

Stag booters suffer loss at Westmont

SANTA BARBARA — Claremont-Mudd's soccer season came to an untimely close here Tuesday afternoon, as the Stags were blanked 3-0 by Westmont College in the NAIA District Three finals.

The host Warriors took a 1-0 lead at the six-minute mark of the contest on a goal by Alphonso Guzman and increased that lead to 2-0 four minutes later on Dan Chapman's score.

That early advantage was too much for the Stags to overcome, although the C-M defense and goalie Rob Lamb did hold off the powerful Pirates until late in the second half when Dave Rice scored the clincher.

Westmont had the edge in shots on goal, 13 to eight for the Stags. Claremont finished its season with an overall 13-3-2 record.

Westmont will host Lewis & Clark College of Washington Saturday to determine the West Coast representative in the NAIA Nationals.

Sunkist meet date set for Jan. 18 at 'Arena

The 16th annual Sunkist Invitational indoor track meet has been scheduled for Saturday night, Jan. 18, at the L.A. Sports Arena, Chairman Al Franken announces.

The meet will serve to dedicate the nation's newest and supposedly fastest indoor track. It was designed by Floyd Highfill of Albuquerque, also the creator of the San Diego Sports Arena track, where Tony Waldrop ran his world record 3:55 mile last winter.

Chairman Franken reports bids have gone out to the cream of the world's track stars, including Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, Bredan Foster of Great Britain and Anders Garderud of Britain, from the foreign roster.

On the domestic side, invites have been sent to Steve Prefontaine, Rick Wohlhuter, George Woods, Al Ferubach, Dwight Stones, Mary Decker, Francie Larrieu, Steve Williams, Maurice Peoples, Randy Williams, Frank Shorter, Paul Cummings, Marty Liquori, Rick Brown and Rory Kotinek.

Suddenly, it costs $5 less to live in California.

NOW $11.99 half-gallons

Now when Californians throw a party, they can afford to throw caution to the wind.

'Cause the Usher's Green Stripe Scotch Half-Gallon is now being introduced to California at $5 less than other premium Scotches.

So Californians can host parties where they serve the Scotch. Where nobody, but nobody, has to bring his own.

They can afford this generosity with the Usher's Half-Gallon. A beautifully built home entertainer. With a special built-in pourer that avoids spilling and splashing. And a special design that makes it easy to store and handle.

Usher's. At $5 less it's your best Scotch value! Isn't it great to live in California!

Usher's Green Stripe.

Bonita, Royal Oak favored to advance in CIF playoffs

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Football's Foremost
Forecaster

Egads, friends, the number dwindles down to two this weekend.

That's how many valley high school teams will remain in competition in the CIF playoffs — and both are from the Hacienda League.

Bonita High, the winningest team in the valley, will still have trouble getting its offense going, but will — harrumph — Nock off Norco, 14-3.

And Royal Oak, taking a long trip, will make it worth while as it trips Calexico, 24-12.

All three San Antonio League teams, heh-heh, will get dumped from the playoffs. And all will get beaten soundly, haff-kaff!

Pomona will fall to San Gabriel, 24-7, Burroughs will upend Upland, 29-13, and Claremont will get trounced by Santa Ana Valley, 34-9.

Even Rowland will bow out, the Raiders, kar-rumph, will sputter and eventually get knocked off, 24-21, in the closing minutes of the game.

On the college scene, La Verne will hand its friendly rival Claremont-Mudd an 18-7 loss, while Pomona-Pitzer will defeat Occidental, 24-22, in SCIAC competition.

Azusa Pacific will have trouble with USIU, and will tumble, 24-12.

In junior college play, Citrus will take the Mission Conference title with a thrilling 20-18 victory over Grossmont. But meanwhile, Mt. San Antonio College will get dumped by San Diego Mesa, 28-21, and Saddleback will trounce Chaffey, 34-13.

And now let's take a look at the national scene:

Here we are at Super Saturday — the day they play for all the marbles. Jove, 'tis a schedule-maker's dream come true! So, without further ado, to — ahem — coin a phrase, we will give you the authentic Hoople appraisal of the upcoming historic contests — um-kumph!

At Columbus, Ohio, the mighty titans of the Big Ten — Ohio State and Michigan — will square off for their annual head-butting. For these arch foes all the rest of the season stands for naught if you lose the Big One and this year the phenomenally successful Hoople System — kaff-kaff — gives the big nod to the Archie Griffin lead Buckeyes, 27-21, in what should be the game of the year — har-rumph!

In THE GAME at Cambridge, Yale and Harvard will have at it for the 91st time in this storied rivalry. And it will be a great day for Old Blue alumni, yours truly included, as the Bulldogs triumph, 28-21 — Boola-Boola! But I must, in all honesty — kaff-kaff — say the Hoople System cast a shaky vote for Yale as Harvard has a mighty fine eleven.

Out on the West Coast, Southern California's Trojans will clinch a third straight Rose Bowl bid by whipping host UCLA. We give it to the men of John McKay, 32-21.

Elsewhere around the country there are many traditional intra-state and inter-state contests on top. Among these are Mississippi State — Mississippi (71st meeting), Oregon State — Oregon (78th contest), Washington — Washington State (their 67th game), Purdue — Indiana (77th game) and California — Stanford (also the 77th meeting).

On the inter-state slate are Missouri — Kansas (83rd contest), Kentucky — Tennessee (70th game) and Wisconsin—Minnesota (84th renewal).

Here's how we have these fine contest figured: Mississippi State 36, Ole Miss 24; Oregon State to dunk the Ducks, 23-20; Washington's Huskies to whip the Cougars, 23-10; Purdue's Boulermakers to outscore their Hoosier rivals, 21-14, and California's resurgent Golden Bears to defeat the Stanford Cardinals, 24-21, in an intensely fought battle.

The Missouri — Kansas game will be a high scoring fray with the Tigers prevailing over the Kansas Jayhawks, 38-21, the Kentucky — Tennessee game looks about the same with the Kentucky Wildcats winning, 35-21. The Wisconsin Badgers will prove to be rude hosts as they edge out the Minnesota Gophers, 28-21.

Saving the best for last, we confidently predict the Nebraska Cornhuskers will shock Big Eight adherents and football fans all around the nation by squeezing out a narrow 24-22 victory over the mighty Oklahoma Sonners. Yas, dear readers, our indicators point to a spine tingling two-point triumph for the Cornhuskers on the friendly turf in Lincoln. And remember, you read it first in Hoople.

Verbum Dei top-seeded in tourney

Defending tourney champ Verbum Dei has taken down the number one seed for the Third Annual San Dimas High Basketball Tournament of Champions.

The, tourney, slated to begin December 17, is one of the finest of its kind in the state. This year sponsors of the event, the San Dimas High Booster Club, have arranged to have the tourney played at the La Verne College "Super Tent."

In addition the top-seeded Verbum Dei, the rest of the seeded-teams look this way: Oakland Tech no. 2, Palos Verdes no. three and Long Beach Jordan no. four.

Rounding out the eight-team tourney field are locals Garey High and host schools San Dimas, Cathedral High of Los Angeles and Pasadena High.

Verbum Dei will be led by prep All-America David Greenwood while number-two ranked Oakland Tech has two top-flight players in Wolf Perry and Doc Shavers.

The balance of the tourney field is perhaps the strongest overall in the three-year history of the event and it figures to be a mad scramble to see which squad takes home the Championship trophy.

Tourney action gets underway Tuesday, December 17 as Palos Verdes meets Garey and Verbum Dei takes on Cathedral.

Wednesday night games feature Long Beach Jordan facing Pasadena and Oakland Tech battling the host Saints.

Championship and consolation games will be held Friday, December 20 at the new La Verne gym. The championship contest will be played at 8:30 p.m. while the consolation game will feature a 5:30 p.m. tipoff.

Warriors show defense

By United Press International

Defense is supposed to mark the Boston Celtics' brand of basketball but Golden State Coach Al Attles said his Warriors also can play that kind of game.

The Warriors jumped to a 12-4 lead and never let the Celtics in front Wednesday night to defeat Boston, playing again without injured Dave Cowens, 120-115.

"We played defense the whole game and this is the way this team has played all year," Attles said. "When we started the season, we just wanted to be competitive but we've won more than we've lost and we've come a long way for a young team."

Warrior Rick Barry turned in an outstanding offensive performance with 42 points.

"Let's give Golden State the credit," Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn said. "They played a hell of a ball game. It's very tough trying to work on a guy like Barry. He's a hell of a ballplayer and can hurt you in a lot of ways."

The Celtics tied the score several times but were unable to pull ahead.

Golden State opened a 101-87 bulge, their biggest of the night, early in the final period. But the Celtics rallied and outscored Golden State 16-2 over a four-minute stretch to tie the score at 103. Then Keith Wilkes broke a 107 tie with a pair of free throws with two minutes to play and added a basket seconds later to stifle the Celtics.

John Havlicek was high scorer for Boston with 23 points.

"If you can win games like this one, it's a big help to a team this young," Attles said. "You have to give the guys credit for playing a good defense after the Boston team had tied the score in the last period. I've always said if you can play good defense in the fourth quarter you've got a chance to win any game. We almost lost it during Boston's hot streak when we took some bad shots, but we settled down after that."

In other NBA action Phoenix beat Detroit 114-106, New York whipped Philadelphia 105-95, Buffalo downed Washington 115-104 and Seattle edged New Orleans 99-95.

Suns 114, Pistons 106

Charlie Scott scored 33 points and Dick Van Arsdale had 19 to help Phoenix snap a three-game losing streak. The Suns shot 70 per cent in the third quarter and the closest the Pistons could come at the end was five points. Dave Bing was high for Detroit with 27 points while Bob Lanier had 26.

Knicks 105, 76ers 95

Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe combined for 57 points as New York rolled to its fourth straight victory. Frazier scored 30 points and Monroe added 27 as the Knicks opened up a 2-point lead in the final period and coasted home.

Super Sonics 99, Jazz 95

Spencer Haywood, Archie Clark and Jimmy Fox each had 18 points to lead Seattle to a come-from-behind win. Butch van Breda Kolff, in his first game as coach of the Jazz, saw the New Orleans clicking with a 79-66 lead after three quarters. But Haywood and Clark began hitting from the outside and the Jazz managed only 14 points in the final quarter to drop their 16th game in 17 starts.

Braves 115, Bullets 104

Buffalo scored 15 straight points late in the fourth quarter to defeat Washington and extend its winning streak to nine games. Randy Smith had 28 points and Bob McAdoo added 27 points to lead Buffalo.

Expos' great windup

Montreal, bulwarked by some fine-looking rookies, finished the '74 season in a blaze of glory. They won 18 of their last 23, sparked by the hitting of Willie Davis and the sensational relief pitching of Dale Murray, who saved 10 of the 18 games and won one. He rejoined the Expos on July 6 from Memphis.

Aztecs, Gunners play to 1-1 draw

By ADRIAN MERCADO
P-B Correspondent

In a do-or-die game between Division I leaders of the Pomona American Youth Soccer Organization neither the Aztecs nor Gunners died — the game ended in a 1-1 tie.

Dale Clark drew first blood for the Gunners but Santos Franco of the Aztecs booted in the equalizer in the closing half.

As a result of the tie, the Gunners still lead by two points and have one game remaining while the Aztecs still have two games remaining.

The Pomona Police Assn. Rangers, who are also tied for second place with only one game remaining, wiped out the Stars 10-0 on a three-goal "hat trick" by Paul Edwards and solo goals by Jim Nixon, Pete Fox, Kip Keough, Mike Fox, Pat Reynolds, Ion Wilson, and Morgan Rusler.

In the third Division I contest, Rusty Grimes of the Panthers neutralized the Cobras' Rick O'Shay's goal with the game ending in a 1-1 tie.

The Pomona Optimist Dandelions continue to pace the Division III girls by virtue of a 1-0 shutout of the Buttercups; Suzanne Lopez scored the only goal in the first half.

In girls' Division II play, the two goals scored by Michelle Roen and another by teammate Sandra Houston were not enough as the Claremont Roadrunners stopped the Pomona Tulips 5-3.

In a smiliar manner, the Daffodils' Tina Scott's goal was not enough to overcome the Claremont Sagehens as the game ended 4-1. In girls' Division I, The Pomona Soccerettes, who have been improving with every week, almost upset the third place Ontario Strawhats who scored the only goal of the game in the closing minutes.

The first half of the season came to a close for Division II and III boys with only the Radio Station KSOM Kickers running away in one of the Division III Leagues.

In Division II Red League action, the Pomona 1st Federal Thunderbirds won a big one against the former second-place Pomona Service Center Torpedos by a score of 3-2. Ricky Garcia, Richard Union, and Brent Snead of the T-Birds overcame a 1-0 halftime deficit and Trevor Jordan scored both Torpedo goals. The Palominos lost ground but still remain in second place after losing to the Kings 3-2; Guy Kopf, Sam Stavros, and Bobby Worden scored for the Kings while Reinaldo Escoffery and Danny Holloway tallied for the Palominos.

The Eastern Airlines Wings scored twice in the second-half to nip the Cal Poly Optimist Roadrunners 2-1. Randy Turner and Steven Mercado hit the net for the Wings and Tody Miller did likewise for the Roadrunners. The Tigers registered their first win against the winless Chargers 2-1; Herman Hopson and Marty Foutts led the Bengals against a one goal charge for John Brazel.

RANGERS ENJOY BIGGEST WIN

The Rangers enjoyed the biggest win last week among the Diamond Bar-Walnut American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO) teams by defeating the first place Ontario Romans, 3-1, in Division I action.

It was the Romans' first loss in two years in league play.

Mark Emery, John Ermer and Ken Russo scored the goals for the Rangers while Ernie and Ruben Raya and Brian Anderson led the defense.

The Senior Division Aztecs lost on the road to Club United, 5-2, at La Mirada. Jim Doherty scored both goals for the Aztecs.

The Southwest Concrete Renegades got back on the winning track by scoring four times in the closing half after a 1-1 halftime deadlock and beat the Marauders 5-2 with Timothy Thompson (2), Danny Quinn, Shane Turner, and Michael Stanisci booting in goals for the Renegades; Darrin Braulik and Ted Rosenkrans scored for the Pomona Police Assn. Marauders. The Pomona Valley Datsun Jets remained tied for first place with the Renegades by having beaten the Hawks 4-0 with David Wilber scoring a "hat trick" and Rookie Breakfield adding another one.

Meanwhile, there's no counting out the Sportsman Kestrels who are only one point out of first by having broken-in the Mustangs 6-0; Perry Jenkins had himself a four-goal day and James O'Brien hit the net twice.

The Wildcats must have caught the Sharks out of the water to maul them 8-0; Chris Urgeleit scored a four-goal "hat trick" and Eric Hart, Johnny Quiroga, and David Hole (2) exploded for goals as well.

In Division III Red League play the Pomona Police Assn. Eagles maintained their perfect record by blanking the Dolphins 3-0 on a pair of goals by Jerry Duffy and a single tally by Cliff Jackson. The Jackrabbits remained in second place by zipping by the Pumas 2-0 on a pair of boots by Jimmy Carey. The Streakers came out of hibernation and won their first game 2-0 against the Ravens; Hawkins and Creighton were the sharpshooters.

The KSOM Kickers kicked up a storm of goals to beat the Cheetahs 6-1 to remain in 1st place in the White League; Gary Mastny (2), Dennis Kingg (2), Chuck Lavrusky, and Ian Carmuchan scored for the winners and Mike Rafferty avoided the shutout on a free-kick goal.

In boys Division II action, the Cherokees blanked the Broncos, 2-0, thanks to John Caligiuri anchoring the defense and brother Paul spearheading the offense.

The Bobcats and Vipers met in a showdown for first place in the Walnut section of boys Division III and proved their balance by battling to a scoreless deadlock. Meanwhile, Shawn Hank's goal gave the Muleskinners their first points in the Vejar section as they edged the Desparados, 1-0.

In girls Division III play, the Golddigers extended their lead by blanking the Pintos, 4-0. The defense and mid-field play led by Debbie Christensen and Lisa Higginbotham kept the leather in Pinto territory, resulting in goals by Teri Cox, Barbara Wilson and Lisa Argusa.

The Rustlers in girls Division II jumped out to a 1-0 lead over the Broncos on a goal by Karen Hefley but Laura Simone's goal from 30 yards out gained a tie for the Broncos.

Shumate begins conditioning

PHOENIX (UPI) — John Shumate, the Phoenix Suns' top draft choice forced to sit out his first pro season with a blood ailment, may play the 1975-76 season.

Suns General Manager Jerry Colangelo said Wednesday that doctors have cleared Shumate to begin a conditioning program. However, he will not be allowed physical contact.

Blazers hope to see pay checks

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — The Florida Blazers figure if they quit now, they'll never get paid.

That's why they kept on pounding, getting ready for tonight's World Football League playoff game against the Philadelphia Bell.

"We're playing in the playoffs because we have no choice," said defensive end John Ricca. "We'll never see our money if we leave now."

The Blazers, winners of the league's East Division with a 14-6 record, haven't received a full paycheck in 12 weeks. And as late as the day before the game they didn't even know who they were working for.

A group of local investors reportedly agreed to purchase weeks ago at a reported $3 million, half of which would go to pay off old debts. The players Wednesday were still waiting for their pay.

A club spokesman denied reports Wednesday that the purchasers of the club were backed by Arabian oil money.

The Floridans also were upset at the last minute reshuffling which pitted them against Philadelphia, third in the East Divison with a 9-11 record.

Quarterback Bob Davis said that two weeks ago "there was no doubt in my mind that we would win the World Bowl if we played to our capabilities.

"But right now our chances are not good. We have tremendous dissension on the team. The attitude of a minority of players is not good and we'll be lucky to beat Philadelphia."

Hunting keen in Kern area

Hunters on the Kern National Wildlife Refuge averaged better than two birds each on Sunday under clear skies and ideal fall weather.

In the southern section of the state, hunters at the Wister unit of the Imperial Wildlife Area adjacent to the Salton Sea did not fare as well as they averaged 1.4 birds on Saturday and 0.7 birds on Sunday.

The tally at the Kern refuge shows a total of 279 hunters downed 527 ducks and 50 coots for a total of 577 birds and an average of 2.1 birds per hunter. There were no geese in the bags at the Kern refuge, and the predominant species was green-winged teal, 233, and pintails, 186.

The Saturday count at Wister showed a total of 271 hunters, 344 ducks, 12 geese and 12 coots. Green-winger teal were the most common birds to be downed with a count of 142, folowed by 123 pintails. The total of 12 geese noted at the check station included 2 Canada geese, 9 white fronted geese and 1 Ross's goose.

The Sunday log at Wister shows a total of 216 hunters, 119 ducks, 7 geese and 28 coots. The duck totals included 47 green-winged teal and 39 pintails. The goose count showed one Canada goose and 6 white fronted geese.

At the Finney-Ramer unit of the Imperial Wildlife area, which unlike the Wister unit is open for shooting throughout the week, a total of 32 hunters downed 31 ducks during the seven-day period from Monday, Nov. 11, through last Sunday.

Trout plant

The following lakes and streams, listed by county, are scheduled for restocking this week with catachable-size rainbow trout from Department of Fish and Game hatcheries:

KERN — Hart Park Lake, Kern River (KR3 Powerhouse to Lake Isabella, Borell Powerhouse to Democrat Dam), Kern River State Park.

LOS ANGELES — Big Rock Creek, Crystal Lake, Elizabeth Lake, Jackson Lake.

SAN DIEGO — San Vicente Reservoir.

VENTURA — Casitas Reservoir.

SAN BERNARDINO — Cucamonga-Guasti Park Lake, Glen Helen Lake, Mojave Narrows.

SANTA BARBARA — Cachuma Lake, Vandenberg Air Force Base Mod-III.

RIVERSIDE — Cahuilla Lake, Perris Lake.

Pheasant hunters find fair to good shooting

The thousands of hunters who turned out Saturday for the opening of pheasant season in Southern California and Inyo County found fair to good shooting on most of the fields planted by the Department of Fish and Game.

In Imperial County and along the lower Colorado River, most hunters had at least one bird in the bag by sundown on Saturday, and many had departed earlier with their two-bird limits.

In Imperial County many birds escaped to thick cover and still remain for hunters with good dogs and a willingness to work a little for their limits.

On the desert side of the East Highline Canal, hunter pressure was lighter than elsewhere and wardens feel a good number of pheasants still can be taken from the area.

Other recommended areas for this week include fields along McCabe Road, Yocum Road and generally along the East Highline Canal.

In the Palo Verde area, the pheasants scattered to find cover after being released, and hunter pressure was not concentratred in any particuiar area. Wardens say hunters with dogs still can find birds without too much trouble.

Further to the south in the Bard-Winterhaven area many hunters left early when the word spread that only 500 of the scheduled 1000 birds had been planted.

Richard Davidson, wildlife management supervisor for the Department of Fish and Game's Southern California region, said the reduced plant was caused by the failure of one of the pheasant growers to deliver birds in accordance with his contract.

In Inyo County hunters found good weather, and many limits were taken in fields planted east of Bishop and in the vicinity of Big Pine and Manzanar. The pheasants planted in Inyo County were reported to be in excellent condition.

Wardens reported the number of hunters in Inyo County was about the same as in past years. Many of them were from Antelope Valley and other Southern California areas, wardens noted.

Angler lands big bass at Lake Havasu

LAKE HAVASU CITY, Ariz. — Striped bass in large numbers are in Lake Havasu earlier than usual after returning from their annual trek up the Colorado River and action the past few days has been lively.

Ray Randall, Lake Havasu City, capped some 20 catches reported with a 38 pounder striper boated while trolling the Chalk Cliffs on the California side of the lake opposite Lake Havasu City. The fish struck a silver Fatso lure in better than 20 feet of water. Randall made the catch on Sunday, Nov. 10, and two days later hooked a 7-pounder in the same area.

George Foster, owner of the lake Havasu Marina, said it was the largest striped bass he has weighed. It measured 45 inches.

The lake record is 42½ pounder caught at Chalk Cliffs in September a year ago by W.C. Zander of Rialto, Ca. and checked in at Havasu Landing.

Resorts reveal '74 skiing outlook

SQUAW VALLEY — Squaw Valley is in the final stages of preparation for the 1974-75 ski season. The California State inspector is now at Squaw Valley completing inspection of the ski lifts, including Squaw's two new lifts, Mainline and Olympic Lady. Now Squaw Valley lifts include one aerial tramway, one gondola, 19 double chair lifts and four poma lifts. $2 million in summer improvements to Squaw Valley lifts promise the best engineered ski lifts in the U.S. Squaw Valley Resort Hotels are nearing completion of their major summer renovation project.

ALPINE MEADOWS — The first good storm of the season left one to two feet of snow at the top of the mountain at Alpine. Ski Clinic for Alpine Meadows Instructors was held a week ago. It was reported to be the best in six years. The instructors ended two days of skiing with suntans and exuberance praising the good snow and excellent weather. Because activity on the mountain had long outgrown Alpine's base facilities, improvement efforts this summer were concentrated on the base area. The lodge has been greatly remodeled and the rental shop is now twice as large as before with 1100 sets of equipment available. Maintenance facilities for the lift and hill grooming operations have quadrupled in size.

BEAR VALLEY — A brand new ski lift for children — dubbed the "Panda Platter" — has joined the six double chairlifts now installed at Bear Valley, adding another plus factor for the area. Strictly for tots, the Panda Platter lift gives a very youthful dimension to Bear Valley's already-established lifts, bearing such bear-ish names as the Kodiak Lift (3300' long and rising to a height of 1100 feet, with a capacity of 1200 skiers per hour), the Cub, Super Cub, Koala, Bear and Grizzly lifts.

LASSEN NATIONAL PARK SKI AREA — Contingent upon sufficient snowfall, the Lassen National Park Ski Area will open this winter season after Thanksgiving: November 29. Lassen is a small, friendly, family-oriented ski area tucked away in the shadow of the giant Lassen Volcano. Lassen is located in the central part of Northern California only four hours from the San Francisco Bay Area, 65 miles north of Chico. Lassen operates all Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays — including all holiday periods — and caters to beginning and intermediate skiing families who enjoy a low key, friendly skiing experience. Lassen has offered free beginner lessons for over 10 years and is the pioneer of this program in the ski industry.

DODGE RIDGE — Dodge Ridge marks its 25th year as this season gets underway. Improvements this year at that Sonora Pass resort included the rebuilding of three of that area's six double chairlifts, and refurbishing the two day lodges and other service buildings. A new Thiokol snowpacker also has been added to Dodge's fleet, giving the area 14 pieces of slope grooming equipment. Dodge Ridge's Bay Area office and answering service phone is now open, and will provide daily snow and condition reports from the resort, as well as other information. Phone (415) 345-7763 between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. (10 to 6 Sundays).

MT. ROSE — Freestyle qualifications are scheduled to be held on December 5th and 6th at Mount Rose, sponsored by the IFSA according to Don Summers, Executive Director of the association. Again, this year, a combination ticket to ski both Mount Rose and Slide Mountain is available. Both mountains offer a great variety of runs. Extensive hill grooming and lift repairs should make Mount Rose a reliable and safe place to enjoy skiing. Mount Rose is located just 20 minutes from the North Shore of Lake Tahoe on Nevada State Highway 27.

SNOW SUMMIT — The 16th Annual Youth Ski Camp will be held December 20-24. It has been scheduled later than usual this year due to school vacation. Bus transportation will be provided to and from Big Bear from Redlands at the base of the mountain to spare parents through-the-snow driving. One low price ($120) includes the cost of this transportation plus lodging, all meals, daily use of all lifts and daily all-day instruction with constant supervision. Instructors will be those on the staff of the Certified Snow Summit Ski School. For further information, one can contact Snow Summit directly, Box 77, Big Bear Lake, California 92315.

Gymnastic champions will perform at Poly

The Junior National Champion Long Beach Kips will perform at the Cal Poly men's gym Nov. 30, it has been announced.

The Kips' gymnastic program will begin at 7:30 p.m. on the 30th, with tickets priced at $2 for adults, $1 for students and 50 cents for children. Proceeds will go to help the Cal Poly girls' gymnastic team.

The Kips are coached by Jim Fountaine, who was an assistant coach on the 1972 U.S. Olympic squad. The exhibition will be narrated by Gordon Maddux of ABC-TV's Wilde World of Sports.

Among the participants for the Long Beach youngsters on the 30th will be Kelly Muncey. At only 14 Miss Muncey is the junior national bars champ as well as the second-best all around girl gymnast nationally.

Other competitors featured are Patty Mirtich and Susan Archer. Miss Mirtich finished ninth last year nationally in the all around competition, while Miss Archer is considered to be one of the top twenty gymnasts in the country. All three girls are residents of Lakewood.

Walnut school 3rd in meet

The first [illegible] Gabriel Valley Junior High Cross Country Champ[illegible] was held at Mt. San Antonio College recently. Sixteen junior high teams competed for the title.

The winning teams were Sierra Vista-Covina with a total of 55 poi[illegible] High fr[illegible] second with 60 points. Suzanne (Walnut) finished a strong third with 88 points. Mike Hanlon was Suzanne's top runner finishing sixth place. He was the fastest 7th grader of the day. Other Suzanne runners were Tom Hughes (13th), Jerry Whiston (15th), Neal Foley (22rd), Tracey Taylor (31st), David Hill (32nd) and Dale Kerr (38th). Both Foley and Taylor are also 7th graders.

The Challengers have two meets left this year, the Olive Invitational in Baldwin Park and the Rowland Recreation League Cross Country finals. Suzanne is coached by Jack Malloy and Ed Lindsay.

Petty officer decline cuts fleet readiness

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A shortage of technician petty officers has delayed the Pacific tour of the Alameda-based aircraft carrier Coral Sea, according to a spakesman for the Pacific Fleet Naval Air Force.

He said the ship had insufficient technician and engineering petty officers, forcing the delay from Nov. 27 to Dec. 5. The deficiencies were being made up by transfers to the ship of recent graduates of technical training schools and men from other ships and units.

The action confirmed statements last week by Assistant Navy Secretary for Manpower and Reserve Affairs Joseph T. McCullen Jr.

He said the shortage of technician petty officers trained to handle the Navy's sophisticated weapons systems and nuclear and conventional power plants is threatening the battle readiness of the fleet.

"I would characterize the situation as serious," he said during a conference of Navy civilian personnel directors. "The shortage averages about 20 per cent aboard all our ships. We must find ways to solve that if we are to insure fleet readiness."

He said the major problems were that many technically trained petty officers leave the Navy after their first enlistments and many seamen do no want to be promoted to petty officer with the added responsibility that goes with it.

He said the Navy now requires 85 per cent of the men recruited to be qualified for one or more of the Navy's technical schools in an effort to alleviate the problem.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dean Witter & Co. recommends a "selective investment strategy" for common stocks while the market remains in the 600-700 area of the Dow Jones industrial average. The brokerage says it hasn't tried to pick a precise market bottom and recognizes that the Dow could possibly break through the 580 mark. Still, the firm adds, "we would not be overly anxious to invest meaningfully above the 700 area over the next few months."

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith offers the opinion that life insurance issues will continue to build strength and outperform the stock market indicators during the next year. To back up this belief, the company feels life insurance firm profits will advance next year despite generally lower corporate profits and points out that lower interest rates will make life insurance equities competitive once more with other investments.

Argues Research Corp. says downside risk in most cement industry issues is "modest" compared to their longer-term capital appreciation potential. It points out that the stocks are selling at or near their lowest price levels and price-earnings ratios in 20 years, and that most companies are paying dividends providing above-average current yields.

House starts plummet to 5-year-low

WASHINGTON (UPI) — October housing starts dropped to their lowest level in nearly five years Monday underlining the effect inflation has had on the building industry.

An estimated 1.124 million units were underway at an adjusted annual rate —the lowest since 1.085 million units in January, 1970.

According to Census Bureau data, permits for new construction of homes, duplexes and apartments fell to an annual adjusted rate of 802,000, the lowest since December, 1966, when the annual adjusted rate was 743,000.

Michael Sumichrast, chief economist for the National Asociation of Home Builders said unemployment in the building trades will hit 16 per cent by January. It is already 12.2 per cent —twice the national average.

For many years people living in the Himalaya Mountains of Asia have told stories of a mysterious creature that is supposed to live high up on the cold, snowy peaks.

They call the creature the "yeti" (pronounced YEH tih) — the Abominable Snowman.

Their stories tell of a large, shaggy, half-human beast.

It is a fearsome creature with a mournful cry and an evil odor.

It prowls the mountains by night, leaving giant footprints in the snow.

Nobody has ever seen the Abominable Snowman, but many have seen large, strange footprints in the snow of the Himalayas.

Some think they are the snowman's prints. But most scientists doubt that the snowman is a real animal and that the tracks were really made by bears or other creatures.

They found such tracks would grow in size as the sun melted the snow around them, forming the giant "footprints" of the Abominable Snowman.

A radio, camera, globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Controversy continues

New study says vitamin C doesn't prevent colds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Do large doses of vitamin C prevent colds?

Many people think so, including some respected scientists. But The Medical Letter, an authoritative publication for doctors, says a review of recent clinical studies indicates that substantial amounts of vitamin C do not prevent colds.

"And evidence suggesting that the vitamin might reduce the severity or duration of colds is not convincing," the nonprofit publication said in a recent issue.

The controversy started four years ago when a book by chemist Linus Pauling, two-time Nobel Prize winner, recommended massive doses of vitamin C to combat the common cold.

The claim prompted a number of studies in the United States, Canada and Ireland to see if the vitamin would control or prevent colds. The effects of large does of vitamin C were compared with those of dummy pills with neither the researchers nor the subjects knowing who was getting the vitamin.

A Canadian study of 818 volunteers in 1972 found that the only significant difference between the vitamin group and the dummy pill group was that those receiving vitamin C who caught colds spent less time confined to the house.

A larger, more recent study by the same Canadian researchers found that those taking vitamin C caught just as many colds, and they were just as severe, as those on the dummy pill. And the amount of vitamin C taken did not seem to make any difference.

The Medical Letter said a small study of 21 adults in the United States observed the results after a cold virus was placed in their nasal passages. All 11 people taking vitamin C in large doses caught colds as did all 10 taking a dummy pill.

A study reported in January of 666 Indian children at a boarding school in Arizona found that those receiving vitamin C had fewer days of sickness from respiratory infections. But sick days from nonrespiratory illness also were about 30 per cent less in children taking vitamin C and The Medical Letter said a statistical analysis of these results showed no consistent effect due to the vitamin.

Another trial, in Dublin, produced somewhat confusing results with no firm evidence that the vitamin prevented colds or lessen their severity, The Medical etter said.

Vitamin C is ascorbic acid and humans get it from fresh vegetables and fruits, particularly citrus fruits. The lack of the vitamin was responsible for scurvy, the scourge of seamen confined to sailing ships on long voyages without fresh foods.

The National Research Council recommends daily vitamin C intake levels of between 50 and 60 milligrams for most people. The average diet is said to provide Americans with enough of the vitamin.

The doses that have been studied in anti-cold tests have ranged from 200 mg to up to 2 grams or more per day. Dr. Philip White, director of nutrition for the American Medical Association, says most physicians advise against such massive doses because they don't know if there are any long term effects of overdoses.

Against recess raids

Congress takes steps to safeguard itself

WASHINGTON (UPI) — During his 5-½ years as President, Richard M. Nixon so bedeviled Congress during its recesses that the Senate and House became terrified at the thought of leaving town.

Nixon gave Congress ample reason to be paranoid.

With members of Congress scattered around the country and overseas —powerless to take any action —Nixon ordered the carpet bombing of Cambodia.

During another recess, Nixon ordered the closing of military bases —always a traumatic experience for a senator or congressman faced with hostile citizens whose livelihood depends on such an installation.

Nixon also used congressional absences to impound appropriated funds and once even used a five-day Christmas break as an excuse for a pocket veto.

As a result, Congress has taken steps to safeguard itself against recess raids by a president.

Legislation has been passed which gives Congress a direct say when a president impounds or defers the use of funds that have been approved by the Senate and House.

All resolutions of adjournment now carry a provision that the leadership of the Senate and House can recall Congress on 24 hours notice.

And during the current recess —for the first time —congressional officials are empowered to receive messages from the White House, a still untested attempt to do away with the pocket veto —refusal by a president to sign or veto a measure while Congress is not in session, thereby denying Congress an opportunity to vote to override his veto.

In addition, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy took Nixon to court over the administration's contention that a health maintenance bill died because the former president did not sign it while Congress slipped away for the Christmas holidays. Kennedy won at the court of appeals level.

Ford, who like other members of Congress, was the victim of Nixon's tactics is now the unwitting heir to the deep-seated mistrust created by his predecessor.

But Ford is working to dispel that mistrust.

For instance, Ford told Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott on a late night flight from Philadelphia to Washington there would be no "tricks" in his administration.

As a result of that statement and the assurance from Ford that he would sign a sweeping campaign reform bill, Congress sent him the legislation without fear that he would exercise the pocket veto during the election period recess.

Similarly, the White House told Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield there was a "good chance" Ford would veto a 23 per cent increase in veterans' educational benefits. As a result, the bill was not sent to the White House.

The legislation will be dispatched when Congress returns Nov. 18 so that the Senate and House will have a chance to override the veto.

Ford also showed his inclination to play above board with Congress on the issue of military aid to Turkey. He twice vetoed legislation before accepting a third version.

But by acting promptly — once within 24 hours —on the vetoes, Ford kept from cutting too deeply into the recess.

The suspicion is that Nixon and his staff would have let Congress "twist slowly, slowly, in the wind."

U.S. attorney: going after 'Mr. Big' in dope business

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal attorney who is in San Francisco to organize a drive against narcotics says that, "What we're interested in is quality defendants."

"We're going after Mr. Big in the dope business," said John Gibbons, one of three assistant U.S. attorneys in San Francisco to organize a task force.

Gibbons said his target was the "man who puts up the money —who can afford to buy and rent airplanes for flights over the Mexican border and who can give couriers thousands of dollars to make buys in Bangkok."

Although he could offer no idea of the size of the narcotics traffic in the San Francisco area, Gibbons estimated there may be as many as 1,000 major operators in Northern California.

Ed Lukel, another task force member, said his group would coordinate the efforts of the Drug Enforcement Administration, the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and local police.

Both noted their aim would be to follow up on the arrest of middlemen, trying to get to the "top man."

San Francisco is considered an international port of entry for narcotics and is used as a clearing house for narcotics sold all over the nation, Lukel noted.

Want Ads Ring,

Want Ads have the ring of truth. When you pick up the phone to check on some item advertised in Classified, you can be sure of an honest bargain. Want Ads are famous for bargains in a wide range of goods and special services.

Are You Listening?

When money talks, people listen, and Want Ads mean money. There's money in all those discarded items lying around the house or garage. Someone will find them valuable and pay you good hard cash for the privilege of taking them off your hands. Be sure you are listening when Want Ad money talks.

On the Page,

This is where it all is -- in the Classified Pages. Houses, autos, appliances, furniture, toys, bikes, musical instruments, jobs, pets -- you name it.

Bargains Glisten.

Folks just naturally look to the Want Ads when they want a good bargain. They know there are valuable and serviceable goods available at amazingly low prices.

Selling in A Winter Moneyland.

Classified is truly a Winter Moneyland. Heavy Want Ad readership hits its peak during the stay-at-home time of the year. It's the popular time to round up your still useful but no-longer-used items lying around the premises. A speedy Want Ad will exchange them for welcome Christmas cash. There's money to be made, too, in the savings you'll find in Classified Yuletide gift bargains. Let Classified lead you to your Winter Moneyland.

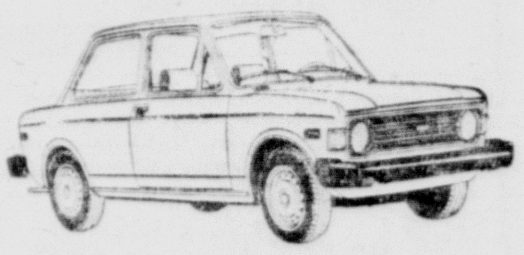
FIAT HAS A CAR FOR EVERYONE

FIAT 128 Sedan



#128A1819319

Only the designing ingenuity and engineering excellence of FIAT could have produced this incredible sub-compact: FIAT 128. The economy car that offers all the advantages of smallness with none of the disadvantages. It's shorter in length than VW — but it's bigger inside. That's the result of mounting the front-wheel drive engine transversely so that it occupies just 20% of the total interior — leaving fully 80% for passenger room and a 13 cu. ft. trunk. The 4 door model has the same interior and exterior dimensions.

And space isn't the only advantage.

Discover why the FIAT 128 has won more international Car-Of-The-Year awards in Europe than any other car in history.

STANDARD EQUIPMENT INCLUDES:
● 4-speed Transmission ● Front Disc Brakes ● Dual brake System ● Radial Ply Tires ● Reclining Bucket Seats ● Wheel Independent Suspension ● Unitized Body Construction ● Flow-Through Ventilatiin.

$76.57 Dn. $76.57 Mo.

For 48 mo. Cash price $2642.08 deferred payment $3751.75. APR. 18.25. On approved credit.

FIAT X 1/9

This is the spectacular, advanced, in-a-class-by-itself, mid-engine FIAT X 1/9. The car of the future. Now. The product of three-quarters in a century of FIAT experience and excellence. No car in its field has ever been accorded a more approving reception by independent experts. Every major motor car publication has reviewed it, acclaimed it and recommended it not only as a resounding styling successive performer and a superlative value as well. The body is the creation of Nuccio Bertone, the designer of many of the most renowned and respected sports cars in the world. Discover a new star of the first magnitude. Discover the brillant FIAT X 1/9.

STANDARD EQUIPMENT INCLUDES:
● 1290 cc Mid Engine ● 4-speed Trans. ● 4-Wheel Disc Brakes ● Dual Brake System ● Radial-Ply Tires ● Rack and Pinion Steering ● Unitized Body Construction including Roof Rollbar ● Electronic Tachometer ● Removable Roof ● Flow-Through Ventilation.
